The Longest Sermon.
Two Ladies in Knickers.
A Useful Decoration.
Sir George Sees Goblins.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE REV. G. Z. BROWN, of the Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Washington, D. C., declares himself holder of "the world's record for long sermons."

He preached for 12 hours and 10 minutes, on prohibition, fast living, "the evil in dancing," famine, blight, drought and pestilence. And in the long sermon, he paused only to eat four lamb chops, some chicken and a glass of milk. The quality of his sermon is proved by the fact that attendance and collections were excellent.

DR. BROWN'S talk was surpassed by an Indian chief, Red Jacket, whose bronze monument stands in Buffalo's fine park. His Indian name, Sa-Go-Ge-Wat-Ka, means "He Keeps Them Awak." Or at least so the old pioneers of Batavia, N. Y., used to say.

He talked all night, and nearly all day to the Indians of his tribe, persuading them not to adopt the British suggestion, and to help along by massacring the American whites of Batavia.

BISHOP BYRNE, of the Galveston Catholic diocese, says "the season of silliness is on," and, wisely, forbids girls "wearing knickers, sailor suits or pajamas in church." Church is not the place for pajamas.

On the other hand, in the right place, knickers for women are a blessing. Every morning, two ladies, one middle-aged, the other young, dust out the cars of the New Jersey Central Railroad, in the main terminal. Both wear knickerbockers. The older lady wears sensible shoes, with flat heels, the young lady has fancy shoes, with high heels.

Their knickerbockers, better than old-fashioned skirts, do not collect germs and dust, and they are modest. Everything in its place.

NAPOLEON INVENTED the legion of honor, saying that with a piece of red ribbon he could change a radical to a good imperialist.

That Legion of Honor has delighted many Americans, changing several into good imitation Frenchmen. All they get is a ribbon and a document, sometimes with their names incorrectly spelled.

RUSSIA, WITH the Order of Lenin, has a different plan. The order, usually given to workers, entitles them to ride free on the railroads, all owned by the government, of course, and entitles them to a reduction in taxes.

SIR GEORGE PAISH, formerly economic adviser to the British government, sees all sorts of trouble ahead, including, perhaps, "revolution on a world scale."

In fact he fears "the suicide of the world."

That has been feared at intervals for centuries. But it does not happen. Says Sir George:

ALL THE GOBLINS that Sir George sees may be real, and many more.

However, land hasn't disappeared, our $5,000,000,000 in gold are still piled up in the Treasury, we have too much of the great essentials, coal, steel, oil, wheat, money, labor. If we can't take care of this "catastrophe," we deserve whatever may happen.

EVERY AMERICAN will regret the apparently unprovoked killing of two young Mexicans in Oklahoma. The young men, who had come to the United States to study, were good students, one had distinguished himself in a school of mines.

They were on their way back to Mexico by automobile, when a deputy sheriff, for reasons not clear, decided that they were "desperadoes," held them up, and shot them dead. A third young man with them was uninjured.

THE YOUNG Mexicans are alleged to have carried weapons, which is not an offense punishable by death in Oklahoma. Considering the fate that overtook them they can hardly be blamed for going armed.

The government of the United States should, and the Governor of Oklahoma doubtless will, take the shooting of these Mexican students as seriously as either would take the shooting of two Americans in Mexico under similar conditions.

"TIME AT LENGTH makes all things even," sometimes. You remember the cruel cages, built for Louis XI of France, by an ingenious bishop. The cages were built so that a man locked inside could not sit up, or lie down.

Louis called the inmates of the cages his "little birds," and the first of the little birds, quite appropriately, was the bishop who invented the cages to please the king.

IN CHICAGO, one of the most cruel of the gangsters was found the other day, firing his automatic at imaginary enemies, frightened, literally, out of his wits. The insane asylum will take care of him hereafter.

He is the inventor of "the ride," the ingenious plan of getting an enemy, by force or strategy, into an automobile, driving him to a secluded spot, shooting him in the back of the head from the rear seat and throwing out his body.

DR. HOOTON, author of "Up From the Apes," teaches anthropology at Harvard and says there is no absolute "race purity." Races are all mixed and mixed races are not necessarily inferior.

That is true if the mixtures are

TWO STATES SHAKEN BY METEOR

Shock of Impact Awakens Thousands; Experts Hold Explosion Theory Unlikely

TOLEDO, O., June 10.—(AP.)—A large section of Northwestern Ohio and a part of Eastern Indiana was shaken early today by a mysterious shock generally believed to have been caused by the crash into the earth of an unusually large meteor.

The center of the shock was found near Malinta, O., 45 miles southwest of here. At the edge of a road just outside Malinta, a large hole had been torn in the ground, and for 300 feet around telephone poles were broken, wires were down and trees knocked over. A field of oats was crushed to the ground.

THOUSANDS AWAKENED

Thousands of persons in a radius of many miles of Malinta were awakened by the shock. Windows were broken in houses several miles away. A check-up failed to show that anyone was injured.

There was a possibility that the shock was caused by an explosion of nitroglycerin, instead of by a fall of a meteor, but experts on explosives said the nitroglycerin theory was not likely.

The hole in the ground was about 10 feet wide and 5 feet deep. Although farmers dug in it and failed to find a meteor, such a body might have changed its course and buried itself in the ground several feet to one side of the hole.

METEOR THEORY

Belief that a meteor caused the shock was based on the tremendous force required to shake such a wide section of the country, and on the absence of any other satisfactory explanation.

No one was found who knew of any nitroglycerin being hauled in that vicinity, and experts said a quantity of this explosive sufficient to have shaken so wide a territory would have made a hole in the ground "as large as a house."

Thousands of automobilists clogged the roads leading to Malinta a few hours after the shock and, in the vicinity of the hole, traffic was brought almost to a standstill.

W. K. Gunter, of Malinta, said the bottom of the hole was packed hard as if the meteor had not passed that point, but admitted a meteor after entering the ground might have turned off on a tangent.

Pittsburghers Start Cross-Country Hop

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—(AP.)—Pilot Harry C. Taylor and three Pittsburgh business men hopped off early today for Pittsburgh in a new Lockheed low-winged speed plane to demonstrate the safety of traveling across the continent at 175 miles an hour.

The passengers were J. S. McGill, contractor; W. R. Yahner, advertising man, and C. W. Forcier, manager of the new $3,000,000 Pittsburgh City-County Airport. They expected to reach Pittsburgh before dark.

Steel Orders Show 277,277-Ton Drop

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP.)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation decreased 277,277 tons in May to a total of 3,620,452 tons May 31. In April a decrease of 97,60. tons was reported.

Unofficial estimates of the decrease ranged from 250,000 to 300,000 tons. A decline during May is seasonal and in the years back to 1924 the drop for that month has averaged about 350,000 tons.

Wedding Service Set Forth in Suit

CHICAGO, June 10.—(AP.)—The full text of a wedding ceremony, including the Lord's Prayer, was set forth in a bill of particulars filed by Mrs. Clare H. Green in her suit for $50,000 against J. Birchard Green, her former husband. She charged yesterday that he failed to "love and cherish her until death did them part." They were divorced two years ago.

PROSPERITY AID LOAN INDORSED

The Hearst prosperity loan program has been approved today by heads of six of Pittsburgh's largest department stores, while indorsement by Representative P. J. Sullivan made unanimous the approval of Allegheny County's congressional delegation.

Walter Rosenbaum, Arthur Kaufmann, Jacob H. Frank, B. D. Croup, A. H. Burchfield, Sr., and James Hammond, department store executives representing organizations doing millions of dollars worth of retail business each year, set their stamp of approval on the plan to borrow $5,000,000,000 to be spent for employment in a program of public construction.

SPEED RESCUE OF 8 ALIVE IN SUNKEN SUB

British Hope to Raise Wrecked Vessel in Few Hours; U. S. Sends Aid

WEIHAIWEI, China, June 10.—(AP.)—Twenty fathoms under the Yellow Sea, eight men in the sunken British submarine Poseidon waited helplessly today while on the surface desperate efforts to rescue them proceeded.

The parent ship Medway was able to maintain communication with the submersible while the naval vessels Hermes and Cumberland worked with a Japanese salvage ship to raise the hulk off the bottom. Naval officials believed they could do that within a few hours.

The eight men were believed to be the only ones still living of the 18 missing after the submarine collided with the Chinese steamer Yuta 21 miles north of this port, shortly after noon yesterday.

HOPE LOST FOR 10

The other 10 were believed to have been trapped in one of the compartments from which rescue would be virtually impossible even if they were still alive.

Five officers and 30 men were saved, six of them popping up through the water within four hours after the disaster. They had used the Davis escape apparatus issued to British submarine crews only recently. Two of them died shortly after they were taken out of the water and one of the remaining four is still in critical condition.

U. S. SENDS AID

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP.)—The Pigeon, United States Navy submarine rescue vessel, has been ordered from Tsingtao, China, to Weihaiwei to aid in salvaging the British submarine Poseidon, which was sunk by a collision.

Admiral C. B. McVay, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, also reported today that he had directed Capt. I. F. Dortch, commander of Destroyer Squadron 5 at Chefoo, to render all possible assistance.

FIRST VOTING MACHINE DUE HERE TODAY

New Demonstrator on Way After Truck Carrying Original One Wrecks

Latest bulletins indicated that the first demonstrating vote machine, due Monday, will reach Pittsburgh late today, barring further accidents.

The first demonstrator left the Poole Engineering and Machine Company plant in Baltimore yesterday. A few hours later the county commissioners were notified that the hauling truck had been wrecked in the mountains and the machine damaged.

Today Commissioner C. C. McGovern's office was notified that a second machine had been started out by road and should reach here before 6 p. m.

The machine will be exhibited in the Commissioner's office as a sample of those purchased for the next election.

The company promised to deliver the demonstrators June 8. The 1,100 that Allegheny County has bought are due to be delivered by August 15. The first machine will be placed on exhibition in the commissioners' office.

GIRL BELIEVED SLAIN AT PARTY

BOSTON, June 10. — (INS.) — Investigation of the mysterious death of Miss Starr Wyman Faithfull, 25-year-old heiress, whose boly was found on the sand at Long Beach, L. I., suddenly came to an apparent "dead end" rere this afternoon.

Rushing here from New York, District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, of Nassau County, and Police Inspector Harold R. Edwards sent out a hurried call for a "Boston politician and influential business man." In a short time. The man, well dressed and middle-aged, came in with two police inspectors. He roved to be a local steamship official.

After he had been closeted with the New York and Boston officials, he was released.

It developed, according to police, taht he had Miss Faithfull as his guest aboard a steamship at a New York dock the afternoon she disappeared. The steamship official told police that he had long been a friend of the girl and her family.

Latest reports said the girl was believed to have met death by strangulation or by drowning in a bathtub at a drinking party. It was at first believed that she was beaten and then thrown overboard from an outward bound ocean liner.

The young woman, cultured and the daughter of a wealthy family, mysteriously disappeared from her Greenwich Village home in the same block where Mayor Walker resides. Her body was taken to the beach by automobile, placed in a boat and then thrown overboard, Edwards said.

Guns Guard Kirkland On Way to Prison

VALPARAISO, Ind., June 10.—(AP.)—Guarded with two machine guns, Virgil Kirkland, resentenced to serve one to 10 years for the slaying of Arlene Draves in Gary, after failure of the state to secure a larger sentence, was taken back to the State Reformatory at Pendleton.

GIRL BLAZES INTO CROWD AT KINLOCK

BULLETIN.

A squad of six state troopers has been dispatches from the Greensburg barracks to aid in checking another outbreak of violence at Kinloch.

Three striking coal miners were injured late today when they were fired upon by deputy sheriffs escorting a truckload of men said to be strike-breakers to the Kinloch mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company, near New Kensington.

Those injured were Walter Galbaski, 41, shot in the left leg; Andrew Janis, shot in the right hand, and Martin Savo, 41, suffering from a bullet wound in his chest. They were taken to the New Kensington Hospital.

The attack occurred after pickets, who lined the Greensburg highway leading to the Kinloch mine from New Kensington, had stoned a truck carrying men en route to the mine. The truck was forced off the road.

MINERS ENRAGED

According to witnesses an angry throng of miners collected and approached the deputies, one of whom, armed with a sawed-off shotgun, opened fire, hitting the three miners.

A number of persons, including three children were in the line of fire but escaped.

The situation was described as tense and according to reports striking miners, angered by the attack, are reported gathering in the vicinity of Kinloch mine.

MOUNT MACHINE GUNS

While four machine guns, manned by company guards, commanded the entrance to the Crescent mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at Daisytown, in anticipation of violence there, a mass meeting of strikers affiliated with the National Miners Union was held today in the Irene Kaufmann eSttlement, Center avenue, and William Z. Foster, head of the Trades Union Uniti League, was one of the speakers.

The heavy guard was established at the Daisytown mine following rumors of retalitory measures said to have been planned against the 105 miners who returned to work in Crescent mine after a strike since Saturday. Nine hundred men walked out and the return of the miners marked the first serious break in the strike which is spreading to all parts of Western Pennsylvania.

COERCION CHARGED

Open charges of threatening and coercing his men if they entered the mine were made in a statement today by V. L. Henry, superintendent of the Creighton mine of the Creighton Fuel Com-

Wages and Living Conditions Under State Inquiry

HARRISBURG, June 10.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot has launched an investigation into the mine strike in Southwestern Pennsylvania.

He has received a letter from Secretary Borich, of the National Miners' Union, requesting him to withdraw all coal and iron police and state police from the strike area, but will not act on it until he has all the facts before him as disclosed by his investigation. He said:

"Information is reaching my office which shows beyond controversy that the condition of large numbers of miners and their families in Western Pennsylvania is pitiable in the extreme.

"I am having an investigation made to ascertain what wages are being paid in individual soft coal mines, how many hours a week the miners are working, and the need for checkweighmen and other similar matters.

"This administration has set its face like flint against violence by any people or from any source, and will not tlerate it. At the same time it recognizes that the working and living conditions of the miners are matters of the deepest concern to the government and the people of this commonwealth and it proposes to get the facts concerning them in detail as promptly as possible."

Yesterday the Governor reiterated a previous announcement that the commissions of all coal and iron police in Pennsylvania would be terminated on June 30.

GERMANY BITTER AS LEADERS RETURN FROM DEBT PARLEY

BRITAIN AVOIDS LEAD IN WORLD CONFERENCE

Bruening and Curtius, Back In Berlin, Await Stimson Visit to Get U. S. Views

By WALTER DIETZEL
International News Service.

BERLIN, June 10.—From a conference marked by cordial interchanges and mutual expressions of co-operation and goodwill, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Dr. Julius Curtius, foreign minister, returned to Germany today to face anew the domestic difficulties they escaped while talking war debts and reparations with British statesmen at Chequers.

Strong demands for an extra session of the Reichstag, bitter complaints about the new emergency tax decrees and some criticism over the results of the Chequers' conference faced the German statesmen.

A near riot broke out at the North German Lloyd Railway station when Bruening and Curtius, with United States Ambassador Sackett as their guest, boarded their special train for Berlin.

LONDON, June 10.—(INS.)—The British government has no intention of calling a conference of the powers with a view to discussing a general cancellation of war debts, Premier Ramsay MacDonald informed the House of Commons today.

PARIS, June 10.—(INS.)—Any doubts of the French government's determination to oppose slightest revision of the Young plan for reparations payment were removed completely today with a speech by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand before the Chamber of Deputies, in which he promised to maintain the status quo at all costs.

MURDER TRIAL VERDICT NEAR

A verdict was expected today in the murder case in which Louis Zemler, 26, McKeesport, is charged with killing William Weddell, proprietor of a Long Run road barbecue stand, February 14, 1930, during a robbery.

Visiting Judge Ray P. Sherwood, of York County, charged the jury this morning. The jury retired last night with a demand for a first degree verdict, made by Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson, ringing in their ears.

Attorney Edward G. Coll placed Zemler and his father, two brothers and two sisters on the stand to support the defense that Zemler had been at home and in bed from 10:30 on the night of the murder.

Witnesses for the state said that Zemler, with others who have not been caught, robbed the barbecue and shot Weddell when he resisted. Zemler, who was arrested here after escaping from Greensburg jail, where he was being held on a robbery charge, denied that he had told other prisoners there that he was wanted for murder. These prisoners testified against him.

Court Plea Denied, Wife Slays Man

FREEPORT, Ill., June 10.—(AP.)—A few minutes after a judge had denied her plea for separate maintenance, Mrs. Vera Witte, 30, shot and killed her husband, William, 55, an engineer, in front of the courthouse here.

Mrs. Witte fired three times from a .32 caliber pistol. Spectators seized the woman.

Stores' Heads Back Loan Plan

ployment by the richest nation in the world, Hearst said, would quickly speed the wheels of all business and bring a return of prosperity to the people, enabling them soon to repay the loan in taxes.

Today's indorsements follow:

Jacob H. Frank, president of Frank & Seder's:

"I agree with Mr. Hearst. All the conversation in the world will not restore prosperity. Only by giving employment to every man who wants to work will the country emerge from its present depression.

BACKS PROPOSAL

"Mr. Hearst suggests that five billion dollars' worth of bonds be sold by the government for immediate additional public works. He wants the nation to increase its debt rather than decrease it at this time.

"The whole power of the government should be put behind this job of turning the wheels of industry.

"An economic crisis can imperil the safety and the welfare of the nation to the same degree as a war and therefore it seems to me that there rests upon the shoulders of the administration as imperative an obligation to adopt extraordinary measures to relieve this situation as it would in war time.

Walter Rosenbaum, of the Rosenbaum Company:

"On the face of it, it looks like a practical proposition. That's what the government is for, to step in and help the people when they're in trouble."

MUCH TALK, NOTHING DONE

James Hammond, of Gimbels:

"I think it's an excellent plan. I read Mr. Hearst's speech with a great deal of interest. He's entirely right and its practicable. There's been a lot of talk and nothing's happened, until now."

Arthur Kaufmann, of McCreery's:

"The Hearst prosperity loan program is a very excellent idea. I think it would start the wheels of industry in the right direction. Every right-thinking American thinks as Mr. Hearst does. Restore optimism and courage, and help the smaller man to get under way. I'd be inclined to support such a movement."

B. D. Croup, Boggs & Buhl:

"I think the idea has merit. There's no doubt that it will start things going. I like Mr. Hearst's prosperity loan plan."

A. H. Burchfield, Sr., of Joseph Horne's, said:

"I agree with William Randolph Hearst's article in the Sun-Telegraph for Sunday, June 7, 1931, that this is the time for cities, counties, states and nations to spend the money required to do those things which are necessary to bring the cities, counties, states and nations to a more finished picture, thereby cutting down present waste and loss and, at the same time, providing jobs for the unemployed who are sadly in need of work. It should result in good future dividends."

Congressman P. J. Sullivan said:

"The Hearst prosperity loan program is all right. Five billions is a lot of money, but five billions could be used now. I'm absolutely in favor of it."

WALKER ENTHUSIASTIC

NEW YORK, June 10.—(Universal.)—Mayor James J. Walker has enthusiastically indorsed William Randolph Hearst's suggestion that the government float a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan as a means of relieving existing economic depression. He said:

"The government would gain, not lose, by such a move, and the whole nation would benefit.

"It appears obvious to me that if the government puts that amount of money into circulation through the prosperity loan suggested by Mr. Hearst, thousands of unemployed will get back to work and again will be drawing wages.

REVOLVING PROCESS

"When a man has his weekly wage, he is able to buy things he and his family needs. That means business for the stores, and in turn for the manufacturers and producers. And that in turn, means that the producers of raw materials and those who turn the raw materials into manufactured products will be able to pay their taxes to the government.

"It's a revolving process, as I see it, with benefits all along the line."

Ambridge Editor Dies in Auto Crash

Steel Railway Ties Proposed by Dyer

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP.)—Representative Dyer, of Missouri, said he would ask the next Congress to compel railroads to find a substitute for wood ties.

Citing figures to show that billions of feet of America's best timber are laid down annually on railroad beds "to rot and decay," Dyer suggested steel or concrete ties.

Man Found Dead At Helping Hand

A man believed to be Frederick Brooks, about 55, leader of an orchestra, was found dead in bed today at the Helping Hand, 439 Water street. Identification was made through papers found in his clothing. A letter indicated he was a member of the National Vaudeville Association.

POPE WEAKENS IN OPPOSITION TO DUCE

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, June 10.—Cardinal Pizzarde, Vatican secretary of state for ecclesiastical affairs, resigned today as adviser of Action Cattolica, indicating that the Catholic Church has weakened its opposition to the Italian government.

Meanwhile the Vatican's reply to the Italian government's note of yesterday had already been drafted by Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, the International News Service learned today.

REFUTES CHARGE

The Vatican note, it is understood, refutes the Italian government's charge that violation of the Lateran concordat preceded Fascist suppression of Catholic youth activities.

Archbishop Borgongini Duca, papal nuncio to Italy, probably will present the note to Premier Mussolini's foreign secretary today. At the Vatican it is feared that relations between church and state will continue to be strained for weeks because of the intransigent character of the Italian government's stand.

SITUATION BETTER

Nevertheless, the situation was better today than it was yesterday and danger of a severance of diplomatic relations between the papacy and the quirinal is believed to be past.

In his reply, the Pope will dispute the Italian government's charge that the church violated terms of the Lateran concordat in sanctioning a Catholic youth movement which threatened to rival in strength Fascist organizations of young people.

STRIKERS SHOT BY DEPUTIES

pany, after strikers picketed and caused a strike of 100 miners at the shaft.

John Wagner, 63, of Tarentum, was beaten by strikers and dragged from company property when he refused to join the strike.

700 MINERS PARADE

A parade of 700 miners at Montour mine No. 10, of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, Library, took place early today, but there was no disorder. Four women who joined their menfolk in the parade were ordered out in compliance with the order of Sheriff Robert S. Cain, of Allegheny County. Later, their numbers augmented by other women, they formed their own parade and marched in Piney Fork road, 50 feet in advance of the march of striking miners for part of the route, but soon dispersed.

At Ellsworth, Marianna, Burgettstown, New Kensington, Pricedale, West Newton and Westland, the situation was marked by silence. There were rumors of discontent, but no outward demonstrations.

Mobilization of Troopers For Strike Duty Denied

BUTLER, Pa., June 10.—Reports that state police were being mobilized here, preparatory to being sent into various mining communities, where strike demonstrations have been held, were denied at the local state police barracks. It was said that six additional men had been sent here and that they were patroling the district, making excursions into Allegheny County. No large increase in the force was anticipated, it was said.

13 Persons Shot In Barcelona Riot

BARCELONA, June 10.—(INS.)—Thirteen persons were shot and wounded here in a street fight between Communists and Socialists. The police were compelled to open fire when menacing crowds refused to disperse. A number of the rioters were arrested.

good mixtures, not true if the mixtures are bad. Good mixtures produce the best results, as witness Greece, Rome, France, England and our country, each in its turn the most successful, powerful nation on earth.

Japan is the most mixed of the Asiatic countries, and most successful.

SWEDEN COMPLAINS that Russia takes her timber trade, and Swedish factories provide saws to Russian timber plants. Similarly this and other countries supply Russia with machinery of all kinds, from oil digging to automobile making machinery, and they teach the Russians how to use the machines.

It could not be otherwise, for if one did not sell the other would. The way to meet competition is with efficiency, not with weeping.

Plea of Insanity Frees Boy Slayer

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 10.—(AP.)—Michael Burke, 16, was acquitted by reason of insanity last night of murder charges by a jury that heard evidence in connection with the slaying of John Fisher, a mechanic, in an attempted holdup last January. The boy's defense was paranoia, a form of insanity.

Gold Star Mothers Greeted in London

LONDON, June 10.—(AP.)—Twelve Negro gold star mothers, whose sons lost their lives while serving in the American Navy during the World War, have arrived here for a four-day visit. Army officials have made arrangements for their stay in the English capital, including sightseeing tours of the city.

STRIKE LEADER HELD AS RED

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 10.—Washington County authorities today were checking into the alleged Communistic activities of Adam Ghetto, leader of the insurgent miners at Ellsworth, where, Monday, a mob of several hundred men and women stormed a cordon of borough police who blocked a march on the Ellsworth Collieries of the Bethel Mines Corporation.

Ghetto, at the head of the strikers, was taken into custody in an exchange of tear gas and rocks and was charged with inciting to riot.

A book of dues stamps, countersigned with the initials U. S. and M. H., apparently some higher officials of the Communist party, were found in Ghetto's possession.

Authorities declare the stamps were given in exchange for dues collected by the Communist party from members of the National Miners' Union, which, it is declared, is an outlaw organization without charter or authority to negotiate with the coal operators. The union's international headquarters, it is said, is in Moscow, Russia.

Ghetto was held for court under $1,000 bond.

STRIKEBREAKER HURLS BRICKS

Two windows in the Penn-Yough Commissary Company, an employmetn agency at 511 Boulevard of the Allies, were broken today by an infuriated strikebreaker, according to police.

According to witnesses, a normal crowd of 100 men was in the vicinity of the agency when the strike-breaker, apparently angered by a thrashing he received at Kinloch, where he had been sent by the Penn-Yough company, burled two bricks at the windows. The policemen stationed in the vicinity dispersed the crowd, but made no arrests.

ESCORT LEAVES NAUTILUS FAR AT SEA

Wilkins 'Sub' Faces Long Trip Alone; Crew Happy, Determined to Succeed

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
By Radio Via American News Corporation and Radio Marine Corporation.

ABOARD THE SUBMARINE NAUTILUS, at Sea, June 10.—More than 1,000 miles from New York, plowing a lone, long trail, our strange craft is making a good 10 knots headway.

Our escort, the ice patrol cutter Pontchartrain, with Capt. Stromberg in command and bearing a band of newspaper and movie men, turned back.

FACE PERILS ALONE

We are glad of their company thus far. Fortunately we did not need their aid and now that we are by ourselves there is a brighter look, if that is possible, on the faces of the crew. They are a great crowd. They like to feel that from now on, God willing, we will do the job alone.

There might come a time, of course, when we will need help and we will be grateful for it as we have been for the help we have received in the past.

But on this vessel, the strangest no doubt that has swept across the Atlantic since the wartime raiders were recalled, one can sense the determined desire for accomplishment. We are as a child when it first walks alone.

CREW PLAYS BRIDGE

However, I did notice a group get out their bridge cards and play a rubber or two in their off watch.

Our radio is working splendidly, and the telephone as well. We exchanged conversation with the ice patrol cutter just before she left.

On board the Pontchartrain they had the crew lined up before a loudspeaker so that all heard Capt. Danenhower, through their skipper, thank them for their services. Then several members of our crew exchanged messages.

It was almost like being at a city office, except, of course, for the surroundings.

Tonight at the latest we should know whether we can afford to call at London for additional scientific gear and to keep a word of promise given early in the preparation of the North Pole expedition.

2 More Chicago Banks Close Doors

CHICAGO, June 10.—(AP.)—The Northwestern Trust and Savings bank failed to open today as the result of heavy withdrawals. It was one of the chain affiliated with the Foreman-State National group, whose $200,000,000 in resources were absorbed Monday by the First National Bank. Three other Foreman affiliates closed Monday, but one has since been absorbed.

The Second Northwestern State Bank and the Lincoln State Bank also closed today, making a total of 22 closed this week.

Erie Cadet Honored For West Point Work

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 10.—(AP.)—West Point's 41 honor cadets were decorated with gold stars at evening parade last night in keeping with a 113-year-old tradition. The cadets were honored for attaining a 92 per cent or better grade in all of their studies. Chester W. Ott, 744 East Twenty-sixth street, Erie, Pa., and Charles W. Thayer, of Villanova, Pa., are among the honor cadets.

Arson Seen as Fire Razes Mine Hospital

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 10.—(AP.)—A three-story frame hotel used as a temporary emergency hospital by the Sagamore Coal Company at Sagamore was destroyed today by fire believed of incendiary origin. There were no patients in the building. The loss was estimated at $15,000.

Coolidge Opposes U. S. Paying Europe to Disarm

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., June 16.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

An incomprehensible suggestion constantly appearing is that our taxpayers should pay the nations of Europe billions of dollars for disarming. This is presumably by a cancellation of their debts. It is difficult to connect cancellation and disarmament.

Mr. Coolidge

In the first place Europe agreed with Germany in the Versailles Treaty to disarm. That was part of the consideration for German disarming. To say the agreement was only to initiate disarmament is close to a quibble over words. The whole spirit of the treaty is reduced to armaments. There is no provision that we should pay for it.

In the next place the only logical reason why one nation should make any payment to another in relation to armaments is when they are to be increased by the receiving nation for the benefit of the paying nation. Our people believe in the principle of disarmament as a method of peace and relief from the burdens of expense armaments impose. We have disarmed on land and surrendered our place on the sea. We wanted less naval strength than others demanded. The suggestion that we should pay foreign nations for doing them the favor of helping them reduce their armament costs is hard to understand.

MORE WITNESSES CALLED IN CITY PURCHASING INQUIRY

GRAND JURORS BEGIN PROBE MONDAY

Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt announced today that additional subpenas will be served on witnesses to be summoned before the grand jury next Monday when the probe into the Department of Supplies will get under way. County detectives late yesterday started serving summons.

Judge George V. Moore, presiding in Criminal Court, yesterday instructed Langfitt to notify six grand jurors who had been temporarily excused to report Monday for duty. It is expected Judge Moore will ask the grand jury to make a presentment.

AUDITS STUDIED

Attorney Earl F. Reed, of the Citizens' Committee, who will be sworn in Monday as an assistant district attorney to help prosecute the case, is engaged in studying the dual audit. Assistant District Attorney W. H. Colvin is doing the same thing. Attorney Reed has been going over the Price, Waterhouse & Co. report, comparing it with the report of Main & Co., which made the audit for the Citizens' Committee.

City Council yesterday ordered a copy of the Price, Waterhouse & Co. report sent to City Solicitor Charles W. Waldschmidt, Controller James P. Kerr and Director Dunlap, of the Department of Supplies, for their opinion of the document.

Letting of a contract by the Department of Public Safety for the installation of Pittsburgh's signal system which, it is declared, should have been let by the Department of Supplies, is criticized in the report submitted to Controller Kerr.

SHUN CITY BUSINESS

The work went to the highest bidder, the General Electric Company, the report states, whereas, the lowest bidder was the American Gas Accumulator Company, which bid $59,875 as against $71,093 of the successful bidder. There is a notation, it is reported, that the rejection of the low bid was based on the bid not being up to specifications.

This item is included in the total of $131,733 that Council in 1930 authorized be paid for contracts awarded by various city departments.

In the Price, Waterhouse & Co. report it is pointed out that the business done by the L. H. Parke Company with the city in 1929 and 1930 totaled $82,000, or only 1 per cent of their total business. The report contains this statement:

"It is to be noted that L. H. Parke Company has refrained from participating in the bidding on any of the city's business so far in the year 1931. We understand this is the considered action until such time as their good faith and integrity in the matter of the 1929 and 1930 business with the city has been established."

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance persists off the Middle Atlantic coast, and, as a result, it is still raining over New Jersey, and northward over the New England coast. At Boston 4.22 inches of rain fell since yesterday morning. The western disturbance advanced somewhat further eastward, and cloudiness has already set in over the Ohio Valley states, and showers over the central valleys. Showers were quite general over the states west of the Mississippi, but the amounts of rainfall were light. Relatively high pressure over the Upper Ohio Valley and the Appalachian Mountains is attended by clear skies and cool weather. The temperature, however, is now rising.

River Conditions.

The Allegheny and the Ohio rivers are falling, while the Monongahela is still rising a little. Stage at Franklin is 5.5 feet; Lock No. 7, 13.8; Pittsburgh, 15.0; Dam No. 4, 12.3; Dam No. 6, 13.4; Dam No. 10, 15.0, and Dam No. 13, 15.8. The dams are down. The rivers will fall slowly.

EXPERTS READY WITH REPORT

The report of the engineers' committee on the methods used by city engineers in estimating and awarding contracts is expected to go to City Council today.

Samuel A. Taylor, chairman of the committee, has indicated that it will contain a number of constructive suggestions designed to improve practices in the Department of Public Works. A committee of five from the Engineers Society of Western Pennsylvania has been investigating over a period of five weeks.

The appointment of the committee resulted from the Henry Oliver Evans' investigation into the Department of Public Works. Evans charged that large increases in the final estimates of 68 city jobs indicated poor preliminary estimating by the city engineers.

On the committee are Mr. Taylor, J. N. Chester, C. S. Davis and E. K. Morse, consulting engineers, and A. G. Butler of the Byllesby Engineering and Management Corporation.

Jobless Munhall Man Kills Himself

With a bullet wound in his head and a revolver in his hand, Clyde Fleming, 32, of James street, Munhall, was found dead in the bathroom of his home this morning. Mrs. Fleming said her husband had been worried because of being out of work. Besides his widow he leaves two children, aged 3 and 5.

WOMAN FOUND STARVING

In a modest home at 1207 Pump way, Mrs. Bertha Davis, 44, today was starving to death, a neighbor reported.

Requests to charitable organizations have produced little relief. The neighbor, Mrs. Bessie Tryall, said the Department of Public Welfare responded twice with small orders for food; other charitable groups refused help.

Since January, when she fell down the front steps of her home, Mrs. Davis hasn't been able to work. Her gas and light were turned off; at night she lights candles. Her daughter, Lorraine, 14, is a high school student, and she hasn't seen her husband in years.

North Side police said they have appealed to the Department of Public Welfare several times.

BOY, 4, DROWNS AT HOMESTEAD

Falling from a float into the Monongahela River at the foot of West street, Homestead, Edward McAllister, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McAllister, of 3 Private street, Homestead, drowned last night.

The boy, according to the coroner's report, was playing with other children when he lost his balance and fell into the stream. His body was recovered a short time later and efforts of Homestead firemen and police to resuscitate him proved futile. The victim was taken to Homestead Hospital and pronounced dead.

The officers said they found a quantity of liquor in the car. The two occupants, Harold Painter and Franklin Spence, each 16, of Charleston, were held.

Bertillon Officer Slated for Firing

Sergt. George E. Brubach, chief bertillon officer in the City Detective Bureau, today was recommended for dismissal by the Police Trial Board. It was charged that when Brubach recognized a prisoner as one wanted for escaping from the Lansing (Mich.) Penitentiary, he wrote penitentiary officials and claimed a $100 reward without notifying his superiors.

Plea for Beer to Create Jobs Made to Hoover

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(INS.)—Demands of the anti-prohibitionists for restoration of 4 per cent beer as a means of relieving the unemployment situation, increasing federal revenues and opening stagnant markets were carried direct to President Hoover today by Representative Dyer (Rep.), of Missouri.

Quoting testimony of the late Actuary McCoy, of the Treasury Department, before the House Ways and Means Committee, Dyer told dthe President that a return to the legal manufacture and sale of beer would add $1,000,000,000 yearly to the income of the United States, of which about one-fourth would go to the federal treasury and the balance to the states and cities.

Meanwhile, it was learned today that Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, had been informed by the Law Enforcement Commission that it had made no survey relating to the economic effects of legalizing 4 per cent beer.

to have written that reply to the Pennsylvania senator's request that the results of such a study be made public.

New Kensington Gets Time Clock For Teachers

New Kensington High School teachers next term will punch a time clock. The school board has ordered the purchase of such a device, to be installed and ready for use when the schools open next fall.

E. T. Chapman, superintendent of schools said:

"It is the simplest way of knowing when the teachers arrive and, by its use, there will be no argument about the time of arrival and departure."

The high school has several entrances and it has been impossible to tell just what time teachers reached school, Supt. Chapman said. The clock will be installed in the principal's office.

OFFICER FREED IN GIRL CASE

Patrolman Andrew Lynd, of the Penn Avenue Station, accused by two city firemen of molesting two girls in Sandusky street last night, was discharged in North Side Police Court this morning when the firemen failed to substantiate their charge and the girls did not appear to testify. A similar charge against Andrew Arbanas, 25, of 4911 Penn avenue, arrested with Lynd, was dropped.

James Burke, of 940 Deely street, and George Lowrie, of 731 Sandusky street, the firemen, caused the arrests of Lynd and Arbanas when they told other police officers of the alleged molestation.

The girls said they were Sally Kelly, 24, and Sue Kelly, 27, sisters, of 204 Voskamp street. The address was found to be fictitious.

Lynd's suspension, made last night by Lieut. Zach Fleming, continued in effect today.

CLARA TO SPURN CONTRACTS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 10.—(AP.)—The life of a free lancer—unhampered by long-term contracts—is what Clara Bow would like to try when she regains her health and is ready to return to motion picture work.

The little red-haired film star, whose contract with Paramount Studio was canceled at her request, expressed this desire as she headed for her ranch in Nevada today. She said:

"As soon as I am able, I will become what is known as a free lance player, contracting for a single production at a time. In this manner I believe I will be able to get parts more suitable for me when the time comes for me to stage a comeback, if it can be called that."

PARENTS HELP ELOPERS

Pearl Levitin, 18, and her brother, Jacob, 23, of 531 North Homewood avenue, were on their honeymoons today after a telegram from their parents to the marriage license bureau in Wheeling, W. Va., averted postponement of the weddings.

Pearl applied yesterday afternoon for a license to wed Jules Rubenstein, and Jacob for one with Anna Davidow, both of Pittsburgh. License bureau officials refused to issue Pearl's because she was only 18.

She telephoned Pittsburgh and, upon receipt of a telegram bearing her parent's names, the license was issued.

Rum Charge Against Collegian Dropped

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 10.—(AP.)—A charge of possessing liquor against James L. Slocum, Pittsburgh, University of Michigan freshman, was dismissed in justice court yesterday upon motion of Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp.

Slocum and Lawrence L. Heideman, Laurium, Mich., were arrested when police visited their rooming house and found, officers said, a bottle of liquor in their room. They were held more than 24 hours before they furnished the information upon which police arrested Frank Schaar as the man from whom they procured the liquor.

Decision Delayed In Crain Inquiry

NEW YORK, June 10.—(INS.)—Decision in the investigation of charges of the City Club against District Attorney Crain will be delayed another week or 10 days, it was indicated today. Crain was accused of inefficiency and laxity.

Samuel Seabury, who conducted the inquiry, will make his report to Gov. Roosevelt. If the report recommends Crain's removal, Samuel Untermyer announced he would demand a public hearing.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 10.—(AP.)—Lieut. Arthur Kingham, stationed at Mather Field, joined the "Caterpillar Club" yesterday when he made a parachute leap from a pursuit plane and landed unscathed. His plane went out of control 1,500 feet in the air, from an unknown cause.

Woman Loses Plea To Oust Constable

Judge George V. Moore today refused to grant the petition of Mrs. Catherine McHugh, of 403 Jackson street, East End, who had asked that Leonard B. Miller's appointment as a deputy constable of the Fourteenth Ward be revoked. Mrs. McHugh charged that Miller treated roughly a woman roomer, whom he was arresting, in the McHugh house.

Rich Girl, Missing 4 Days, Found in Fish Plant

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., June 10.—(INS.)—Miss Catherine Bill, 26, daughter of a wealthy Cambridge coffee merchant, who disappeared from a summer cottage here last Saturday, was found today in the Provincetown cold storage fish plant. She had eluded searchers for 96 hours.

Chief Engineer Anthony Alves and Fireman Charles Edwards, of the cold storage plant, discovered the girl hiding in a warm part of the plant. She was attired in high rubber boots, oil pants and oil coat.

1,185 AWARDED DEGREES AT PITT TODAY

Dean of Harvard Delivers Commencement Address At Exercises in Mosque

Degrees were awarded to 1,185 students of the University of Pittsburgh at the annual June commencement exercises in Syria Mosque this morning. The commencement address was delivered by Dr. Henry W. Holmes, dean of the Graduate School of Education at Harvard University, on "Substance and Shadow in Education." H. Boyd Edwards, rector of the Church of the Ascension, offered the invocation.

Dr. Holmes decried the continuance of Latin instruction in college. It is, he said, of use only to a few students and therefore should be relegated to a comparatively minor place in the curriculum. He continued:

DR. HOLMES ADDRESS

Dr. Holmes said:

"The best part of culture is the part that gives us wisdom as to what we are living for; the best part of training for efficiency is the part that enables us to fit our job and our earnings into the task of enhancing general human welfare.

"Individual aims in education are the educations shadows.

"If we do not give to our education the substance that comes only from recognition of the social meaning of the process, our civilization will be overwhelmed."

HONORARY DEGREES

Three honorary degrees were conferred at the exercises by Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the university, to Dr. Holmes; Dr. Raleigh Russell Huggins, dean of the School of Medicine of the University of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Carl E. Seashore, dean of the Graduate School of the University of Iowa.

In the undergraduate schools, nine students were graduated with highest honors:

Edward M. L. Burchard, Edward T. Crowder, Samuel Goldstein, Robert C. McEwan, Vilma Minardi, Edward Albert Schultz, A. Arthur Newmark and Kathleen David. Fourteen were graduated with high honor, and 36 with honor.

Earl W. Myers was graduated with highest honor from the School of Dentistry, and three students with honor. Melvin W. Green received first honor in the School of Pharmacy, and two graduated from the School of Law with honor.

Sentenced to Death For Poisoning Wives

PARIS, June 10.—(AP.)—A Havas dispatch from Montpelier says that Dr. Laget, a dentist of Beziers, was sentenced to death by the Assizes Court for poisoning his two wives, who were sisters.

RUM ROW TALK HEARD HERE

NEW YORK, June 10.—(Universal.)—A remarkable word-picture of Rum Row, broadcast from a ship 18 miles at sea off New York, came over the air last night.

Ford Frick, New York Evening Journal broadcaster, interviewed the captain of a rum ship on the deck of a hossing boat, sent the result by short wave to Asbury Park, N. J., where it was relayed to the Columbia System's studio in New York and broadcast to WJAS, Pittsburgh, and other stations.

The rum ship's captain revealed that there is no more hi-jacking on Rum Row, because, he said, "the boys all are friendly now and everything's organized." He said an average of one cargo in five was lost, either through seizure or shipwreck, and that only 10 per cent of the liquor consumed actually comes from abroad.

TALKIES THIS YEAR IN PARKS

Free talking motion picture shows on Sundays will be inaugurated for the season about the middle of July in Schenley, Highland, East and McKinley parks.

Mayor Kline introduced the free shows in 1929. They continued for two years with silent pictures, but this year the Mayor was unable to obtain anything but talkies.

The 1931 budget contains an appropriation of $10,000 for the shows but it has developed from quotations by the Western Electric Company and the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Company that $19,500 will be needed this year to present sound pictures. The cost for the next two years would be about $12,000 each.

65 BOY SCOUTS TO GET PRIZES

Sixty-five Boy Scouts are to be awarded prizes for their work in the sixth annual traffic count conducted for the city bureau of traffic planning and the Better Traffic Committee May 26, it was announced today by Scout Executives A. T. Benson and Tom Venable, and City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre.

The prize winners were selected on the basis of the neatness and efficiency of their work. The five highest winners are Dwight Koerver, Troop 30; Andrew Maynosz, Troop 205; Ernest Turnbull, Troop 33; Lawrence Chaplin, Troop 59, and Joel Bennett, Troop 5. The awards will be made at a meeting to be held soon.

Good Drinks in U. S. Few, Tardieu Says

PARIS, June 10.—(AP.)—In the words of Andre Tardieu, minister of agriculture, it is easy to get something to drink in the United States, but hard to get something fit to drink. He said so at a banquet of the League of Prohibition Adversaries.

The chance of a lifetime in a dramatic event at Gimbels! Fully a million dollars' worth of wanted merchandise already marked at Gimbels low prices, at a reduction of 25%. Make your own reductions; select any merchandise that bears the orange signs and buy it at 25% less than the price marked. When you realize that in conforming to our price policy, Gimbels prices are always as low as or lower than any in Pittsburgh for like quality merchandise, you will appreciate what this 25% additional savings mean to Pittsburgh families.

It means having vastly more things for the same money, or having the things they have wanted, at tremendous savings.

We are doing this for two reasons: First, because it will enable all Pittsburgh to buy things for Summer at unheard-of prices; and, second, because we have more merchandise in the store than we should have at this time. Even in reducing stocks, Gimbels prefers to let you save at the height rather than at the end of the season. Every floor and every department in the Store (including the Downstairs Store) is sharing generously in this Sale. It is the one event of a lifetime that you can't afford to miss. BEAUTY REVEALS NEW SECRETS

Former 'Miss St. Louis' Tells of Companions Mate Hired

This is the fourteenth installment of her own life story by Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, recently acquitted in Nice, France, of the murder of her wealthy husband after a sensationally brief trial.

In previous chapters she told of her marriage to Mr. Nixon-Nirdlinger, their subsequent divorce and remarriage; the jealous quarrels that led to his disappearance; the automobile accident that changed his nature and the renewals of quarrels upon their last tragic trip together to Europe.

Today Charlotte produces excerpts from more of her husband's letters to friends. They reveal not only an interesting picture of life among the millionaires on the Riviera, but of the growing and muddled jealousies in the mind of the wealthy theater magnate.

By CHARLOTTE NIXON-NIRDLINGER

(Copyright, 1931, King Features Synd., Inc.)

NICE.

My husband's tirades against me and the gigolos might have been amusing were they not also tragic. As I said before, it was he who hired the gigolos. He knew that I loved to dance, that I loved to keep in rhythm with the strains of music. And he knew also that he didn't like to dance, but was afraid I might become restless, so he hired a gigolo.

That, of course, is not unusual in Europe, particularly in Paris and at the various summer and winter resorts, although it is rare in the United States. Most Americans couldn't imagine—until the movies revealed it to them—men hiring themselves out to women. But Europe looks at these things differently and takes its gigolos as a matter of course.

These gigolos are usually handsome, cultured men, who dance well, talk entertainingly and are acquainted with the best cafes and theaters. They are hired by and for two classes of women—elderly widows who want young companions to take them places, and young women whose elderly husbands haven't the time or the desire to entertain their own wives. I was in the latter category.

Feared Reproofs

When I went to a tea dance with a gigolo, Fred usually came along with us. From the moment I began to dance I could see him staring after me, watching every movement. I dreaded returning to the table because then he would start in to criticize me, accuse me of making eyes and, as he said in one letter, or dancing with my cheek too close to my partner's.

His letters reflected this jealous attitude as the weeks went on. Early in January of this year, for instance, he wrote one letter that reveals his mixed thinking, his unjust suspicions.

"I have just completed, thanks to the sunshine of Nice," he wrote, "my latest novel, entitled 'Sans Sheiks and Sans Sharks.' (Fred, of course, was spoofing here, as he had no literary inclinations except such as he confined to letters) "The first volume of this I have dedicated to my wife, the second to her swimming Romeo, who swims in the daytime and directs to speakeasies at night. A gay Lothario, this."

(Fred probably was referring to the Atlantic City swimming instructor. Although that incident long ago had been closed, it was still in his mind, still as threatening to him as ever. This, I think, shows how obsessed he was with his own suspicions.)

"Christmas Eve," he wrote in another letter, "was at the Mediterranee Palace, delightful, elegant, in fact, with the world's best. But we were just four ship-wrecked Americans out on a desert island, surrounded by nothing but food and drink. It's indeed a hard life. Oh, yes, here is a secret. While at this celebration, there was a delightful young woman, who had heard of my accident and wanted to know all about it. (Here Fred is referring to the automobile accident that resulted in his severe head injury.)

Tells of Pains

"Well, speaking of operations, as Irving Cobb would say, I told her I suffered no serious effect as yet, only a terrific pulling at the head and intense pain whenever there threatened a change in the weather. Then, do you know, she told me she broke her leg 10 years ago and still felt it every time it rained. The conversation then suddenly halted, and she looked at me so peculiarly. I know just what she was thinking. You see, I have something to look forward to. . . . I was thinking of the headache that is likely to last 10 years."

I quote this particularly because whenever this pain did come on, Fred became more unreasonable than ever before. In another letter, which indicates some of the reactions to bathing costumes, he wrote:

"Suggesting Ziegfeld Follies, reminds me that the bathing suits at Nice are not one piece; they are sort of one-half of 1 per cent. The women positively are shocking and the men!"

Suddenly, in this same letter—almost in the same paragraph—Fred switched to another subject.

"By heck, they now claim the American girls are ruining England and Central Europe. The aristocracy, and even royalty, are playing for the money bags of Papa Jingle, and allowing traditions, their lineage and family trees to go plumb to hell. And to think that Ziegfeld glorified them. It is perhaps just as well, as one cannot mortify them, and the flush of flesh, according to age, cannot be seen under the makeup."

Fred's Tirades

Fred's tirades against the younger generation and their supposed wildness was expressed in still another letter. I quote it here because it reflects his conversations with me. He was forever denouncing young people and their activities and I sometimes was made to feel that I symbolized the generation he despised.

"They thought the sports of St. Moritz great," Fred wrote, "especially the gay old buzzards;

Dancing Partners Move In Riviera's Most Exclusive Circles

they sat behind expensive cigars and bought drinks for their daughters after the bars closed, and then sat up with them and their elephant-hided maternals till day light to buy them ham and eggs and sausage and sauerkraut, just to prove they were not drunk and knew the contents of a side-car, a prairie oyster, a mountain and 996 other mixed drinks.

"Imagine my appreciation and delight at hearing the 15-year-old suckling and the 16-year-old wisenheimer tell us that the night before they had laid away a dozen young Oxford and Cambridge students who thought they could drink; they said they loved the babblings of the weaklings who could not stand their 40 cocktails, and the mothers gloated in the endurance accomplishments of their children.

"Gee! Ain't life grand? And what could be done here and thereabouts with an axe! Does not money do some folks a heap of good? Ain't education wonderful? It is not everyone, not even Americans, beach lizards and lice, that can be thrown out of three leadings bars in one evening and told never to return until they could act like and dance like ladies. Isn't it the truth?—success of money has killed more wise guys than failure."

Tomorrow I shall tell of the increasing quarrels that ended tragically.

Hospital Patient Leaps to Death

Daniel Ciganoch, 38, of 321 Ella street, McKees Rocks, a mental patient at Allegheny General Hospital, ended his life last night, deputy coroners reported, by leaping from a third floor porch roof of the hospital to the street.

Ciganoch, carried into the hospital after the plunge, died a few minutes later of a fractured skull.

LUTHERANS PICK CHAPLAINS

Sessions of the convention of the Eastern district of the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church, which opened here Monday, were being continued today in the First Trinity Lutheran Church, Neville street.

Regular sessions opened yesterday with an address by the Rev. F. C. Verwiebe, president of the district, followed by the election of the Rev. G. W. F. Doege, of the Second St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Pittsburgh, and the Rev. G. Mahler, of Syracuse, N. Y., as chaplains of the convention. An essay on "Church Union," delivered by the Rev. H. Bielenberg, of Christ Church, Oil City, was a feature of the afternoon session. The conference will close Friday.

SHALER SCHOOL BONDS VOTED

A $250,000 bond issue for the erection of a new junior-senior high school in Shaler Township was voted at an election held yesterday.

The proposed school, to be located in Mt. Royal boulevard, near Vilstack, is to be a 16-room building, equipped to provide all educational facilities provided by a first class high school, according to County Superintendent C. E. Dickey.

Full time academic courses as well as a complete commercial course and classes in industrial arts, will be provided.

At present the district has only one two-year high school at Braun.

Now Whiten Skin 3 to 5 Shades Overnight

New Way Removes Flaws Quickly

Instead of trying to cover up unsightly blackheads, freckles, weather stains and heart-breaking wrinkles — try this way that smooths the skin and whitens it — makes it three to five shades whiter overnight. It's the safest, surest way known, as any beauty authority will tell you, to make the skin lovely, pink and white and to keep it that way indefinitely.

Just get three ounces of Orchard White from any druggist and follow the easy directions. Pat a little into the skin at bedtime and by morning you can see a big improvement. Ugly flaws disappear. The skin gets whiter and soon it is satiny smooth, youthfully fresh and beautiful. What's more, it stays that way. For in Orchard White there's a remarkable ingredient not found in any other preparation. It preserves the beauty of the skin and protects it from the ravages of the wind, rain, sun and dirt. If you really want a smooth, soft, beautiful pink and white skin—try this successful way. You'll be happy that you did.

WOMAN GIVEN ROBBERY TERM

Pleading guilty to a robbery charge, Mrs. Lottie Apel, 28, 612 North Canal street, today began serving an indeterminate term of two months to two years in the Allegheny Workhouse, imposed by Judge George V. Moore. Her brother, Telford Wertheimer, 30, of 214 Goodrich street, North Side, was sentenced to serve five to 10 years in Western Penitentiary.

Mrs. Apel and Wertheimer named as an accomplice, Oliver Caldwell, who has not been apprehended. They testified the woman sat outside in an automobile while the two men entered a store at 205 Helen street, McKees Rocks, May 12. Two policemen interrupted the robbery and Mrs. Apel and her brother were captured, the other man escaping.

WELFARE BODY AIDS MANY

The Family Welfare Association, one of 39 welfare agencies in Allegheny County supported by the Welfare Fund, has helped hundreds of families during the past year, according to a statement given out today by the Welfare Fund. In addition to administering relief provided by the Allegheny County Emergency Association, the Family Welfare Association is spending more than $20,000 a month on relief, according to the statement.

ALL-EXPENSE TOURS

to Saguenay River in Old French-Canada

Sailings June to September

THE 9-day tour starts from Cleveland, although ships may be boarded at any stopping point, and takes you down the great St. Lawrence River that flows through picturesque, historic French-Canada. First you visit Niagara Falls and then steam across the Lake to Toronto, Queen City of Canada. Leaving Toronto you sail among the jewelled Thousand Islands and shoot in perfect safety the series of eight roaring rapids to Montreal. Here you sightsee for a day with hotel accommodation.

On to Quebec by night, down the best-lighted waterway in the world. Dawn finds you docked beneath the mist-wreathed ramparts of this fortress city. You spend a day on the return trip exploring its quaint, winding streets and promenading its famous Dufferin Terrace, which overlooks from on high the beautiful harbour. You visit the celebrated Shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupré. Miraculous cures are reported here and pilgrims journey from the four corners of the earth to worship at this hallowed spot.

Away down the widening reaches of the St. Lawrence to Murray Bay and peaceful Tadoussac. This little village, dreaming beneath its mountain background, is the last port of call before the awe-inspiring sail up the mysterious Saguenay River, guarded by its stupendous capes. A cruise into an old world that lies close at hand. See it before this corner of natural grandeur becomes part of all that is modern. Accommodation, both ship and hotel, is on the most luxurious scale.

Remember, every expense on this enjoyable cruise has been foreseen and included in the figure quoted above, as well as stop-overs at important hotels en route. A courteous escort relieves you of every travel worry.

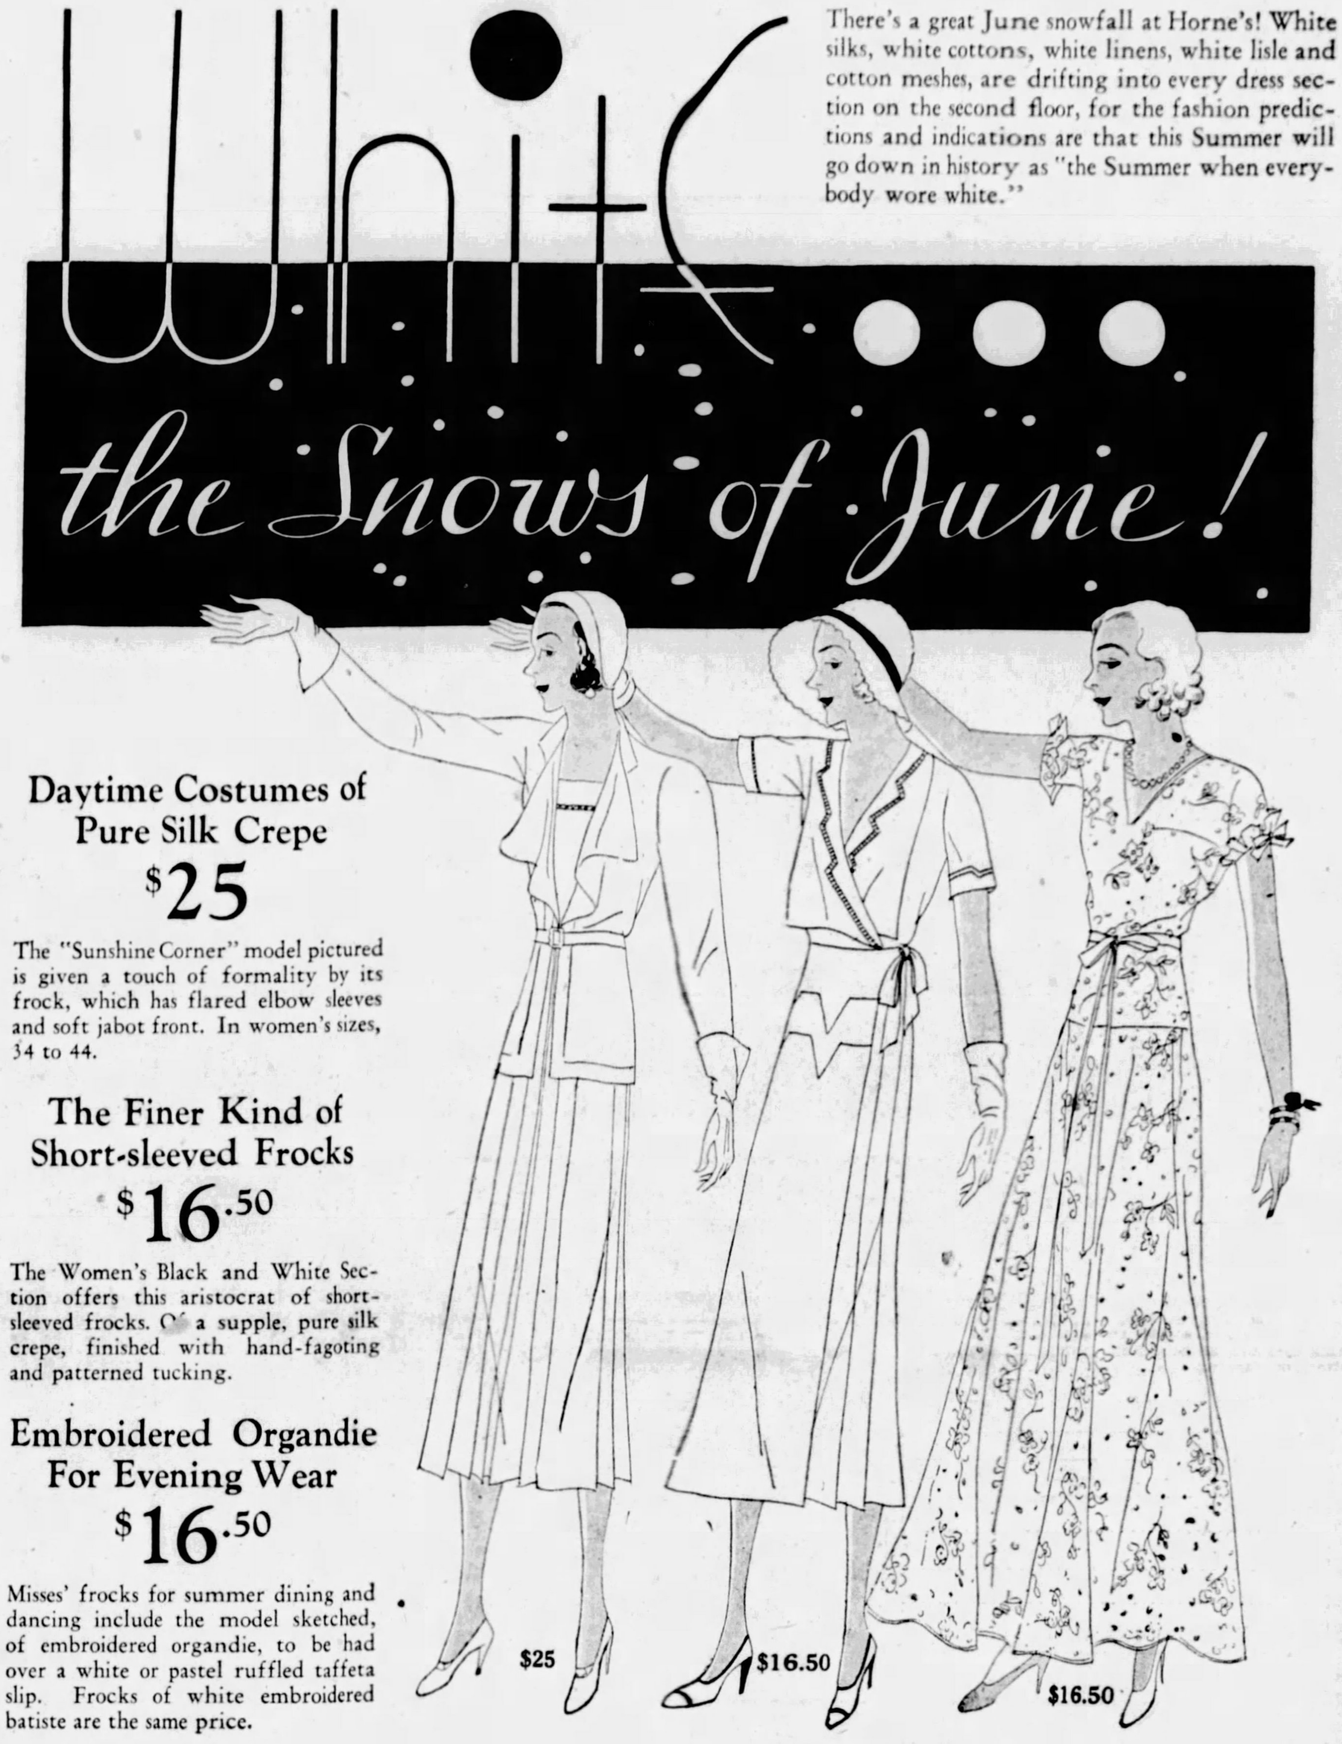
JOSEPH HORNE CO

THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL



There's a great June snowfall at Horne's! White silks, white cottons, white linens, white lisle and cotton meshes, are drifting into every dress section on the second floor, for the fashion predictions and indications are that this Summer will go down in history as "the Summer when everybody wore white."

Daytime Costumes of Pure Silk Crepe

The Finer Kind of Short-sleeved Frocks

$16.50

The Women's Black and White Section offers this aristocrat of short-sleeved frocks. Of a supple, pure silk crepe, finished with hand-fagoting and patterned tucking.

Embroidered Organdie For Evening Wear

$16.50

Misses' frocks for summer dining and dancing include the model sketched, of embroidered organdie, to be had over a white or pastel ruffled taffeta slip. Frocks of white embroidered batiste are the same price.

$25 $16.50 $16.50

A Golf Frock With a Hip Pocket

$15

This "Sunshine Corner" frock, of white shirting shantung, has its right-hand pocket on the hip instead of in front, to prevent interference with one's drive.

A Versatile Frock Of White Senoussi

$10

A smartly designed frock suited to both active and spectator sports wear. Of fine, white crepe senoussi, with colored belt of braided cotton.

White Boucle Outfits Of the Smarter Kind

$39.50

Gleaming white boucle is the chic, new thing for spectator sports wear, and the stitch of this three-piece outfit gives the impression of being hand-knitted. (Other white boucle outfits, $25 upward.)

For little stomachs with too much acid

Children are especially subject to the ills of excess acid. Sour stomach, biliousness, lack of spirits, etc., are usually the result. Quickly corrected by pleasant tasting

BRIOSCHI

(Pronounced Bree-osky)

All children like its fizzy just sweet enough taste. Quickly neutralizes the acid condition and is gently laxative, cleansing the delicate system of impurities. Give your children Brioschi. They'll like it and the results of too much acid will never trouble them.

Jolly Times in Denmark

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

See that Ruth Bryan Owen is off for an auto-trailer trip through Denmark with Fannie Hurst.

Just a couple of tin-can tourists on the old Gypsy trail. And a rattling good way of seeing the country and getting most of it into your mess kit.

Like Ruth Bryan and Fanny, we have always wanted to sail out on the clean sea track, Ruth says.

All my life I have wanted to go from town to town as a traveling musician does and see people that way."

Musicians don't do that any more, Ruthie, dearie. They broadcast.

We hope the trip is a success. We know that Fannie writes splendid novels. But that doesn't mean that she can cook.

If we remember Fannie's romance correctly we recall that her husband was limited to two breakfasts a week.

How do we know? It was in the papers. And, in case of a tie, Damon Runyon and myself had the next room to you in the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, 1920.

We would like to see that high-powered caravan rolling through the lanes of Europe. As an old retired inspector of vehicles we demand that this legend be lettered plainly on the truck.

Capacity, two gallons."

They are going to have a great journey. But if you have ever met Fannie you know it is going to be Ruth who is going to change the tires.

And if you have ever met Ruthie you know it is going to be Fannie who is going to fan the dishes.

So it looks like a co-operative expedition. It will be a modulated gypsying tour without the earrings, fortune telling and hoss-stealing.

This Man Saved $580 a Year on His Life Insurance Premiums

He carries something over $300,000 insurance on his life. All the policies were on a quarterly-premium basis.

Three years ago, a representative of The Colonial Trust Company pointed out that if he placed these policies on an annual-payment basis, he could save $430 in premiums each year.

An account was opened for him in The Colonial Trust Insurance Premium Payment Plan. Each month, he deposited here one-twelfth of his total annual premiums. Before the year was out, The Colonial had put every one of his policies on an annual payment basis and his $430 saving had been put into effect.

Besides that, his monthly deposits at The Colonial earned interest amounting to more than $150 a year.

You need not have $300,000 of life insurance to make a worth-while saving on your insurance premiums. Besides, The Colonial's plan of monthly payments on your insurance premiums makes them easier to meet.

Fill in the coupon below; we will send you full information about the plan.

MAN AND WIFE SUE POLICEMAN

Suit for $70,000 damages has been entered in Common Pleas Court by Carl J. Harley and wife, Eleanor, of Shadeland avenue, against F. A. Froehlich, a city policeman, who, the Harleys allege, charged them with having stolen his dog.

The Harleys say they were walking in McClure avenue, North Side, March 14, when Froehlich accused them of taking the dog, talking in so loud a voice that a crowd gathered. Harley was taken to the police station in a patrol, according to the suit, but Mrs. Harley was allowed to go to the station in a private automobile.

She was allowed to return home, but Harley, the suit says, was detained until he furnished bail. At a hearing next day he was discharged by Magistrate R. E. Schneider. Each of the couple asks $25,000 compensatory damages and $10,000 punitive damages.

COUNTY GRANTS CULVERT PLEA

County commissioners have agreed to grant a request by a delegation headed by W. E. Armstrong, chairman of Baldwin Township commissioners, for construction of a culvert costing $4,500 that would connect Elwyn road, under construction, with a tract of land ready for housing development.

J. Rogers Flannery and C. P. Mayer, heading a delegation from Bridgeville, were advised to get waivers of property damages, the commissioners promising then to consider financing the improvement of 3,900 feet of highway to connect Vanadium road with Bower Hill road at an estimated cost of $60,000.

Criterion Club To Open Year On Sept. 29

Book reviews, international questions, music and musicians, subjects of historical interest, political problems, inventions, art and even a discussion of spring flowers will make up a widely varied program for the Criterion Club next season. The year will begin September 29 with the customary social meeting at the home of the president, Robert T. Rossell, and Mrs. Rossell, in South Homewood avenue.

From discussion of "The Americanism of Mark Twain," "Literary Landmarks of the Middle West," "John Sebastian Bach" and "Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart" in October, the members will find themselves in November with a program that includes papers on "Maya Civilization," "Our Vanishing American," "Russia's Five-Year Plan" and a review of "The Spirit of Protestantism." At the one December session there will be heard a paper on "Developing the Creative Instinct Through Art" and a review of Van Loon's "R. V. R."

William Gates will discuss "Germany's Internal Problems" and Mrs. Albert E. Day, "Briand's United States of Europe," when the club convenes after the winter holiday and then at the later January meeting the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan will have as his interrogatory subject, "Will Our Ship of State Founder on the Rock of Municipal Corruption?" and Mrs. William M. Davidson will consider current events.

German Problems

At subsequent meetings papers will be given on "Audible Light-Television," "Great Modern Electricians," "Martha Berry," "Dickens As an Educator," "Oriental Religions," Zionism and Palestine," "New Orleans in History and Literature," "Charleston, the Historic and Beautiful," "The Pulitzer Awards" and "Early Spring Flowers," together with several book reviews.

HATS WITH WIDE BRIMS FOR FASHION AND PROTECTION

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 10.—The brim, these days, covers a large portion of the hat world. For, whatever our real feelings about the brimless versus the large hat may be, the rays of the sun decide the question. No wonder that women are often called illogical when they deliberately fare forth on very sunny days, wearing a hat that offers no protection at all from the actinic rays, and go out in the winter wearing a large brimmed model. But this year's crop of illogical ladies must be much decreased because every establishment reports an overwhelming demand for the hat with a brim that will act as a real protector from the sun.

Quite obviously we have emerged from the bronze age even if we are, financially speaking, still in the stony age. But to hurry back to our hats, Paris just now is very devoted to the hat of black straw with touches of white ribbon as trimming. However much we may give new color combinations the rush, we always return to black with white as though seeking to atone for our neglect. Paper-panama seems to be an immense favorite here just now, no doubt because it is so light and supple.

TODAY WE SHOW you sketches of two of the newest models and both have brims. The first is by Molyneux and is from his new summer collection. It is of black paper-panama and the ribbon encircling the crown and the quill placed flat on the upper side of the brim are white. Underneath the brim is a similar quill in gray. This hat is worn with a black, white and gray ensemble. The other sketch is of a Patou model, also in black paper-panama, and it has a wide, supple brim. The crown is pulled over slightly at one side, and two pleated fans of grosgrain ribbon, one white and the other black, are caught in the folds thus formed. Black and white grosgrain, superimposed, makes the band at the base of the crown and ends in three little tabs in front.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

CHICAGO, June 10.—East is east, west is west, and never the twain shall meet proved itself more than a poetic idyll last night when representatives of the American system of private ownership in broadcasting and Sir John C. W. Reith, director of the British Broadcasting Company, chief protagonist of government control of radio, exchanged ideas at the radio manufacturers' convention here. The American system of broadcasting would never go in England, said Sir John, and there was plenty of reverse English in what American broadcasters had to say of what they term a "British monopoly of radio."

Darrell V. Martin

Sir John was satisfied that the British have just the thing they want. Listeners pay a license fee of $2.50 a year, for which they receive in turn the choice of six programs an evening. British radio is controlled by royal charter which provides for five directors to preside over five regions of the British domain.

* * *

These directors are similar to our general radio commissioners, but they have greater power, having full say in determining what programs shall be distributed over the government stations. Besides the local station in these five districts, the BBC distributes a general program for all listeners from a 50,000-watt station at Daventry.

No commercial accounts are accepted by the British Broadcasting Company and all talent procured for personal appearances is paid for from the license fees exacted each year by the postman. Religious features are the most popular.

Sir John revealed that the BBC is planning to erect a new 250,000-watt plant to take the place of G5SW at Chelmsford, England, which has been contacted many times by KDKA in relaying foreign programs.

* * *

Sir John has just landed in America and was shaving in his New York hotel room, when he heard his first radio program. It was a coincidence that it should be a broadcast of the nightingale's voice direct from Surrey, by the Columbia Broadcasting System, working with G5SW.

* * *

Dr. Julius Klein forecast an early return of better business conditions in his address to R. M. A. delegates. Formation of a patent interchange agreement was forecast by Morris Metcalf, president, as a means to stabilize and improve the radio industry.

Rumor has it that J. Clark Coit will be the next president of R. M. A.

The radio editors adopted a resolution asking networks and individual stations to be more accurate in program releases. A survey disclosed that editors believe there is altogether too much advertising on the air.

Remember Alma Sioux Scarberry, former feature writer for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph? The writer met her yesterday. Her new name is Mrs. Theodore A. Klein. Her husband, an actor, is "Rowdy Dow" in the sketches of "The Girl Reporter" on WENR Tuesday night at 9 and Thursday night at 8:45. Mrs. Klein has written four novels since leaving Pittsburgh and is doing radio continuity work for the stations in Chicago.

Freeman Gosden, the Amos of Amos and Andy, has rallied from his illness but is still under doctor's care.

* * *

THE PENALTY OF GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—slipping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet, it is not at all necessary. Gray hair often comes to a young head and people who have it are neither old nor incapable. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restore hair to its original girlhood color. No complicated "color plan"; no danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprising what successful, youthifying results it gives.

Apply Canute Water yourself, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing; they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist—and get rid of the "age penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you; if not, he will refund your money. Sold and recommended by Kaufmann's, and all Mayflower Drug Stores, or your own druggist. The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

Nothing daunts the shotguns of radio this side of Valhalla in their efforts to startle the world. And they are undoubtedly trying to reach Valhalla.

That will be the next big thrill in radio—when, and if, it ever comes....Wonder how the broadcasters happened to overlook Piccard, the balloonist.... He is the only explorer of the last three years who has failed to speak to the armchairs of America.... Cheer-up speakers are elbowing their way to microphones. But no statistics of those Wall street victims who have been relieved of their woe by listening to cheer-up talks are yet available.

Charles G. Dawes' composition, "Melody," is frequently aired, but never from Dawes himself. Always wanted to hear Dawes play it. For that matter we've always wanted to hear the Prince of Wales play the saxophone.... That, of course, will be the millennium of British broadcasting.... Wonder what the Prince's favorite dance tune is today. It's nearly time for a music publisher's announcement.... Eulogies are becoming more and more common on the air. But no eulogies will ever compare to those which poured into Byrd's ears at Antartica.

Salaries of radio stars have not receded. Nor will they, spies report... But all the stars have a mark to shoot at—$17 per second, achieved by Sir Harry Lauder... Some announcers still have the annoying habit of saying before the band begins to play, "I know you'll like it." They might learn something from Ben Bernie, who says, "I hope you like it."... Why do Russian bassos have the lowest voices? They make the Volga seem the deepest river in the world.... Alfred Wallenstein is the only 'cello soloist on the networks. Strange the broadcaster's hesitancy in airing the most soothing of all string instruments.

Broadcasters are four years late in airing the Five-Year Plan.... Wonder how many tunes owe their inspiration to the rhythm of railroad car wheels... Ballyhoo is invariably disguised as "timely talk" when the sponsors of commercial programs themselves are led to the microphones. Timely talk, my eye.... The broadcasters have followed up their Ritz-Carlton conquest by storming the gates of—you've guessed it, of course... the Hotel Pierre.... Radio has not yet given refuge to the expression "Oh, yeah?"

Everything comes to radio sooner or later...even the reenacting of the wedding of Abraham Lincoln's parents...Radio's most difficult hurdle is spontaneous laughter....The only use of the expression "thank you" on the radio seems to be that of Major Bowes...Many of the big shots of the air are making hay while the radio sun shines. When the clouds of television appear they will scurry to cover...Flatter and flatter grows that portion of the town where Rockefeller speaks only to Roxy...Bigwigs are still wondering what to call it. They needn't worry. The public has already named it Radio City.

The broadcasters have yet to smoke out James M. Barrie. I doubt if they ever will...Child prodigies are fairly rare on the radio. And that is a big help ...Strange that set manufacturers have not yet adopted the slogan "two radios in every home"....What has become of the Hollywood theme song? Once it dominated the air waves ...Radio men hesitate to air Shakespeare for fear that ten million homes will echo the cry: "to be or not to be a radio listener"...Soothsayers still crowd to the miscrophones with advice on everything but the right stock to buy.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

Unsung New Yorkers

NEW YORK, June 10.

NOT LONG ago I devoted this column to a man who sent me a letter and described a day in the Tombs. I didn't know who the man was—and I still don't. Strangely enough, however, that column created a great deal of interest. Even Rosa, my expert cook, told me she enjoyed it. The reason for the applause, I suppose, is because I didn't write it.

At any rate, a similar epistle arrived the following day. This time, however, the letter was from a woman. It was signed merely "E. W.," and had been dispatched from Harlem jail. "I read your interesting account of a day in the Tombs," the woman wrote, "and it handed me a kick. Maybe I can do the same for you by giving you the reactions of a woman prisoner. Here we go."

A woman prisoner? Waiting for trial among women who are bound for reformatories and days of infernal hardships? Somehow or other, it's a tough subject. Things like that are so far away from most of us. I read the letter once and tossed it away.

A few minutes later, I picked it up and read it again. Then I decided to run it. Perhaps you will see why. Thus—

7:15 a. m.—We hear the keys rattle (we're usually awake) and our cells are unlocked. The doctor is our first visitor. When he is gone, the matron calls, "Breakfast, girls," and there is a wild scramble for the coffee and cereal. Strange thing about that food. There must be a shortage of sugar somewhere, for most of us have forgotten what it tastes like since we've been here. Meanwhile, like your correspondent from the Tombs last week, our coffee goes into the sink also.

7:30—The matron calls out the names for court. The scramble after that is highly amusing. The girls run wild in an effort to borrow lipstick, powder and rouge. They are only too anxious to borrow your only clothes in an attempt to make an impression on the judge.

It's surprising what you can do, Mr. Hellinger, when you have to. Did you ever know that a group of women would press their undies and their hankies by putting them between the blankets or sitting on them?

8:30—The matron calls, "Girls for court and workhouse." There are a lot of goodbyes and a few expressions of good luck. There are other types of expressions also. It's pathetic to watch some of these derelicts who once were women. I try to be cheerful as I look at them. But that's a tough job. Because it's easy to see your future self as they shuffle by.

9:01—We start to clean up the place. I mop and I sweep and I polish until I am half-dead. It all seems so futile because, within an hour, the place is just as bad as it was before.

I am the only girl in the place with a wrist watch. Every minute or two, someone asks me the time of day. I try to be civil in my responses but the thing gets on my nerves. What difference does time make anyhow?

I have been in here for 21 days and there are only three left who were here when I arrived. The women come and go—but we still remain because our bail is too high for anyone even to attempt to take us out. Sometimes a girl of intelligence is tossed with us for a day or two—and I make it my business to meet her. I haven't met anyone yet who wasn't going straight from then on.

But none of them can kid me, sir. They all say "Never Again"—until they're caught again. The only time to say "Never Again" is before you ever start.

12 o'clock—Dinner is served, if you please. Dinner consists of goulash and dry bread. Sometimes we have corned beef and beans.

The afternoon is a long and tiresome affair. What is there to do but gossip. And after the gossip is exhausted, then what? If the day is clear, we go into the courtyard and are permitted to jump rope or toss a ball about.

When the patrol wagon arrives, we sit around to get a look at the newcomers. It's like sitting around the railroad station in a one-horse town and watching the 5 o'clock express pull in at 6. The newcomers bring news of their experiences in the courts. After hearing the same stories three or four times, we leave the newcomers to themselves.

Around 4:30 the drug addicts become restless. I might describe some of their scenes to you but I'm afraid the wouldn't look so good in a family newspaper—regardless of the family. They are anxiously waiting for the return of the doctor who doesn't arrive until 7. Thus we have two and one-half hours of strange cries and appeals.

6 p. m.—Supper is served. The only difference between dinner and supper is the dessert. Ah, that dessert. It is usually prunes, but on occasion they open their hearts and give us figs. This is accompanied with tea—or rather, to be more correct, the essence of tea. I can assure you, Mr. Hellinger, that the Ritz was never like this.

After supper, we read, talk or write letters until bedtime. Incidentally, our bedtime in this spot is 8:30. It seems ridiculous to be compelled to crawl into bed at that hour as though we were so many infants. But come to think of it, if we had all been compelled to observe that rule while we were out, most of us wouldn't be in.

What do we talk about before bedtime? Who knows? The gossip of the day has all been exhausted. Every story—smutty or otherwise—has been told and retold until there isn't a woman in the place who doesn't know them all by heart.

It is in this place that my watch gets its heaviest play. It is not at all unusual for a woman to step over to me and smile.

"What time is it?" she will inquire.

"Seven o'clock." I will tell her.

Five minutes later she is back again.

"What time is it?" she will ask.

"Five minutes after 7." I will tell her.

It's all done very seriously. The woman is serious. So am I. I often think they ask the time only to kill time.

9 o'clock—We are all in bed as the lights go out. Sleep? Do not make me laugh. I am wished plenty of "good nights" by the other prisoners, but I haven't had one yet.

I must lie on a straw pillow and hard springs. Often, when my eyes will no longe stay open, I fall into a doze. But not for long. The other prisoners see to that. As they toss in their beds they get to thinking. And as they think they get to regretting. And as they regret they get to crying. So the moans and the groans must always mingle with the snores of those who are a little more calloused.

7:15 a. m.—The keys rattle in the door. A new day has arrived. Arrived for what—and for whom? . . .

Bucknell Student Receives Degree By Radio

LEWISBURG, Pa., June 10.—(AP.)—A Bucknell University senior received his degree by radio.

While his classmates were holding their commencement exercises, John T. Anderson, of Shickshinny, was lying ill in a sanitarium about 20 miles away. He listened in on a radio, and when his name was reached on the roll, he heard himself officially awarded the degree of bachelor of science in commerce and finance.

Slayer of Woman Given Life Term

PARSONS, W. Va., June 10.—(AP.)—Thomas J. Sites, 31, was convicted of murder in the first degree for the fatal shooting of Dolly Harper, by a jury which deliberated only 15 minutes late yesterday. The verdict carried a mercy recommendation, and the court imposed a life sentence.

Sites testified he shot the woman and wounded two men when he "heard the call of God."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 10.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Mellon and Mr. Stimson are going over to London to another conference. We say we are not going to cut down on the debt payments. We could write and tell 'em, but we like to get in wrong personally. We have another delegation at Geneva on dope. We want to limit the output. We don't manufacture it and the other nations do, so you know where that conference will end. We get nothing at a conference—only the trip. It looks like depression would hurt the conference business but it don't. They can always dig up enough to go and get in wrong.

Yours, WILL.

Sheraden Groups On Picnic Today

One of the largest picnic gatherings of the year was scheduled for Kennywood Park today. It is that of the Sheraden Board of Trade and schools and the Esplen schools. Special street cars were to run to and from the park, and there will be athletic events, swimming, dancing, amusements and refreshments for the picnickers. J. P. Werneth, secretary of the Board of Trade, and Rachel S. Cannell, of the Esplen schools, head the committees in charge.

Phila. Firm Buys $175,000 City Bonds

Councilmanic bonds totaling $175,000 have been sold to E. H. Rollins & Sons, Inc., of Philadelphia, for a premium of $7,027.50, under negotiations completed by Controller James P. Kerr. The Mellon National Bank of Pittsburg offered $5,311.03.

The issue was authorized to provide $100,000 for emergency work to help the unemployed and $75,000 for bridge projects.

SEEK TO PLACE BLAME FOR FAULTY SPAN

Commissioner Asks Report On Shade Run Project He Termed $200,000 Blunder

On motion of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, the Department of Public Works was asked to report promptly to the commissioners whether the county engineers or the contractor are responsible for the construction defects in Shade Run Bridge on Allegheny River boulevard and whether current repairs will result in a substantial structure.

McGovern called the bridge "a $200,000 blunder" last October, when cracks developed in the substructure as a result of the span sagging when a subterranean stream disturbed the footings.

ASKS ABOUT COST

At a commissioners' meeting yesterday, McGovern inquired as to the condition of the bridge and W. H. Kreiling, assistant director of the Public Works Department, replied "good."

McGovern then wanted to know why the concrete parapets or railings were being removed and Kreiling explained that they were being straightened. McGovern said:

"Who is going to pay for the work now being done, the county or the contractor? Is the county going to get $247,000 value in the bridge? Will repairs now being made give the people a substantial structure? Because, as it stands now, the foundations have cracks that you could throw a ham in."

SEEKS TO PLACE BLAME

Kreiling declared the foundations have been underpinned down to shale and that the bridge cannot settle further. He said the department has had daily reports on the condition of the bridge and that no settlements have been observed. Regarding responsibility for the cost of the various repairs, Kreiling said there might be something in the contract that would determine that question. McGovern said:

"You say there might be something in the contract saying whether the county engineers or the contractor is at fault. Don't you know?"

Kreiling said:

"No."

Slayer of Wife Doomed to Death

EBENSBURG, Pa., June 10.—(AP.)—Joe Roman, 38, of Amsbry, was convicted of first degree murder, with the jury recommending electrocution, here late yesterday. Roman was indicted for the fatal shooting of his wife, Martha, at Spindly City, last May 8. Roman pleaded temporary insanity brought on by repeated failure to bring about a reconciliation with his wife.

CLEANUP DRIVE CONTINUES

The city cleanup campaign, virtually completed on the North Side, will continue in other city wards and especially in the Hill district, according to Frank E. Richards, assistant superintendent of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers.

Heavy rains over the week-end held it up to some extent, as workmen and equipment were required to remove mud washed onto the streets.

Large quantities of ashes are being taken from the Hill district. An instance was reported where seven truckloads were removed from one back yard.

Warrant Says Brick Is Deadly Weapon

WHEELING, W. Va., June 10.—(AP.)—Armed with what a warrant describes as a "dangerous and deadly weapon—to wit, a brick," Joe Mackin, 23, Wheeling athlete, attempted to hold up a confectionery here yesterday, according to police, but was routed when the proprietor reached under the counter and brought up a pistol. Mackin was held to the grand jury.

PENNSY HEADS SCAN RAIL JOB

Pennsylvania Railroad officials from Philadelphia, Altoona and Pittsburgh were to witness the rolling of the first of the 152-pound rails ordered by the railroad, at the Edgar Thomson works of the Carnegie Steel Company, Braddock, at 11 a. m. today. The new rails will be used on the main line of the Pennsylvania between of which will be laid within a few days.

The rails are 32 pounds heavier than the ones now in use. They will be 39 feet long, weigh 152 pounds to the yard and will be three inches higher than rails now Pittsburgh and Altoona, the first used. It is estimated that they will permit a speed of 100 miles an hour by trains traveling over them.

Economy Hits Navy and Makes Guam Just a Park

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We are putting the Navy on the same basis as the parlor stove.

We are only going to feed it coal in the winter time.

The economy spasm also turns Guam into a national park. Guam is only 5,000 miles from California. Just far enough to give a hitch-hiker a sprained thumb.

Guam is another one of those hot potatoes we captured from Spain in 1898. It will make a nice public park and we don't need a navy when the roof isn't leaking.

In case of war we can let our sailors fight it out in a boarding house.

This year's graduation class at Annapolis will be given outboard motors and told to do the best it can. Things haven't been going right with the American fleet since Bill Taft's granite bathtub sunk the Mayflower.

We hate to see the Navy go. But the toughest blow falls on Southampton and Newport. Without admirals and commodores the society dowagers will have to dance with their own husbands.

From now on you can put Guam down as a government reservation where a basket party is actually welcome.

ORPHANS GIVEN AUTO OUTING

More than 450 children from eight orphanages are being entertained today at the twenty-seventh annual outing given them by the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh. One hundred cars carried the children in a parade through North Side and East End streets.

After a half-hour at Highland Park Zoo, the children were to be taken to Schenley Park for lunch and an afternoon of sports and games. The program is in charge of H. Lee Mason, Jr., president of the Automobile Club, and Paul C. Wolff, secretary.

Children from the following homes are participating: J. M. Gusky Hebrew Orphanage, Protestant Orphan Asylum, First Day Nursery and Temporary Home, Children's Temporary Home, St. Peter's Lutheran Home, United Presbyterian Home, Episcopal Church Home and Robert Boyd Ward Home for Children. Because of quarantine children from the Curtis and Raphael Homes were unable to attend this year.

EX-TREASURER OF FULTON INVOLVED

Box Office Employe Tells Of Reselling Admissions; Boy Involved in Fake

A girl, a boy and a man, former employes of the Fulton Theater, were held for court on larceny charges today, accused of swindling the theater out of $4,000 through resale of admission tickets.

Owen J. Cleary, assistant manager of the theater, told Magistrate Thomas Jones in Morals Court the theater had lost between $30 and $35 a day since early in December through the alleged plot.

The three are Mabel Daugherty, 26, of 928 North Lincoln avenue, a ticket seller; Robert Weiland, 17, of 28 Windsor street, a relief ticket seller, and John Mulkerin, 27, of 728 McClure avenue, Swissvale, treasurer of the theater until two weeks ago.

Cleary and City Detectives Guy Dailey and Robert Patton testified that Weiland, during his trick on the theater door, would keep tickets which he collected and turn them over to Miss Daugherty, who would resell them and pocket the money.

FETED ON 50TH YEAR AS PRIEST

A two-day celebration in honor of the golden anniversary of the priesthood of the Rev. D. J. Maladey, pastor of the Holy Rosary Parish, Homewood, was to be opened with a mass this morning. Father Maladey was assisted at mass by the Rev. Edward Soxman, the Rev. Raymond Mulvihill, the Rev. Howard Carroll, the Rev. J. Hanlon, the Rev. Coleman Carroll and the Rev. Raymond Buechel, all graduates of the Holy Rosary School. This afternoon an entertainment was to be given by the children of the school.

Father Maladey will be assisted in mass tomorrow morning by the Rev. M. P. Boyle, the Rev. A. R. Black, the Rev. F. J. Mueller and the Rev. Ralph Hayes, all former assistants of Father Maladey. The Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese, and Dr. E. A. Pace, of the Catholic University at Washington, will be present, and nearly 200 priests of the diocese are expected to attend. A banquet in the afternoon and a reception in the Westinghouse High School auditorium in the evening will close the festivities.

French Fliers Set Distance Record

MARIGNANE, France, June 10.—(AP.)—The French fliers Lebrix and Doret landed here at 3 a. m. today after having been in the air 71 hours and 13 minutes and having covered over 6,500 miles, to break, by a wide margin, the world's closed-circuit distance record.

The former record, 5,564 1/10 miles, was held by the Frenchmen Paillard and Mermoz.

Two Cadets Burned As Shells Explode

CULVER, Ind., June 10.—(AP.)—Two shells for a one-pound gun fired in a sham battle at Culver Military Academy exploded prematurely yesterday burning two cadets, one so seriously that doctors said he may lose his sight. Scranton Church Damaged by Bomb

SCRANTON, Pa., June 10.—(INS.)—St. Lucie's Catholic Church, in West Scranton, was bombed early today with damage estimated at $50,000. Seven valuable stained glass windows were blown out, marble statuary was torn from the walls and the church was flooded with water from broken pipes.

Mother Unaware Baby Died After Her Rescue Attempt

Unaware that her nine-month-old daughter, Yvonne, whom she heroically carried from her burning home yesterday, is dead, Mrs. Iva Cornell, 23, of Renton, Plum Township, was reported recovering from burns today in Citizens' General Hospital at New Kensington.

Working in the garden, Mrs. Cornell turned and saw her home, a frame structure, ablaze. She rushed into the house to the crib in which her baby was asleep. When she ran out with the child the clothing of both was ablaze. The mother and her baby were taken to the hospital where the infant died, but Mrs. Cornell was kept ignorant of the fact.

The fire, believed to have started from an overheated coal stove, destroyed the house.

Parading Firemen Pause To Fight Crash Fire

A parade of volunteer firemen of Western Pennsylvania at Belle Vernon was temporarily disrupted while firemen extinguished a burning truck after it crashed into a street car and overturned last night.

The accident occurred, police say, when a small truck driven by Joseph Studnicko, 35, of Fair' ope, ran wild as 25 voulnteer fire companies paraded. The truck crashed head-on into a street car and took fire.

Studnicko was injured when he was thrown from the machine. Two girl passengers, Ada Moody, 19, and Mary Soltz, 18, of Fayette City, were treated by bruises at Charleroi Hospital and sent home, according to authorities.

FISHER UNABLE TO SEE END OF DEPRESSION

Former Governor, Here in Business Capacity, Cites Surpluses as Drawback

Nobody can tell when the present depression will end, former Gov. John S. Fisher said today in his first public interview as chairman of the board of directors of the National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, 139 University place, Oakland, which position he was recently elected.

E. Cole is president of the company and A. W. Mellon is vice president.

The former Governor said he will keep his residence in Indiana, Pa., but will spend the working days in Pittsburgh, he said.

Regarding the business depression, Fisher said:

"No one can tell when the many widespread influences will expend themselves. This depression is different from all others in that it is the result of an overabundance of nearly everything entering into business conditions.

"Even money has little use and earning value. The oversubscription of the recent offerings of securities by the government is an indication of the abundance of money and its availability for business purposes as soon as conditions warrant.

"We are suffering from a business lull, as a result of which we will gather energy for greater business achievement in the future."

KEEP KISSABLE WITH OLD GOLDS

OLD GOLDS were created to give you THROAT-EASE . . . as well as a more delightful tasting cigarette. But the makers also considered your breath, your lips, your teeth, as well as your THROAT.

They created a pure-tobacco cigarette . . . entirely free of coriander and other greasy artificial flavorings* that burn into clinging, staining, breath-tainting vapors.

To avoid unpleasant aftermaths, smoke pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS. Their clean, sun-ripened, natural-flavored tobaccos will be like honey to your THROAT. And they leave no objectionable odors either on your breath or clothing, or in the room.

HERE'S THE PROOF *

Open up a pack of OLD GOLDS and smell the tobacco. Do the same with any other cigarette. Judge for yourself which has the natural, pleasant, all-tobacco aroma. It's a favor to your family and friends, as well as to yourself, to smoke NATURAL-FLAVORED, pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS.

DEBATE ON JOB FUND STAGED BY BANKERS

Philadelphia Team Wins on Negative; Boat Ride and Picnic on Schedule Today

Philadelphia won over Los Angeles in a debate which featured last night's program of the twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Institute of Banking in session at the William Penn Hotel. The question debated was "Resolved, That the Several States Should Enact Legislation Providing for Compulsory Unemployment Insurance to Which the Employers Shall Contribute."

The Philadelphia team, taking the negative, was composed of Edward F. Matthews, of the First National Bank; William K. Carr, Central Trust and Savings Bank; Harry C. Culshaw, Franklin Trust Company, and Albert W. Whittesey, alternate.

The Los Angeles team was composed of Robert L. Gordon, Bank of America; Harold P. Cunningham, First National Bank; Murray M. Chotiner, Bank of America, National Trust and Savings Association, and L. O. Griffiths, California Bank, alternate.

The public speaking contest for the A. P. Giannini Endowment Fund was won by Walter C. Brinker, Jr., of Denver; John M. Gordon, Los Angeles; V. B. Pitts, Wichita, and Harold W. Wallgren, of Philadelphia.

The convention conferences today will recess at 1 p. m. for an outing at Kennywood Park. The steamer Washington will leave the foot of Wood street at 1 p. m. to sail down the Ohio River and will connect with special trains at Legionville for the park.

In eight simultaneous departmental conferences yesterday, papers covering a broad field of practical bank work were the basis for special discussion.

J. A. Avary, Jr., Atlanta, Ga., speaking on business development and advertising, said that Pittsburgh had given the world its master salesman, Charles M. Schwab.

KIDNAPING ONLY PAIR'S SPAT

With the arrest of David P. Luck, 21, a Negro, of 1306 Wylie avenue, in connection with the alleged abduction of a young woman at Louisa and Atwood streets, reported yesterday, Oakland police today said it was "merely a fight between a man and his girl friend."

First reports to police were that the young woman was beaten and dragged into the automobile by two men. Luck explained the man and woman, both white, were friends and had a disagreement. The woman, he said, refused to get into the machine. Police traced ownership of the machine through the license number. Search is being continued for the other two.

Show Girls Dumb? No! Declares Writer

NEW YORK, June 10.—(Universal.)—Chorus girls are dumb. Minister's sons are bad. Geniuses are immoral. Red flags anger bulls.

These and many other popular fancies are fallacies, Albert E. Wiggam, authority on heredity, says in the July issue of Cosmopolitan. He cites figures to disprove the popular theories.

And speaking of history, he asserts Betsy Ross probably had nothing to do with making the American flag, and that Nero was a busy fireman rather than a fiddler as Rome burned.

Another timely news event caught by the news reel is the departure of the Polar submarine Nautilus on the first leg of its trip. The submarine is shown as it leaves Provincetown, Mass., and heads for Europe. Sir Hubert Wilkins and Capt. Danenhower, navigator, speak.

Other views show Col. Lindbergh and his wife trying out the plane in which they will fly to the Orient; Melvin Kunz, animal trainer, wrestling with a lion, and British Legionnaires honoring their war dead on Legion Day.

NEW IRON HAUL RATES IN USE

New tariffs prescribed by the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission on short hauls of iron and steel became effective today on all carriers in the Pittsburgh industrial district, according to Donald C. Moore, traffic manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The new scale, drawn up by the commission after its suspension of the rate scale put into effect May 20, 1930, will apply to the transportation of iron and steel products within a 50-mile radius of Pittsburgh. The new scale will in many cases save manufacturers 50 cents a ton in transportation costs.

Funeral services were held last night in his home for John S. Gasmire, 77, of 1327 Jeffres street, Sheraden, who died Saturday morning in the Presbyterian Hospital. Burial took place this morning in Uniondale Cemetery. Mr. Gasmire, born in Wheeling, was a retired glassworker. He was a member of the First Christian Church, North Side. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Sophia Gasmire; three sons, Albert Gasmire, of Pittsburgh; Charles Gasmire, of Louisville, O., and John Gasmire, of Follansbee, W. Va., and four daughters, Mrs. George H. Blackstack, of Greenville, Pa.; Mrs. Charles Gotter, of Louisville, O.; Mrs. John M. Blogg, and Mrs. Ralph D. Swaim, of Pittsburgh.

Bedford Funeral.

Funeral services were to be held today for Mrs. Rose Anna Evans Bedford, 74, widow of Jason Bedford, who died Monday in the home of her sister, Mrs. George Logue, 5151 Penn avenue. The services were to be in the funeral home of Grime & Blair, 4112 Main street, with burial in Allegheny Cemetery. Mrs. Bedford was born in Curtin, Pa., and was a school teacher in Williamsport, Pa., for many years. She retired 20 years ago and for the last three years had resided in Pittsburgh. She leaves a brother, John Evans, of North Bend, Pa., and two sisters, Mrs. Logue and Mrs. Bertha Taylor, of Pittsburgh.

COUNCIL MOVES TO CUT COSTS OF DAMAGES

Full Information Sought On Property Value Where Improvements Are Desired

On motion of Chairman W. Y. English, of the Finance Committee, Council has adopted a policy expected to reduce the cost of public improvements by cutting down excessive property damage claims.

English's plan is to have Council fully informed, through the co-operation of the Mayor, city solicitor, public works director, city assessor and members of the Planning Commission, of the value of all land needed for a public improvement before passage of legislation for the project.

It frequently turns out that the damage claim of owners of property taken for improvements are many times higher than the city's assessed valuation of the property. The city is not permitted by law to use the assessed valuation as evidenced in proceedings in court or before the Board of Viewers.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt declared he has been thwarted in two sessions of the Legislature in attempts to have an act passed that would permit the city to use the assessed valuation as a basis for settling damage claims.

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 10.

Out of the woes of disillusioned foreign war veterans has sprung a prosperous Hollywood business.

Conducted by A. W. Hazelton this trade can best be defined as the medal-renting industry. His collection, gathered from war veterans of many nationalities, numbers more than 2,000.

These he rents to motion picture studios at prices ranging from $1.25 to $50 a week.

Most valuable of the medals is the British army's Victoria Cross, which sells for $875 at auction, and rents for $50 a week, plus a deposit of $500.

Lilyan Tashman

Because it is possible to obtain any number of Croix de Guerres, Hazelton only asks $1.25 a week for the use of the French decoration.

It is impossible to buy American medals, according to Hazelton, since there is a law prohibiting it. A studio, to obtain permission to photograph the Medal of Honor must refer to the War Department. Once this is secured, the decoration must be returned to its owner at the end of each day's use, states Hazelton.

One of the most profitable weeks the collector has ever had came in the form of a check for $300 from R. K. O. It was in payment for eight medals worn by a single actor in the film, "The Royal Bed."

Naturally, the gangster pictures have muscled into his profits, and the forthcoming gigolo dramas will not help. However, there is usually enough war references in the movies to make his business successful.

PARAMOUNT BUYS PICTURES

Along with others that have found places on good programs comes "The Mad Parade," which Paramount has purchased from Liberty Productions.

This film was formerly "Women Like Me," and has an imposing all-woman cast, including Lilyan Tashman, Evelyn Brent, Sally Eilers, Louise Fazenda and others.

The studio's postponement of "Step Daughters of War," for Ruth Chatterton may have been prompted by the purchase of the independent film as it tells of the woman's side of the conflict.

THE TRUTH WILL OUT

When Junior Laemmle left for New York he sent a memo to an aide requesting that the fireplace be removed from his office.

"I'll bet he's found out about Santa Claus," mused the assistant as he received the instructions.

LATEST GOSSIP

Upon the completion of her first leading role in "Never the Twain Shall Meet," Conchita Montenegro has gone to Spain. She will return in the fall. . . . Paul Bern is sending letters to the top-salaried people in the picture colony in an attempt to raise $2,000 a week to assist in providing for hungry children in the city. No doubt this amount will be obtained, as the industry is always liberal in response to charity. . . . Wynne Gibson is the latest golf enthusiast among the feminine players. Thirty-six holes a day when she is not working. . . . Dorothy Jordan and Donald Dillaway are romancing. This is quite serious, according to the gossipers. . . . The prolific writer and director, Rowland Brown, has completed a new play dealing with fisticuffs. "Gallery God" is the title. There is talk of it being produced locally. Brown also has an idea for a movie in which the camera will never be stationary. It will be one continuous shot from the beginning to the end. What a headache for a cameraman.

Dorothy Jordan

River Drama

Frances Golden will have a dramatic role in "The Lure of the City," romantic melodrama, which will mark the opening of the Golden Rod Showboat at Montrose tomorrow night.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Ziegfeld's cast for his new "Follies," which will have its premiere in the Nixon next Monday, sounds like that proverbial million bucks at the current rate of discount. Even with the repression and everything that shouldn't be high. Here are the most principal principals. Look 'em over: Helen Morgan, Ruth Etting, Harry Richman, Gladys Glad, Jack Pearl, Viola Tree, Ethel Borden, Pearl Osgood, Frank and Milt Britton and gang, Mitzi Mayfair, Buck and Bubbles, Reri, South Seas dancer, and the Howard twin sisters. The American girl, "glorified" by the production, will be present to the number of 65—count 'em'—65. And that doesn't mean age!

Small Timer says his theater boasts about its cooling system, but that he notices the cooing system appears to be quite popular when the lights are dimmed for the screen feature.

Capt. Menke, with his showboat, Golden Rod, all newly painted before being towed from its winter mooring place in downtown Pittsburgh to Montrose, will pry open another summer season tomorrow night. His new company will make its bow in "Lure of the City." It is classified as a melodrama. Blonde Virginia Dale is the leading woman.

* * *

Small Timer says that he doesn't mind waiting for his wife to make her appearance because when she finally comes downstairs she bears evidence that it has been well made.

Peanuts, toy balloons, lemonade, ice cream cones will get a heavy play next Monday and Tuesday in the vicinity of Penn and Fifth avenues. Incidental to the consumption of these delicacies there will be—must you be told—a circus. Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey—no less. This "greatest show on earth" is an annual visitor and the grown-up population is all of an edge because the kiddies are so anxious to go. The elders, of course, wouldn't be bothered if they didn't have to take the young ones.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Hypocrite

I will come back to you some fragrant night,
A dusty vagrant weary of the trail;
I will weave tales for your naive delight,
And watch your childish color glow and pale.

I will be tender, reminiscent, sad,
And touch on scenes that are forever dead;
Then I will ask you of the newest lad,
And brush a tear away and bow my head.

We will recapture romance once again,
Glamour will tint each trite and shop-worn phrase;
And from your lips, like roses after rain,
I will hear praise of those enraptured days.

Then with a long and deep romantic sigh,
I will bow low and whisper my "good-bye!"
—The Old "Heart."

Strictly Kosher

Winnie Sheehan, one of the bigger movie moguls, told how startled he was while shopping at Sing Fat & Co., in San Francisco. It is one of the larger oriental places and they offer grand bargains, it appears.

Sheehan had admired an article and asked the almond-eyed Mr. Fat the price of it.

"I must ask $5,000 for it," said the chinky.

"Can't you make it any less?" bargained Winnie.

"Well, mebbe," replied Mr. Fat. "Will you wait a moment until I call my partner?"

"To be sure," obliged Winnie.

To which Mr. Fat cupped his hands to his mouth and called:

"Oh, Mr. Siegel!"

The Retort Swelegant

It happened at the Penn Roof where Rudy Vallee's orchestra pashes up the melodies. James Caulfield's girl friend paused while dancing by Rudy and cooed:

"Would you be so gracious as to play 'Moonlight Saving Time'?"

"With the greatest of animosity!"

To which the gel snapped:

"Thanks—abominably."

As If We Didn't Know

And Fred Allen says that things are getting so tough that the blind men are panhandling each other!

Oop!

Take it from George Stark, of the Detroit Athletic Club when Baird Leonard was doing columns for the N. Y. Morning Telegraph, an editor toyed with her stuff, and she went a little mad. She complained bitterly to the publisher, who sent a memo to the annoying editor, a copy of the memo going to Miss Leonard.

It read:

Hurrayc

You've probably read about the racketeers who corner pedestrians and offer them furs at a low cost. The skins invariably aren't worth the $25 you pay. Well, you would have been delighted were you on West Forty-eighth street the other sundown.

A pair of "express wagon" impresarios pulled a chumpy-looking prospect into a hallway to offer him a "bargain" on a "hot" piece of "silver fox."

Just as the "salesman" pulled out his bankroll to change the "chump's" $100 bill the "chump" whipped out a .32 and gave him that "stick 'em up" business. Then he lammed it with his money, fading into the throngs near Sixth avenue.

It was among the minor thrills.

In Other Words

Mr. T. Buttikofer, of a prominent magazine group, offers this as a Depression Diagnosis:

"First, we must ascertain and analyze the underlying economic, financial, commercial, industrial, social, moral and related Causes; second, learn to face the facts Courageously and Intelligently, and third, find a Leadership."

And then starve as usual.

Lines to a Guy

Here are all your letters,
Tied with mangy string.
Here's your picture covered with dust,
Here's your ring;
Glad that we have called it quits,
Glad to start life fresh anew,
Glad to write another poem,
—And you?

—Marjorie Lee Howard.

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the simile dictionary: Norman Sullivan: As unexciting as pay day at New York Police Headquarters. . . . Knew the ABC's like a Scot's typewriter ribbon. . . . Bought and paid for like a headwaiter's smile. . . . D. L. Cotie: Tight as a dollar shirt after its first washing. . . . D. Murray: Easy as finding something wrong with a used car. . . . Tom J. Geraghty: Guilty looking as an innocent man accused of a crime. . . . Contented and happy as a waving field of ripe corn. . . . Ellis R. Farber: A kiss without a caress is like a steak without Worcestershire sauce. . . . L. Elinson: Busy as a spotlight man during a bicycle act. . . . Roy Halee: About as enthusiastic as La Guinan singing the "Marseillaise."

Sotto Voce

D. C.: We're all hysterical.
Marge Mafler: No like.
Ted Harrison: Haw!

Nifty

It happened in the Broadway Sector the other yawning. Two columnists were praising their comtemporaries.

A momentary hush followed. Then one of them flipped:

"Who do you hope it is?"

'GARDEN' SOLD FOR TAXES

Collection of $50,873.35 in overdue taxes from the Duquesne Arena Company, operators of Duquesne Garden, was announced today by City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley.

The taxes, representing accumulation since 1925, were obtained through a sheriff's sale of the Garden. It was purchased by its former owners, the Duquesne Traction Company.

Schooley said $12,222 or the amount was for water, $12,026 for school, and the remainder for city property taxes.

Horace H. (Hud) Townsend was president of the Duquesne Arena Company, and his brother, Edward, superintendent of city property and chairman of the Twentieth Ward Republican Committee, a member of the board of directors.

BANKER'S AIDE ON STAND

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 10.—E. K. Dick, secretary and treasurer of the defunct Title and Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania in Connellsville, today continued his testimony relative to the bank's handling of the accounts of the Waynesburg Coal Company, at the trial of L. F. Ruth, president, charged with misapplication of funds.

Judge Thomas H. Hudson overruled a motion by the defense to strike out the evidence. The court held all matters pertaining to the $60,000 mortgage of the coal company, of which Ruth was the head, were relevant.

NEW TAXI FIRM ASKS PERMIT

HARRISBURG, June 10.—The Hiland Taxicab Company, of Pittsburgh, today applied to the Public Service Commission to operate in Pittsburgh. The commission last November refused a similar application.

A fleet of 200 cabs would be operated in the city. The promoters say they plan to invest $300,000 in equipment if the commission approves the application.

West End Residents Hold Park Outing

Several thousand residents of the West End and Elliott districts were at West View Park today, participating in the annual picnic under the auspices of the West End Board of Trade. A committee, headed by C. A. Shaner, Jr., arranged the program. The Thaddeus Stevens and Westlake schools are joining in the outing. Guardian Angel Catholic Church is also picnicking at West View today.

Rich Man Divorces Wife Tardy at Her Wedding

BOSTON, Mass., June 10.—(INS.)—Charging his bride with being an hour late to their wedding, two years ago, William L. Terhune, 82, millionaire president of the Square and Compass Club, obtained a divorce in Suffolk County Court from Leola Benedict Terhune, 46, of New York and Washington.

The aged millionaire charged his wife was "abusive and sarcastic" and that she had corresponded with a Belgian count. She did not contest the case.

$1,000,000 Left By Slain Politician

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—(AP.)—The will of Charles H. Crawford, politician, on file for probate today, revealed that five days before he and his associate, Herbert F. Spencer, were shot and killed, Crawford transferred to his wife nearly $1,000,000 worth of property.

ZIONISTS PLAN TRIP TO MEET

Several Pittsburghers will be included in the large American delegation to the World Zionist Congress to be held this month in Basel, Switzerland, it was stated last night at a meeting of the Maccabean Zion Camp, in the Y. M. and W. H. A. Building. Rabbi A. M. Ashinsky, who recently returned to Pittsburgh from Detroit after an absence of several years, addressed the gathering.

Rabbi Ashinsky discussed World Zionist leadership. The problem of leadership arose with the resignation of Prof. Chaim Weizmann as world president of the Zionist organization. Strong opposition to the old regime is said to be voiced by the Zionists headed by V. Zabotinsky and groups in Poland.

AUTO WRECKED IN OLD MINE

The old surface coal mine on the farm of C. C. Meyer, at Presto, long known as a graveyard for automobiles, gave up another wreck today with the finding of a sedan.

According to Constable Harry Sizer, the machine had been pushed up a small embankment and over the hill into one of the small lake craters which dot the area. Police are investigating.

During the last few years a number of machines have been found on the farm, according to police, some of which still remain submerged in the various craters.

THE new Humidor Pack has made millions of people mighty particular about their cigarettes.

For once you have smoked Camels, known all the delights of the Camel blend of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos in fresh, factory-prime condition, it is hard to endure the sting and bite of parched-dry, stale cigarettes.

Cigarettes wrapped the ordinary way begin to lose their moisture and flavor as soon as they leave the factory.

Not so with Camels. An outer wrapping of moisture-proof Cellophane air-seals all the natural moisture and rare flavor in and keeps out the dust and germs.

That's one of the "why's" of the great national switch to Camels.

That's why in any climate, in any land you are always sure the Camels you buy will be fresh and flavorful and mild.

If you're hard to convince, surely you have an open mind. Just switch over to Camels for one day, then leave them—if you can.

Tune in CAMEL QUARTER HOUR featuring Morton Downey and Tony Wons Columbia Broadcasting System—every night except Sunday

CAMELS

NO CIGARETTY AFTER-TASTE

Don't remove the moisture-proof Cellophane from your package of Camels after you open it. The Humidor Pack is protection against sweat, dust and germs. It delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until you smoke the last one

Don't Wreck Your Life by Marrying Without Love

He got all likkered up and told the little girl he loved her.

He's sober now . . . and in a heck of a jam because she's weeping all over the lot and says if she can't have him she'll never marry at all.

Because a girl can have only one real love, and he's it.

Dear Sally Martin:

I seem to be in a terrible mess. I'll admit it was all my own fault to begin with, but I would give a lot to be out of it and back to normal again.

RETRACTED STATEMENTS

About three years ago I met a girl . . . a very charming girl, and we became great friends. I took her out quite frequently and one night I took a few drinks when we were at a dance. It must have been the drinks that caused me to make love to her. I told her I was crazy about her and a few other things . . . and she took me seriously and replied that she had loved me since the day we met.

Well, when I sobered up I tried to tell her that I hadn't meant it . . . wasn't in love with her, and didn't want to get married. But she just cried and said she wouldn't know what to do with her life if she ever lost me. That if she couldn't have me, she would never marry anyone, because a girl can have only one real love. Big tears rolled down her cheeks and I felt terribly sorry that I had hurt her.

CAN'T DISCOURAGE HER

I tried to tell her that she should snap out of it. But she is making herself miserable by crying about it all the time. She has had several proposals of marriage from other fellows but has refused them because of me.

I might take her more seriously, but I have found out that she had stepped around on the loose (and this is no guesswork on my part—she admits it). No, I don't want to marry her. She has threatened to jump in the river if I don't. At parties she'll say, "You can be one, I can't." Etc., and look straight at me although I don't take her seriously any more and have made every effort to discourage her.

What can I do? I seem to be the cause of wrecking her life. I wish I could cure her of her infatuation, but I don't seem able to. Must I throw my life away in marrying a girl I don't love to save her from herself?

IRVIN.

Why should you, son?

I'll admit you put yourself on the spot when you let booze trip you into making a lot of sentimental remarks you didn't mean, and I'm not handing you any bouquets for doing it. You made a sap of yourself. But that's no sign you should make a monkey of yourself for the rest of your life.

STAY AWAY FROM HER

After all, even though you did say things you didn't mean, you are not responsible for wrecking this girl's life, and you shouldn't let her kid you into thinking you are. As a matter of fact, her life is not wrecked unless she wrecks it herself. If lives were wrecked that easily, most of us would be on the scrap heap, because there isn't a human alive who hasn't had meaningless "sweet nothings" whispered into his or her ear and lived to get over it.

Don't allow yourself to be roped into a marriage with any girl you don't love, no matter how much she may claim to love you. If you do, you'll be wrecking her life as well as your own, son. You'd soon begin to despise her for using her weakness to force you into a bondage that galled you . . . and she would hate you in turn for your resentment. No successful marriage can be built on any such foundation as that.

Tell the young lady, once for all, that you don't care for her, and that you refuse to be made miserable by her hysterics. And then keep out of her way.

Fay King Makes an Interesting Contrast of Some Types of Girls

By FAY KING

I have observed a girl who has an interesting technique.

She always assumes a rather aloof, uninterested air when meeting celebrities, and those famous for their conquests. This makes her seem unusual among those who are gushing and raving and crowding about them.

She listens with the greatest interest. Not that she is paying particular attention to the conversation, but it gives her the opportunity to remain beautiful and unruffled while other pretty girls are becoming fatigued being vivacious and entertaining.

She flirts with and casts the most encouraging glances at the shy and safe men, but with an eye to the impression she is making on the more important men who watch her from a distance.

It's quite interesting—and successful.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Health Examinations Forewarn of Illness.

It has been the effort of the medical profession to stimulate interest in periodic health examinations. There has been a response to this demand, but not at all equal to its expectations.

Dr. Copeland

People are prone to be negligent and careless concerning their health. As a rule, they will visit a physician only when they have a definite complaint. The custom of "locking the barn door after the horse has been stolen" can be applied to man's attitude toward his health.

We can only be assured of good health when we can conserve the energies of the body, respect its demands and treat it accordingly. The body is similar to a machine. It will run perfectly when all the parts are functioning.

If some of the parts undergo wear, the amount of work must be lessened. Traces of albumen in the urine, high blood pressure, low blood pressure, thickening of the arteries, habitual indigestion, loss of weight and vitality are all signs demanding attention.

Thickening of the arteries, or "arterio-sclerosis," has for many years been considered exclusively an occurrence of middle life and old age. Unfortunately this is not true. In a remarkably large percentage of cases, this condition exists in comparatively young people.

This change in the blood vessels, if recognized early is of great importance. The process is a slow one and as a rule does not cause serious trouble until middle age. This condition, if allowed to exist without proper care, does serious damage to the heart, blood vessels and kidneys.

Often, high blood pressure exists without thickening of the arteries. Other causes can be found. Taking of the blood pressure is a simple and important test. This is one of the advantages offered by periodic health examinations.

As a rule, low blood pressure is not considered to be of much significance. Its presence, however, may point to tuberculosis, nervous depression, infection or impairment of the general circulation of the body. Just what is wrong can only be determined by a careful physical examination.

It is worth while to submit to an occasional overhauling. Your doctor will give you advice that may add years to your life.

Answers to Health Queries

R. S. Q.—What can be done for bronchitis in a boy of 16? He has a rather severe attack which has lasted for three weeks, coughing and expectorating a great deal. He loves the outdoors.

A.—Build up his general health so that he will be less susceptible to the germs of colds and cough. A good, general tonic should be very helpful under the circumstances.

MRS. H. E. Q.—Is common baking soda, taken in moderation apt to prove harmful?

2.—What would cause a feeling of pressure in the ears and head?

A.—Not if taken in moderation. However it would be wise to regulate the diet so that it will be unnecessary to resort to remedies to relieve indigestion.

2.—This may be due to a catarrhal condition or high blood pressure. Have an examination so that definite advice and treatment can be outlined.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Dicky Pledge Anew Their Love for Each Other.

I held out my hand with my eyes closed, as Dicky directed, for my Christmas present, and in another second felt a ring slipped gently over the third finger of my right hand. Then his hand was beneath my chin, my face was turned up to his and his lips pressed and clung to mine in the kiss with which he has given me every Christmas present since we have been married.

"Now you may open your eyes," he said, and as I obeyed him, he lifted my hand so that my eyes fell upon a ring which I had admired months before at an exhibition of antique jewelry which Dicky and I had attended, but which I never had dreamed of owning. It was an emerald in a carved gold setting, and I gave a little gasp of delight and astonishment as I saw it.

"Oh!" I breathed. "You bought it, that time——"

"Naturally, since I didn't steal it, and they're not philanthropists—these exhibitors," he retorted.

"I never dreamed when I admired it so," I began confusedly.

"Well! I did," he said vehemently. "It's just the kind of thing I always wanted for you, and," he added childishly, "at least it's something Grandpaw can't duplicate for you."

The reference to Philip Veritzen jarred. However, I caught back the obvious retort. "Did you duplicate it for Edith?" but Dicky looked at me as if I really uttered the words.

"I suppose you're wondering about the 'gorgeous gift' Ede was gurgling over," he said. "Well! you can bet it's nothing resembling this, and you ought to know it, without my telling you."

"Oh! I do, Dicky," I interposed hastily. "Don't tell me anything——"

"Got to," he said shortly. "Going to get it out of my system once and for all. I don't know what's got into Ede lately, she's getting delusions of grandeur, I think. She's been beefing for weeks about my loafing on the job and leaving her the brunt of the work, but there isn't a bit of foundation for the grouch."

"I'm sure of that," I interposed with a quick loyalty, and Dicky's arms tightened about me.

"At the same time she's been dropping broad hints about her watch being such an old thing, that it didn't keep time any more, so I thought I'd use the same stone for a double bird killing. I called up Darcy's, told 'em what I wanted and the price I wanted to pay, left the selection and the delivery to them, and sent over my check and my calling card, the latter inscribed with holiday best wishes. They evidently got it to her on time, and she evidently liked it. But I wouldn't have you think——"

"I don't think anything," I returned firmly, "except that you did the only thing possible in a most satisfactory manner. Let's not talk about it any longer."

But my heart was singing. He had not even selected Edith's gift, but left that task to a jewelry salesman. In its way, the gift was as perfunctory as that of the factory manufacturer who encloses five-dollar bills in envelopes for Christmas presents to his employes.

"You darling!" Dicky said, kissing down my eyelids. "You make me feel terribly ashamed of myself. Honest, I'm sorry for smashing that dinkums grandpaw brought the roses in. I know I didn't fool you. I fell on purpose and threw the thing into the fire. D'ye suppose you can get it fixed?"

His lips were still against my eyes, so it was impossible to see his face, but I knew my cue.

"It doesn't matter to me whether it's fixed or not," I said indifferently—and truly. Then I added a little warning for I did not want Dicky to be surprised again by any erratic action of Philip Veritzen's.

"I may be mistaken, Dicky," I said slowly, "but I'm afraid Mr. Veritzen is bringing something else to me today. When he brought in the roses and the container he said 'This is not your Christmas present, it is just a Christmas wish,' and I fancied he emphasized the word 'wish.' I do hope I imagined it, for I don't want——"

"Don't take your oath too soon. Grandpaw may be bringing you the Rooshan crown jools. But—to the hot place with him! Snuggle down and 'give me some lovin,' as Junior says."

I was too happy at the command to speculate as I might otherwise have done upon Dicky's surprising complacency at my mention of Philip Veritzen's possible gift, and to surmise that my calm acceptance of Edith's offering to him had set a pace for him which he had no choice but to follow. With my head on my husband's shoulder, his arms around me, his lips against my hair, I watched with him while the flames burned low in the grate, and the soft lights from the Christmas tree were the only illumination of the room.

The air grew chilly, and Dicky loosened his clasp of me.

"You'll get chilled if we stay down here longer," he said as he rose, pulling me with him. "Let's get busy with the final gestures."

He put the screen in front of the fire and turned out the Christmas tree lights, while I switched on a bulb near the entrance door which I meant to keep on as a night light. Then I took the papers from Harry's table and Lillian's and with a little laugh at the ceremony, solemnly promised to the children, that we might not see our presents prematurely. I took the paper from Dicky's table and he from mine, and turning our backs, went out of the lovely room.

Was I morbid—or prescient that after one of the most precious half hours of my life with my husband, a cold little foreboding should thrust its viper's head into my happy thoughts?

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

It Would Have Been Quite "Out of Order"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister-in-law and I have had quite a dispute over a problem. She was given five tickets for a ball and said she could not use them all, but she did not offer to give them to me.

After the ball she told me how lovely it was. I felt hurt and told her so. Her reply was that if I had wanted the extra tickets I should have asked for them.

I thought it proper for her to invite me, but she thinks I should have asked for them. Please tell me who is correct.

MRS.

You are right. I agree with you that it would have been quite out of order for you to have asked for the tickets. And I cannot understand why she did not offer them to you.

Equal Rights for the Groom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly help me to settle an argument which has arisen regarding my sister's approaching marriage?

"A" states that the bride may invite all her nearest relatives, namely, cousins, uncle and aunts, while the groom may invite members of his family only.

"B" argues that the groom has as much right to have his relatives, namely aunts and uncles and cousins also.

"B" is distinctly right. The bride's mother asks for the groom's list, and the groom and his mother formulate this list, which includes his relatives and friends, if the wedding is to be a large one, and if the bride's list, therefore, is as inclusive. There should be no cutting down on the groom's list, if there is no cutting down on the bride's list.

A Bank Account for the God-Child

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My brother and I are to be godfather and godmother to my cousin's 2-week old baby. This is my first experience . . . christening.

What do you think would be an appropriate gift for the baby?

2. Do the sponsors or the parents give the priest money, and about how much?

T. J.

1. I suggest that you and your brother give the baby a gold-piece, of any denomination that you plan to put into a present, and have the parents of the baby start a bank account for it. There are so few things that we can give to babies, and usually they have just the things that we plan to give. So many wise people nowadays plan this starting of a bank account, or the contributing to the bank account. And the "brand-newness" of the money in this form makes it more attractive.

2. The parents usually give the priest a sum of money that they feel that they would like to dedicate to the ministry of the church.

Thanks for Those Kind Words

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it good form to say "Thank you" when a person pays you a personal compliment? For example, if a person tells you they think you are very nice looking, would "Thank you" be an appropriate reply? E. O.

Yes, we should offer thanks for any pleasant comment a person makes to us. Something like this: "Thank you. It is kind of you to say so," or, "Thank you. It makes me very happy that you like my dress."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The fingernails of a child grow faster than the nails of an adult. Fingernails grow faster in the summer time than in the winter. The growth of the nail from the lanula to the outer edges requires only four month's time, so don't worry about white spots. All of which is true, but not very important.

Heavy wrinkles turn a woman's mind to flirting with the idea of a facelift. The work is done satisfactorily, but the beauty patient must be sure of the skill of her surgeon. Incisions are made at the temples, tissues and muscles drawn up, the wounds stitched cleverly. After a certain age, the face lifting must be repeated in a few years. Tissues have lost tone. They relax again.

Unless the skin surface of the body is bathed daily with warm water, soap and a heavy brush, it can become debilitated. Cleanliness helps it to function properly, a physical need in the cause of health and vitality because the skin is an important organ of elimination. The brush stirs up the blood streams, removes dead scales, acts favorably upon the glands. The daily bath is a prime beautifier.

It won't do to apply a heavy coating of powder to the skin when it is covered with oil that has poured out from the sebaceous glands. Oil and powder form a sort of calcimine, the skin has no appearance of freshness. A good cleansing agent or astringent should be used first, then the powder won't smear and the results will be satisfying to one who looks into the mirror and takes inventory.

Household Hints

Use steel ribs from an old umbrella for flower and vegetable stakes. They will last several seasons.

Keep a small bottle of kerosene in the bathroom to use for a final polish to the tub. It will give the porcelain a gloss that can rarely be acquired with ordinary cleaners.

When clothing sticks to a varnished surface, leaving lint on it, rub it with a cloth saturated with turpentine and follow with a cloth dampened with linseed oil; rub vigorously with both applications.

Rub floor wax on the rockers of unwieldly rocking chairs and they can be moved around the room with very little effort.

If you intend cooking the spinach immediately, give it several washings in hot water instead of cold. It will be much more effective in removing sand quickly than cold water.

Always wash the outside of a milk bottle before putting it into the refrigerator. It may have collected a few ants or dirt while it was on the stoop and the extra precaution will be found well worthwhile.

FRENCH TO OPPOSE GIANTS

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Looks Soft for Primo. | Earnshaw Sets Mark.
Buc Punch Still Absent. | Two Playing Pilots.
Giants Show New Star. | Jensen Aids Mamaux.

REDMOND PLAYS ONLY BUILD-UP ROLE

IF PAT REDMOND doesn't lose to Primo Carnera in their bout at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, postponed from tonight to next Monday night, it will be one of the greatest surprises the fight game has produced in a long string of blue moons. The men interested in Carnera's future movements have too much at stake to be taking any chances. If the big Italian were to be defeated it would ruin their plans to put him on in September against the winner of the Schmeling-Stribling affair of July 3, and it's safe to say that they're not taking any unnecessary risks. Modern Queensberry businessmen never do.

Pat Redmond

The mere fact that the match is a substitute card for the Sharkey-Carnera bill originally proposed is a tip-off as to the caliber of Redmond. The interests holding Carnera's contract for a September fight went into court and forced the cancellation of the Sharkey-Carnera bout on the ground that a defeat for Primo would destroy his value to them. They knew he would be only a toy for the former sailor and would get a trimming that would ruin him as a card.

HOWEVER, THEY ARE perfectly willing to let the vast Venetian go against Redmond, which is an indication that they know they have nothing to fear as far as the outcome is concerned, and that if they did not actually pick Redmond as the substitute to meet Carnera they have sufficient knowledge of Redmond's true Queensberry rating to feel sure that Carnera can beat him without trouble.

In other words, if Redmond had a chance to win he never would have been given the match. They're trying to build up Carnera for the September show and to make him look good, and it wouldn't do to let him go against anybody he couldn't beat. If Redmond were at all dangerous they would have kept Carnera away from him just as they kept Primo away from Sharkey. There's too much at stake on the September show to let Carnera run into a defeat.

IF THEY WERE looking for a real opponent for Carnera why didn't they pick Ernie Schaaf? Jimmy Maloney stayed a total of 20 rounds with Carnera in two meetings and won the decision in the first bout. Schaaf knocked out this same Maloney in one round. Yet Schaaf gets only a semi-final with Jack Gagnon on the same bill with a couple of alleged headliners whom he probably could lick in the same ring.

And with the Maloney comparison showing how little Carnera himself amounts to as a fighter, you can imagine how much worse Redmond must be when he is picked as a build-up for the Italian. It would be the treat of the fistic age and a great thing for the game if Redmond were to upset everything and take Carnera but there's no chance of that or he wouldn't be in there.

WITH ONLY 15 RUNS scored in the last seven games, the Pirate punch would appear still to be on vacation. Only twice in the last 10 games have the Bucs scored more than three runs, and even on those two occasions the totals were only five and four. How poorly the Braves and Phillies are going may be judged from the fact that the former have lost 12 of their last 18 games and the Quakers have dropped five of their last seven, yet the best the Pirates could do against either at Forbes Field was to break even, though the lowly Reds have just taken three out of four from each of them.

Johnny Vergez

THE GIANTS WERE to present in Third Baseman Johnny Vergez here today not only an important new cog in their own machine but a player rated by many critics as the most valuable major league rookie of the year.

It had been expected that Vergez would make good in a fielding way, but in addition to playing a great defensive game he has come through in surprising fashion as a hitter, boasting an average of .321 up to today against the mark of .307 which he made for Oakland in the Coast League last year. He is 25, stands 5 feet 8 inches, weighs 164 pounds and hits righthanded.

ALWAYS THE MOST colorful club and the strongest drawing card to visit Pittsburgh each season, the Giants carry some new appeal this year by reason of a radical change in their lineup, with Vergez replacing Freddie Lindstrom at third base, Lindstrom converted into a rightfielder and Mel Ott moved from right garden to center.

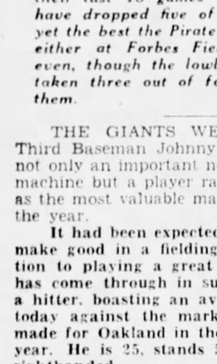
Ott has not been hitting up to his standard, but four hits yesterday lifted him over the .300 mark to .302 and it looks as if he is finding his stride just in time to make trouble for the Pirates.

JOHN M'GRAW'S club as a whole has just taken a brace, having defeated the Cubs in the last two games after losing nine of their preceding 11 contests and dropping five of the first six tilts on the western trip. New players besides Vergez acquired last fall or this spring are Pitchers John Berly from Rochester, Willard Morrell from Shreveport and Ray Lucas from San Antonio, and First Baseman Sam Leslie from San Antonio. Pitchers Pete Donohue, Joe Genewich, Hub Pruett and LeRoy Parmelee have been dropped. George Burns, former star outfielder, has come back to the Giants to supplant Irish Meusel as coach at first base, with Dave Bancroft still holding forth in the third base coacher's box. Chief Bender, once famous Indian pitcher, also has been added to the coaching staff, which is rounded out by Tom Clark.

THE NINTH STRAIGHT victory which George Earnshaw placed to his credit in pitching the A's to their twenty-seventh win in the last 31 games gave Connie Mack's big righthander the major league record for the season thus far in consecutive triumphs.

The previous high mark was eight in a row, set first by Ed Brandt and equaled by Lefty Grove. Rube Walberg has won his last seven. Earnshaw has not been defeated since April 20, when he lost to the Yankees. He was lifted from one game in the meantime, but the Macks won out and Hank McDonald received credit for the success. Earnshaw's nine victories were all complete games and one went 11 innings. In the nine games he gave only 20 runs and 55 hits, an average only a fraction above two runs and six hits per contest.

ROGERS HORNSBY, performing at second base for his Chicago Cubs, has lost for the present the distinction of being the only playing manager in the major leagues. Stanley Harris, Tiger pilot, put himself in the lineup at the keystone sack yesterday, made a two-bagger and scored a run in three times at bat and accepted three fielding chances.



Forrest Jensen

Harris had not appeared as a regular since his final season with the Senators in 1928, though he assigned himself to pinch-hitting duty for Detroit in 1929 and broke into one box score this year as a pinch-runner.

AL MAMAUX, former Pittsburgher and Pirate pitcher, has shown the way to older managers in the International League by lifting his Newark club to first place and keeping it there. In this he has been aided not a little by the splendid work of Forrest Jensen, the young outfielder sent to Newark by the Pittsburgh club under option. Jensen is not only a gardener of uncommon ability, but has bolstered Mamaux's attack, besides. He is leading off in the batting order, hitting above .400 and standing out as one of the best young players in the league. Jensen, a lefthanded hitter and thrower, came up to the Bucs this year from their Wichita farm in the Western League. He is subject to recall on 24 hours' notice.

SITES NAMED FOR ANNUAL TEAM DUELS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The Pennsylvania Golf Association is staging another of its one-day events at the Highland Country Club today, and a field of almost 200 is competing. Play is in best ball foursomes, under seven-eighths handicap. The Highland layout is at its best for the event, and some fine scores are anticipated.

At Highland's neighbor course, Shannopin, Professional Charley Manning is staging his Goofy Golf tourney. Every entrant has a musical instrument to handicap his fellow player, and can recall one tee shot on any or all tees.

WOMEN AT CHARTIERS

An enormous field is anticipated at the Stanton Heights Golf Club on Friday, when the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania stages its one-day tournament.

The lineup for the elimination round of the W. P. G. A. team championship competition has been announced by George Ormiston, secretary of the association. Play will be held July 8 on a quartet of courses, Field Club, South Hills, Oakmont and Fox Chapel having been selected.

Highland, the defending champion, and Stanton Heights, Valley Heights and Longue Vue will play at the Pittsburgh Field Club.

The quartet booked for dueling at South Hills will include Westmoreland, St. Clair, Chartiers Heights and Shannopin.

TO PLAY 36 HOLES

At Oakmont, South Hills, Fox Chapel, Allegheny and Hannastown will compete, and Field Club, Greensburg, Alcoma and Oakmont will tussle at Fox Chapel.

Thirty-six holes will be played, 18 in the morning and as many in the afternoon. In the morning two players from each club will play in foursomes, and in the afternoon the style will be individual match play with one contestant from each club playing in foursomes.

MISS ORCUTT WINS AGAIN

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland, June 10.—(INS.)—Miss Maureen Orcutt, only American entrant in the British women's open golf championship, reached the quarter-final round of play today by defeating Kathleen Garnham, of England, 1 up, 18 holes.

Miss Garnham, one of the most brilliant of the younger British stars, was the most dangerous opponent Miss Orcutt had yet encountered. The American girl played an excellent game and never seemed extended.

Miss Orcutt proved very popular with the gallery. The spectators repeatedly applauded the American girl's powerful drives into the teeth of the swishing gale.

Miss G. E. C. Rudgard, of England, defeated Miss Doris Chambers, England, 5 up and 4 to play. Miss Molly Gourlay defeated Mrs. Kidd, 7 up and 6 to play. Diana Fishwick defeated Mrs. Milltown, 6 and 5.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: WINSTON-SALEM—Although 250 miles from the sea and not on a navigable river, Winston-Salem is a port of entry. It was so designated by the Treasury Department, upon authority from Congress, that Winston-Salem importers might import their goods direct to that city and pay duty there rather than clearing such shipments at port of arrival and transshipping under bond. The $6,000,000 customs charges paid annually in Winston-Salem give it the rank of ninth port of entry. NICK ALTROCK BATTED 1.000 TWO YEARS—In 1924, Altrock was at bat once (September 30) and made a three-base hit. On October 6, the only time he was at bat during the season of 1929, he singled. In each of these years, therefore, his batting average was 1.000. (Reference: Al Munro Elias Baseball Bureau, New York City.) BEANS GREW IN A CONCRETE SLAB—A manufacturer of concrete products made a claim against the Southern Pacific Railroad declaring "that navy beans had been mixed with rock aggregate while the aggregate was in transit and when mixed and poured into forms for pipe the beans sprouted within 16 hours and the pipe was unsalable." To check the claim, a test was made in the railroad company's testing laboratory in San Francisco and the sprouting beans grew readily, cracking the concrete.

TOMORROW—ANOTHER BASEBALL QUESTION.

JOE KIRKWOOD LOSES LEAD

DEAUVILLE, France, June 10.—(AP.)—Aubrey Boomer, British-born professional of the St. Cloud Club, France, today scored a record-equalling 67 in the last round of the French open golf championship for a 72-hole total of 291 and the lead with half the field in.

Percy Alliss, also British-bred, but professional of a Berlin club, temporarily took second place with a last round of 74 and a total of 292.

They displaced Tomas Genta, open champion of Argentina, who led at the end of the third round with 215, but faltered on his final today to take a 78 and trail Alliss by one stroke.

Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot-maker of New York, who was only three strokes behind Genta at the end of the third round, went to pieces on the last nine, and needed an 80 for 298.

Beltzhoover Winner Of School Meet

The Beltzhoover School was the winner of the sixth grade [illegible] and field meet at the Schenley High School field yesterday with 32 5-6 points. Other scorers were as follow:

Rogers, 30 7-12; Conroy, 18½; Holmes, 14½; Greenfield, 14; Mifflin, 12½; John Morrow, 11½; Spring Lane, 11; Lemington, 10; Beechwood, 8½; Forbes, 8; Brookline, 8; Lawrence, 7; Lee, 6; Allen, 5½; Morningside, 5; Park Place, 5; Westlake, 5; Woodlair, 5; Fort Pitt, 4; Garfield, 4; Snodgrass, 3½; Dilworth, 3; Frick, 3; Foster, 2; Sunnyside, 2; McCleary, 1; O'Hara, 1; Fulton, 1; McNaugher, [illegible].

HUSKIE CREWS VICTORS

MARIETTA, O., June 10.—(AP.)—Eight sun-bronzed giants from the Pacific Coast pulled the University of Washington crew to victory over Marietta College last evening in the first intercollegiate rowing race ever held in this section of the country.

Stroked by Johnny Ginger, of Seattle, the Husky crew spurted near the end of the two-mile race to pass its less experienced and lighter opponent in the last 100 yards and finished one-quarter of a length in front. Washington's time was 8:00 1-5.

More than 10,000 persons lined the Ohio and West Virginia banks of the Ohio River to catch their first glimpse of eight-oared racing. An observation train carried at least 2,000 fans up and down the river during the event.

Washington scored a double victory when its freshman crew finished two and three-quarters lengths ahead of Marietta's Jayvees. The freshmen time over the mile and a half was 6:06 4-5.

CARNERA BOUT OFF

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP.)—Rain today caused the postponement of the 10-round heavyweight match between Primo Carnera, of Italy, and Pat Redmond, of Ireland. Promoter James J. Johnston announced the bout would be held next Monday night at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 10.—(AP.)—The Kid Chocolate-Steve Smith bout scheduled here for tonight has been postponed until Friday due to inclement weather.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

John McGraw's pennant chasers landed in our midst this morning and will spend the remainder of the week in town.

Fred Lindstrom

Included in the New York diamond squad were three lefthand pitchers, which is at least an inference that the fans are due to gaze upon some more sour spectacles in the Oakland Orchard.

Southpaw sharpshooters, more than anything else, perhaps, are the cause of the seventh-place position of the Freebooters this June morning. And there is nothing edifying or inspiring in the sight of a flock of lefthand batters swinging amateurishly at the sidearm offerings of a pitcher of the same type.

SOUTHPAWS SET

It seems to be in the wood for McGraw to start Carl Hubbell, Bill Walker and Clarence Mitchell in three of the four clashes that begin this afternoon. Baseball being an uncertain game, it is altogether reasonable to presume that the Buccos will smear the left-handers, but the percentage is all the other way.

The philosophers tell you not to cross bridges until you come to them, yet on the other hand, as the enemy pilots are throwing up bridges, in the shape of lefthand pitchers, with so much consistency it behooves the Pittsburgh owners to move to break up the practise.

Manager Ens already has made moves in this direction. Both George Grantham and Gus Suhr, who are weak against the left-handers, have been viewing games involving this style pitching from the bench. Ens intends to keep Bill Regan and Fred Bennet in the picture while the southpaw epidemic continues.

Larry French will twirl for the Buccos in the opening scrap with

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, June 10.—You got to admire the way the 1931 baseball helped out the pitchers. To date the big leagues have only chiseled about 350 homers and pitchers have the batters so much at their mercy the flingers have to line up with soap and towels to get a crack at the shower baths. If the magnates put embalming fluid in this year's baseball as they claim, then from the way it whistles past the infielders' skulls they must have added a jab of cocaine, too. There's another home run epidemic this year, even if the officials say it's only measles. Say, the way that Cleveland club nearly hit the bottom and then started climbing it looks like they must have got banking support.

CRIPPLED DETROIT TIGERS DROP TO CELLAR

NATS, MACKS KEEP PACE; CUBS LOSE

Associated Press

The plight of the Detroit Tigers has become a serious matter to followers of the team.

Due largely to injuries to Dale Alexander and Charley Gehringer, the Tigers have lost the greatest part of their batting punch, and the work of the rest of the team has suffered accordingly. Today they had dropped to last place in the American League standing with a record of 20 defeats in their last 23 games despite the desperate efforts of Manager Stanley (Bucky) Harris to pull them out of the slump.

LOSE TO A'S

Harris, who had not played as a regular since he came to Detroit, even went into the lineup himself at second base on Monday in one of his numerous shakeups and for a while in yesterday's game against Philadelphia it looked as if the move might have brought success. Bucky cracked out a double in the third inning to start a two-run rally and the Tigers led up to the seventh inning. Then young Tom Bridges weakened badly, Wattie Hoyt, relief hurler, proved no better and behind them the Tigers committed four errors. As a result, the Athletics scored 10 runs in two innings to win, 12 to 3.

The victory did not increase the A's margin of leadership, however, for Washington's Senators, playing a fine brand of ball, defeated the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 3. The other two American League games were rained out.

The Cincinnati Reds, who have been making a determined effort to climb out of the National League cellar, made it six victories in their last seven games yesterday by trouncing the Boston Braves, 7 to 2.

GIANTS TAKE SECOND

The New York Giants accomplished the day's big killing as they took second place away from the Chicago Cubs with a 10-to-2 triumph, going a full game ahead of their rivals. The league-leading St. Louis Cardinals collected 18 safeties, their largest total of the season, to hold their 4½-game margin with an 8 to 5 victory over Brooklyn.

DUKE VARSITY NETMEN WIN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Capt. Andy Smeaton and his Duke Varsity net squad wound up the district college season with a 4-2 triumph over the Bluff Alumni host of Sam Keller and Jake Olko on the Hill asphalt yesterday afternoon. The tussle was one of various sport features of the annual Duquesne University Alumni Association field day.

The redoubtable Smeaton led his warriors to victory with a three-set win over Sullivan, a member of the team from '24 to '27, 7-5, 4-6, 6-0. The summary:

SINGLES

Smeaton, Varsity, defeated Sullivan, Alumni, 7-5, 4-6, 6-0; Olko, Alumni, defeated Case, Varsity, 6-0, 6-4; Bolland, Varsity, defeated Keller, Alumni, 1-6, 6-2, 10-8; Boland, Varsity, defeated Collodi, Alumni, 6-2, 6-2; O'Neil, Varsity, defeated Bryan, Alumni, 6-1, 6-2.

DOUBLES

Olko and Sullivan, Alumni, defeated Smeaton and Boland, Varsity; Keller and Collodi, Alumni, played to a draw with Case and Bullion, Varsity, 6-4, 3-6.

The Alumni secured partial revenge for the tennis defeat by defeating an undergraduate team in baseball, 5 to 2. The scheduled track and field events were eliminated.

Their Final Lineup for Carnegie Tech

OSCAR CARLSON — TED ROSENZWEIG — LEONARD SCHNUPP — JOHN DRESHAR — TONY SWEET

These football heroes have made their last gains on the gridiron for Carnegie Tech. Photo shows them in caps and gowns as members of the graduating class yesterday. Dreshar, a guard, captained the eleven two successive years. Schnupp was a star lineman and Carlson a reserve back, while Sweet and Rosenzweig were stellar ends.

FRENCH SET FOR GIANTS

the Polo Grounders. Larry already has a verdict over the Men of McGraw. In the only game played between the two clubs this season, a contest at the Polo Grounds, French won a hair-line decision over Clarence Mitchell.

Pirate fans today will get their first view of Johnny Vergez, Giant third-baseman from the Oakland club of the Coast League, and they will also see Freddie Lindstrom in action in the outfield.

The Buccos were making an uphill battle to overtake the Quakers yesterday when they got their regular dose of lefthand twists. They needed only one run to tie in the sixth round with the bases loaded and two out. Big Jim Elliott came rushing to the scene and he put the quietus on the Pirates for the remainder of the game. They could not score a single run off the big southpaw, and in the end the Freebooters lost, 7 to 3.

BRAME BEATEN

Ervin Brame was the latest victim of the weakest-hitting club in the National League. Brame wavered a bit in the sixth when Chuck Klein rapped out his fourteenth homer of the season, but aside from that round the tall Kentuckian was in a fine stride.

Dick Bartell was in the thick of the battle in every minor, in shape and form. The Quakers have trimmed the Pirates three out of four games this year and in each of the Philly triumphs Bartell has been a big feature. Daredevil Dick was on the paths four times yesterday, and he scored two of his team's [illegible]. In the sixth inning he seems to have saved the ball game when he grabbed a difficult grounder with one out and threw out Pie Traynor at the plate. Of course, Dick felt very bad about his actions.

GRACE PLAYS WELL

Earl Grace, new catcher, started his first game as a Bucco, the new receiver making a good impression. The recruit, however, still suffers from a lame foot. Grace, a lefthand batter, made one hit in three times at bat, he leaving the game when Jim Elliott came into the picture.

The Pirates were leading by a run in the fifth and two were out when Fred Brickell singled and Bartell walked. The stage thus set, Chuck the Clouter drove the rocket into the rightfield stands to take over the leadership of the major league home run makers.

BECKLEY CUTS COLTS' LE'D

Cumberland's lead in the Middle Atlantic League was sliced a full game yesterday as the Colts lost and Scottdale won. The Colts are out in front now by two full games.

Beckley defeated the Colts, 7 to 2, Beam limiting the leaders to four safe hits. Beckley secured 14.

Scottdale took Hagerstown by a 6-to-2 score, the Marylanders getting only five hits from the delivery of Erecount.

At Wheeling, the Stogies played heads-up ball to down Clarksburg, 3 to 1, in a game in which both sides made seven hits.

Fairmont hit hard and timely behind Cousins' steady hurling as the Black Diamonds defeated Charleroi, 8 to 3. The Altoona-Huntington and Charleston-Johnstown games were postponed on account of cold weather.

WASHINGTON PARK

TINY ROEBUCK, POJELLO WIN

A pair of substitutes bobbed up at the wrestling show staged at Hickey Park, Millvale, last evening, and both bobbed right into defeat. The attendance was nothing over which to rave.

In the main go, Tiny Roebuck, of Nebraska, weighing 247 pounds, tossed Vanka Zelezniak, of New York, in 19 minutes 30 seconds. A series of body slams and an arm hold turned the trick.

Karl Pojello, who was to have struggled with Ivan Vacturoff, threw a sub, Abe Kashey, of New Jersey, in 16 minutes and 55 seconds with a body hold. Pojello weighed 194 pounds and his opponent 195.

Rudy Dusek, of Oklahoma, 215, pinned Floyd Marshall, of California, 218, in 28 minutes and 19 seconds with a body slam. In the opening bout, Mik[illegible]mano, of Italy, 198, flipped Be[illegible] Ginsberg, of New York, subbing for Wladek Zbyszko, veteran Pole, in 11 minutes 7 seconds.

SCHENLEY TITLE SERIES EVEN

Barring another deadlock, such as ended the first game of the series, the City Scholastic League championship will be settled Friday evening as Schenley and South Hills, Section I and Section II representatives, respectively, meet in the deciding game of the annual playoff series.

Last evening at Forbes Field, Schenley, defending champion, swatted its way back into the running by defeating the Hillsmen, 7 to 1, in the third game of the series. The first game ended in a 2-2 tie and South Hills won the second, 4 to 3.

Earl Stratton, Schenley's ace hurler, was in fine form last evening, limiting the Tunnelites to four scattered hits and fanning 13. Bill Lentz, South Hills' mound star, also fanned 13, but he issued half a dozen passes and was touched for 10 solid hits.

Both teams scored in the second inning, but in the third, Schenley put the game on ice with a four-run attack. Lentz tightened again until the seventh, when two more Schenley runs went over. South Hills' run-getting was over after the second.

Bill Regan, stellar Hillsmen first sacker, was painfully injured in the third inning when he and Metz, the Tunnelite catcher, collided as they both attempted to reach Costanzo's foul fly along the first baseline. Regan suffered a cut and bruised face. He gamely remained in the game, however, after a 10-minute rest.

Qualley, with three hits, led the Schenley attack. Lentz punched out two of the four hits off Stratton. The score:

Pete Donohue Gets Outright Release

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP.)—The New York Giants announced last night that Pete Donohue had been given his unconditional release and that the veteran right-hander now was free to make a deal with any club he desired.

Pete was sent by the Giants to the Minneapolis club of the American Association a few days ago, but refused to report. He pointed out that he lacked only nine days of having served 10 years in the major leagues. Under the rules, a 10-year man can be released, but cannot be sent to the major leagues. He finally obtained his unconditional release.

PANKA PASTED BY MAXIE

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., June 10.—(AP.)—George Panka, formerly of Pittsburgh, showed up well, for a brief period, against Max Schmeling in the training ring here yesterday, but his attempts to see what he could do with a left jab found the champion a willing customer. Before the first round was over, Panka was bleeding freely and took a severe jolting from both hands around the mid-section.

Panka backed away from the firing line in the second round and tried counter-punching. Schmeling bored in with a face attack and spent the remainder of the round on Panka's body.

Schmeling will not box today, but will spend the day at golf and in road work. He boxes again tomorrow.

STRIB ENDS DAY DRILLS

GEAUGA LAKE, O., June 10.—(INS.)—Young Stribling, who meets Max Schmeling for the title in Cleveland, July 3, was to stage his last ring workout in broad daylight here this afternoon.

The next scheduled ring drill for the challenger carded for Friday, will be staged under the arcs—one of Pa Stribling's ideas for getting "my boy" accustomed to fighting at night under artificial light.

Star Pitt Athletes Get Diplomas Today

ROSLYN, N. Y., June 10.—Scoring an 88, Miss Edith Quier, of Reading, retained the lead in the Eastern women's golf championship yesterday. Miss Quier has a 36-hole total of 169.

GORNICK STARS AS GANS WINS OVER BRADY

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor

Up-and-coming young Marty Gornick, the fighting postal clerk of Whitaker, stole the thunder of the main-bouters before a small crowd in the Meyers Bowl last night as he battered his way to a technical knockout victory over Al Ghan, of Columbus, in two rounds in the scheduled eight-round semi-final.

Gornick won the first round handily, and, after a bit of preliminary sparring in the second, dropped his man with a right to the chin that looked like curtains, but Ghan stirred at four and got up at six, only to be sent down again, this time to get up groggy at nine. Gornick then herded him into Marty's corner and put the crusher on him, the final blow depositing him limply on the canvas, while it spattered blood from Ghan's nose all over the ringsiders. Ghan was in a bad way, and the referee, Jack Henderson, didn't even bother to count, stopping the bout to save the visitor from further punishment.

FANS RAZZ WINDUP

The fans didn't get much of a kick out of the 10-round main bout, between Baby Joe Gans, of New York, and the veteran and partly bald Jackie Brady, of Syracuse, which Gans won through the medium of a knockdown for a count of nine with a right to the jaw in the first round and sharper hitting in six of the 10 rounds. Brady forced the fighting most of the way, but was handicapped by his stocky build and short arms, while Gans was guilty of a lot of unnecessary holding and made matters messy with his loafing tactics. The fans wisecracked throughout when they weren't asking the referee to throw 'em both out. Gans weighed 143½ and Brady 145½.

SOLOMEN BEATS MONTEBANO

Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, 156½, beginning a comeback campaign, won the referee's decision over Carl Montebano, of North Braddock, 158½, in the second bout, with Judge Freddie Lux voting for Montebano and Judge L. K. Meininger scoring with Referee Red Robinson for Mickey. Mickey dropped Carl for no count in both the first and last rounds and did the cleaner hitting all of the way, while Carl had to be warned repeatedly for his wrestling.

SKIBOS, IRISH CHOOSE DATE

The date for the 1933 football game between the Carnegie Tech Skibos and the Irish of Notre Dame, to be played in the Stadium here, has been set for Saturday, October 21, it was announced today by the athletic authorities at Carnegie Tech.

BRADY TAKES COUNT OF NINE AT BOWL

Pirate Pitchers Given Workout By Beggars

Glenn Spencer, Pirate pitcher, was sitting in a parked car downtown when a stranger approached and asked for some change to buy a meal. Glenn told him he was sorry, but all he had was a few bills, and the stranger thanked him for his consideration and moved away.

Spencer hopped after him, told him he couldn't leave the parked car, but would trust him to get a bill changed. The stranger returned immediately with the money and received a portion of it, thanked Spencer and revealed the fact that a few years ago his check was good for all of $35,000.

"Can you let me have two bits, brother?" he was asked.

"Feller—you took the words right out of my mouth," responded Grant. "I haven't been eating regularly for a week."

"Well, I'm sorry," said the panhandler, "but this ain't a bad racket, I've picked up about 10 bucks already today. So get busy."

ACTION BOUTS AT MILLVALE

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Billy Wallace vs. Lope Tenorio, 8 rounds; Frankie Chatterton vs. Jason Breaux, Joe Zenson vs. Harold Leppika, and Harold Griff vs. Al McVeigh, 6 rounds each, and Johnny Young vs. Jimmy Vaughn and Johnny Zack vs. Kenneth Schuke, 4 rounds each, Cleveland.

K. O. Christner vs. Tony Galento, Pee Wee Wilson vs. Ray Rawlinson, Wilbert Chevalier vs. Joe Palazolla and Johnny Miscilla vs. Joe Lyson, 10 rounds each, Detroit.

Pete De Grasse vs. Sammy Bisch, 10 rounds, Mitchell Field, L. I.

Matchmaker Bill Dummer, of the Hickey Park, Millvale arena, believes he will present the best action card of the season so far tomorrow night, when he puts on his bill of four eight-rounders.

He has Young Rudy, of Charleroi, a noted club fighter, in the windup against Tiger Joe Randall, East End Negro, formerly of Elizabeth. Meyer Frager, of Chicago, boxes Ray Collins, of Erie, in the semi-final, and the two other battles will see Jimmy Taylor, Cleveland middleweight, in a return bout with Jack Tracey, local Negro, and Ray Lyle, of Akron, against George Bretsch, of the North Side.

Dummer also has his next week's show complete, it being a holdover of the original card of this week, with Frankie Genaro, flyweight title claimant, against Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, on top.

Between Rounds

Midget Mike O'Dowd boxes Earl Mastro at Chicago June 18, and Pete Sarron at Greenwood, Miss., on July 4.

Ol' Kayo Christner and Fat Tony Galento box the windup of a show in the Detroit Olympia arena tonight.

Mickey Cohen boxes Tommy Paul in an eight-rounder in Cleveland Friday night; Joe Marciente and Liberato Bulhan, the Filipino, meet in another eight-rounder and Frankie Bauer and Frankie Linhart are booked for six rounds.

Don Asto, of Uniontown, one of the stars among the Western Pennsylvania amateurs for several years, turns professional against Eddie Guba, of Clairton, in the opening bout on the Joey Spiegel-Teddy Welch card at Uniontown, Friday night. Joe Spiegel, he will box under the management of Bill Simendinger, who also has Eddie Hebner and Johnny Warner, along with a few others.

Babe Amos, of New Kensington, who has been boxing around Syracuse for a couple of years, is back home for a visit, coming with Jackie Brady, and would like to box while here. He is open to meet any of the welterweights and may be reached through Jack McDonald at New Kensington.

EDDIE AND BILLY JACOBS WIN

BALTIMORE, June 10.—(AP.)—Berkeley Bell, Texas, and Eddie and Billy Jacobs, playing for the University of Pittsburgh, advanced to the fifth round of the Maryland State tennis tournament yesterday, in which Eddie is defending his state title. Other seeded players advanced without an upset.

Eddie defeated Morton Shapiro, 6-3, 6-2, and Billy won over Bernard Welch, 5-7, 10-8, 6-2.

Bell, seeded No. 1, won three matches during the day and took another by default. Absent when the tournament opened yesterday, he was forced to make up lost ground.

PIRRONE STOPPED

BOSTON, June 10.—(AP.)—Lou Brouillard, Worcester welterweight, knocked out Paul Pirrone, Cleveland, in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Boston Garden last night. Pirrone refused to continue after being floored, taking the count on one knee.

Fans in the district have the big battle between the Homestead Aces and Reliance Life, for the undisputed leadership of the West Penn League, as the feature attraction on the sandlots this evening. The game is to be staged at West Field, Homestead, and will be called at 6:20 sharp.

Reliance has lost one game in the league, while the Aces have a clean slate. A victory for the Fertig aggregation practically will give the Aces the first-half title.

GAME IMPORTANT

Realizing that so much depends upon the outcome of the game, both managers have ace hurlers groomed for action. Fertig has announced that Miller, the Homestead ace, who has been going along at a sensational clip, will pitch.

The Insurance men bank upon either Billy Gormley or Dutch Spencer. George Miller, the Insurance manager, seldom has to worry much regarding his pitching selections. Gormley and Spencer are two of the most willing workers in the district.

One game will be played in the City loop. Book Shoe invades Dormont to tangle with the South Hills aggregation. The Shoemen are out to put a crimp into the flying Dormont team. Carroll is expected to be on the mound for Dormont. Dormont lost to Homewood last evening, 5-4, and dropped the lead back to the latter team. Meanwhile the Book team defeated the North Side Civics, 2-1.

CARDS FACE TEST

Two games will be played in the Steel City League, Snee Dairy hooks up with the East End Cardinals at Homewood in one fray. The Cardinals were considered as having the inside track for the first-half title, but an unexpected defeat by Mifflin threw the race wide open. Manager Nolan expects to get the team into another winning streak with this evening's battle. Hussey is all ready to stop the Milkmen.

The Brodericks tangle with the Caruso club, of Hays, at Marshall Field. Caruso has been going along at a good clip, so the fans from Lawrenceville should see a worthwhile game.

Fans from the Hill district will be at the Schenley High Field to see the battle between St. Joachim and the Marty Griffin nines. The Griffins will be out to avenge that early season defeat at the hands of Kudaan's team.

The absence of Wilber Cooper, former Pirate star, now a member of the Dormont club of the City League, from the South Hills bench on Monday and last evening gives City League followers the impression that Cooper has been let out.

BASS TO BOX CHOCOLATE

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—The long-sought junior-lightweight title match between Benny Bass, of this city, and Kid Chocolate, of Cuba, has been clinched by Promoters Herman Taylor and Robert Gunnis. It will take place over the 10-round distance at the Phillies ball park, July 15.

STEEL BUYERS MARK TIME

NEW YORK, June 10.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

The automobile industry is chiefly responsible for a further decline in raw steel production from 42 to 40 per cent of capacity and it will strongly influence the course of ingot output in the next two months. Demand for iron and steel from other sources is holding fairly constant, suggesting that the irreducible minimum of requirements has been reached, but motor car manufacture has been receding steadily since the premature contraction of retail sales in May, and seems to be headed for a very low operating rate in July, with suspensions such as occurred a year ago a possibility.

These exceptions, however, fail to take into account the sensitivity of motor car demand to changes in general business sentiment. If the automobile trade is justified in the belief that the recent stock market decline checked its retail sales, the later recovery of securities prices should have the opposite effect.

But regardless of automotive developments the steel industry sees nothing that will bring about a revival of activity in the next two months unless it be the coal strike. It is interesting to recall, however, that a coal strike in the Western Pennsylvania-West Virginia region came at the turning point of our last severe depression nine years ago, driving up prices of coke, pig iron and finished steel.

Meanwhile, iron and steel producers are preparing for a dull summer by making every possible effort to cut operating expenses.

Prices of finished steel are being given little test, since mills are not pushing forward contracting. Scrap has given further ground at Pittsburgh and Detroit. At Pittsburgh an important steel interest which had not bought for several months closed for considerable tonnage, and dealers made heavy purchases of railroad offerings, indicating their willingness to build up yard stocks at present market levels.

The Canadian tariff will not seriously affect American steel mills, since increases in duty are offset by reductions.

Pennsylvania Oil Stocks Lowered

OIL CITY, May 10.—Stocks of Pennsylvania grade crude held by major pipe line companies of the east at the end of May totaled 3,895,594 barrels, a decrease of 71,397 over April.

The daily average runs from wells for May was 53,344 barrels, the lowest since November, 1930. The daily average shipments for May were 199,250, the highest since August, 1930. Gross stocks of all grades of oil at the end of May totaled 10,728,329 barrels, the lowest since November, 1929.

Motor Stocks Under Level Of Last Depression

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE EXTENT OF LIQUIDATION in the stocks of automobile companies has carried values below the levels of the last depression. This has been shown in a study of the motor stocks made by the Wall Street Journal.

In making these computations the aggregate value of the common stocks of six independent automobile manufacturers has been taken. The study shows that the decline in security values over the past year and a half has eliminated all the appreciation in the market value of securities represented by the reinvestment of earnings since 1922.

The six companies selected were Nash, Packard, Studebaker, Hudson, Hupp and Mack Trucks. At their recent lows the common stocks of these companies had an aggregate market value of $203,906,000 compared with an average valuation of $207,343,000 in 1922.

The study points out that in the latter year industry was emerging from the depression of 1921 and was entering the period of its greatest development and prosperity.

Larger Assets Disregarded

ON THE FACE OF THESE figures it would appear that the six companies are valued at close to the same figure as they were at the depth of the last serious depression. The extent of deflation is shown to be much greater, however, when we remember that the recent low prices of these stocks discounted entirely the increase of $123,976,000 or 65 per cent in the net tangible assets applicable to the common shares through the reinvestment of undistributed profits since 1922. It also disregarded the expansion of $35,925,000 or 30 per cent in the combined working capital of the six companies.

The analysis declares that the recent low prices of these stocks represented a discount of 35 per cent from the total net tangible assets applicable to the common shares of these companies and were only 33 per cent in excess of their aggregate net current assets.

Four Companies Under 1922

OF THE SIX COMPANIES all but Nash and Packard were selling below their market valuation in 1922 as well as below the present total of their net tangible assets. The six companies were selected because they were outstanding independent organizations and comparative statistics were available during the previous depression.

Chrysler Corporation, for which no direct comparison can be made, has experienced a similar drastic depreciation in its common stock with a recent low market valuation of $55,184,837 compared with working capital of $67,424,225 and net tangible assets applicable to the common of $92,136,378.

General Motors has fared better than the independent companies in the market appraisal of its value. It is still selling for substantially more than the book value of the stock and the average valuation of 1922 as a result of the continued large volume of its profits and its enormous expansion since 1922.

Profit Recovery Sharp

AN EXCEPTIONALLY SHARP recovery in automobile company earnings took place at the close of the last depression. In 1921, combined profits of the six companies totaled $13,918,000, and the subsequent recovery in 1922 carried aggregate earnings to $45,280,000, an increase of 225 per cent.

In 1930 profits of the six companies declined to a combined total of $18,572,000 and in the first quarter of the current year experienced further declines, as automobile sales and production decreased to the lowest levels since 1922. General Motors in the previous depression had a deficit after preferred dividends of $44,990,000 in 1921, but profits for the common stock recovered to $45,066,000 in 1922.

Childs Company May Sales Lower

NEW YORK, June 10.—Childs Company May sales were $1,957,168, as against $2,279,335 in May, 1930. For five months sales totaled $10,052,800, against $11,478,357 in the like 1930 period.

Dominion Wheat Exports Increase

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 10.—E. A. Ursell, statistician to the Dominion Board of Grain Commissioners, announced that wheat exports during May exceeded any month since December, 1928. A total of 31,519,803 bushels of Canadian wheat was cleared from North American ports in May, bringing the amount shipped since August, last year, to 205,778,789 bushels.

In a second report, covering shipments for the first week of June, Mr. Ursell noted a falling off in foreign demand.

The condition of spring wheat in Canada on May 31 was the lowest in 22 years.

B. & O. Affected by Bridge Rejection

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The War Department has rejected the plan for the Fifty-seventh Street Bridge across the Hudson River, which would afford Baltimore and Ohio Railroad a direct entrance into New York City, because the clearance of the span did not meet requirements.

FREIGHT SLUMP SEEN AS RATE BOOSTER

Increase in Tariffs Held Inevitable If Railroad Traffic Drop Continues

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
(Universal Service)

NEW YORK, June 10.

A warning to shippers that unless the railroads continue to get the benefits of mass business they will have to make radical increases in freight rates in the traffic which remains is given by L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central System.

Mr. Rukeyser

Responding to inquiries as to what is the matter with the carriers Mr. Downs in a message to this column insists:

"Traffic which must rely upon railway service must learn to bear all the cost of it if traffic which has an alternative is fairly or unfairly taken away."

URGES DIVERSIFICATION

Commenting on my suggestion that the railroads should be permitted by law to engage in all forms of transportation, including barges on internal waterways and trucks, Mr. Downs said:

"The railroads should not only be permitted but encouraged to engage in all forms of transportation that may fairly and economically justify their own existence. In arriving at the proper basis for co-ordination, each form should be required to pass the test of profitable operation under subsidized and reasonably regulated conditions of private ownership.

"Once the situation has been completely freed of favoritism, the railroads should progressively assume the leadership in the general transportation field and so develop the carrying machinery of the country that the utmost efficiency will be produced at the lowest possible cost, particularly with the minimum of avoidable duplication in overhead.

TRY ECONOMIES

"The railroads themselves have already utilized most of the possibilities for economy within their own present field. When dividends suffer and fixed charges are endangered, it may fairly be assumed that few operating economies remain to be tried out. In some instances, of course, regulation defeats the efforts of railway men to economize through reductions in service; in others, the varying needs of patrons and the necessity of being prepared, frequently without warnings, for peak demand constitute reasons for maintaining service that may appear, at first glance, to be in excess of requirements. The availability and capacity of the railroads have always been among their strongest selling points—points which, I may suggest here, are not always duplicated among their competitors."

Mr. Downs leans to the view that the general business depression is the primary cause of the deterioration of earning power by the carriers.

A. P. I. Reports Gain In Oil Production

NEW YORK, June 10.—Domestic crude oil production in the week to June 6 averaged 2,474,950 barrels daily, an increase of 19,800 barrels over the preceding week and comparing with 2,588,050 barrels produced in the like week in 1930, the American Petroleum Institute reports. Gasoline stocks declined 570,000 barrels in the week to 44,225,000 barrels.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 10.—Cotton opened steady today 6 to 9 points higher. There was some further liquidation and foreign selling, but it soon absorbed on scale-down backs during the first few minutes and the market still tend on again, only a continuance of the demand and contracts advanced to 8.35c and December to 8.84c by the end of the first half hour, with the active months showing net advances of about 14 to 17 points.

Favorable features in the weekly report of the weather bureau appeared to have been discounted and there was some bullish comment on reports that insect infestation was increasing in some parts of the belt. This combined with reports of a fairly steady tone in the mid-morning afore market and talk of a firmer technical position in cotton, appeared to bring some commission house buying at about the opening. The advance carried prices up to 8.39c for July and 8.99c for December before the end of the morning, or about 17 to 21 points net higher. The market was quiet and steady within 4 or 5 points of the best all morning.

LIVERPOOL, June 10.—Cotton: Spot quiet; prices 2 points higher. American strict good middling 5.30d; good middling 5.03d; strict middling 4.78d; middling 4.63d; strict low middling 4.43d; low middling 4.18d; strict good ordinary 3.98d; good ordinary 3.78d. Sales 6,000 bales, including 2,700 American. Receipts 20,000 bales, American 200. Future opened steady: July, 4.62d; October 4.63d; December 4.70d; January 4.74d; March 4.86d; May 4.90d; July, 4.97d.

Chrysler Likely to Make Better Showing in Current Quarter

Although Chrysler reported a deficit for the first quarter, predictions are heard on the Street that a good showing in the current three months March application is being attached to the strong financial position of Chrysler. At the end of the March quarter current assets were $83,630,064, compared with current liabilities of $16,214,839, leaving a net working capital of $67,424,225. This was equivalent to more than $15 a share. The company in its current assets has cash of $35,381,968 and marketable securities valued at $14,585,352. Publication of favorable second quarter earnings may stimulate a demand for the shares.

Railroad shares have acted better in some of the recent sessions. This is a reflection of the growing belief that a demonstration will be made in the carrier group as soon as an application is filed for a general increase in freight rates. Considerable opposition from shippers and distributors to the granting of such an increase is inevitable, but, nevertheless, many feel that governmental authorities are cognizant of the necessities in the situation and will give serious consideration to any carrier plea.

Selling has been coming into Canadian Pacific in rather heavy volume. A considerable portion of the supply came from Canada and, according to advices received here, is based on the prospects for a crop failure in the Dominion. Such an occurrence of course would seriously affect the traffic and earnings of the road. Canadian Pacific is still selling at an unusually low yield basis when compared with some of the standard domestic carriers. Some counsellors have been switching customers out of the stock.

Scale buying on reactions has been noted. This demand may continue, as many observers point out that the market normally could have a recession canceling 50 per cent to 75 per cent of the advance of last week. Those who contend that a further upturn will be recorded after the first resistance is absorbed, have been the leading purchasers on a scale. They have taken on part of the stocks they desire.

The belief is growing in many quarters that the floating supply of stocks has been shrinking in recent weeks. While the liquidation was heavy at times, it is probable that the investment demand around recent lows was quite heavy and those who purchased the stocks removed them from the street. A large number of investors with ready funds have been remaining on the side lines for months. These doubtless will come into the market with more definite signs of stability.

Oil shares are not particularly responsive to aparent effort to stir up interest in that section of the list. Petroleum stocks have enjoyed a relative measure of activity since the announcement about a week ago that the government would not appeal the decision in favor of the "Socony-Vacuum merger." Trading in that section of the list assumed fairly broad proportions again yesterday, but little progress toward higher levels was registered. On the contrary it was evident that effort to work the group ahead encountered a good deal of resistance in the form of selling on the bulges. Thus far the reports of a probable early increase in crude oil prices in California have had little effect.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 10.—Bullish aspects of the United States government crop report on wheat led to early higher prices for all grains today. Fresh downpours in Canadian drought territory failed to act as an offset. Opening 1/2@1 cent up, wheat later held near to the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to 1/8 cent higher and subsequently rose all around.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by C. E. Masser & Co.:

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Associated Telephone Company and subsidiaries report gross earnings for the 12 months ending March 31 were $16,072,632, compared with $11,265,574 for the similar period a year previous. Net income was $2,750,925 compared with $2,186,661. The bulk of the system's earnings are derived from large compact units in 16 states.

Thompson Starrett Company, Inc., and subsidiaries report for year ended April 25, 1931, profit of $1,785,705 after expenses and depreciation, but before deduction of writeoffs and reserves in respect of accounts and notes receivable, mortgages and equity investments, shares against surplus. In the year ended April 24, 1930 net profit after depreciation, federal taxes etc. was $1,745,597.

The American Commonwealths Power Corporation net income for 1930 was $15,218,539 against $11,322,693 the year previous. President Frank T. Hulswit said stimulation and development sales, together with operating economies were largely responsible for increased earnings.

PASS SINCLAIR DIVIDEND

NEW YORK, June 10.—The Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation will omit the 25-cent quarterly dividend on the common stock due July 15, it was announced yesterday.

The regular monthly meeting of the board, scheduled for today, the last at which the common dividend for the quarter could be declared, has been postponed on account of a lack of a quorum. A statement said:

"A canvas of the board, however, has shown that it was the opinion of its members that a common dividend should not be declared at this time owing to prevailing conditions in the oil industry.

"Notwithstanding the increase in the volume of the company's business, prices remain at such low levels that it is impossible to realize earnings that justify the payment of such a common dividend.

"Under these circumstances the management believes that the best interests of the stockholders and the corporation will be served by maintaining its present strong position while awaiting the results of a turn for the better in general conditions and particularly in the oil business."

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was slow today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets reported firm; demand fair, supply adequate with slight changes in quotations. Carlot supplies were moderate with 422 cars on track. Arrivals included 5 cars apples, 2 beans, 3 bananas, 10 cabbage, 10 cantaloupes, 1 carrots, 1 green corn, 1 cucumbers, 2 honeydews, 2 lettuce, 2 onions, 3 oranges, 1 peas, 1 peppers, 1 pineapples, 27 potatoes, 2 strawberries, 12 tomatoes and 7 mixed vegetables.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Irregular — Local Market Steady

MIXED TRENDS MARK STOCK TRADING

Market Moves Up After Announcement of Steel Figures, Then Slips Off

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP.)—The stock market had difficulty in deciding on a trend today and compromised by being irregular. There was a similar situation in bonds, but wheat rallied at both Chicago and Winnipeg.

Much of the earlier indecision exhibited by shares was due to uncertainties as to what the day's bulging news budget would disclose, for it was an unusually crowded calendar.

Maintenance of the regular dividend by New York Central was followed by considerable covering in the rail and a moderate rally in other groups.

This improvement had largely been lost by the time the U. S. Steel tonnage figures were published, but the market again moved higher when that piece of news was out of the way, indicating that the decrease had been well discounted. However, this rise was rather labored and prices edged off again, although the resistance improved as yesterday's closing levels were approached.

Steel common was nearly 2 points higher at the top of its early afternoon advance, which was then reduced.

The decrease of 277,277 tons in the backlog of the steel corporation was under the average May decline for the past seven years, and left the total of unfilled orders on the company's books at about 3,600,000 tons. It is believed specifications against this volume may not amount to much for a few weeks. New buying thus far in June has continued sluggish, for the unsettled price situation has kept consumers' inquiry down to immediate requirements.

The Iron Age estimated the steel ingot production average for the entire country at 42 per cent, against 40 per cent a week ago.

Freight loadings in the holiday week ending May 30 were off 44,137 cars, but the percentage of decline was smaller than for the corresponding weeks of the two previous years. The current volume of traffic is not particularly encouraging from the standpoint of the June revenue of most roads.

A gain of 12,800 barrels in the country's crude oil output for last week was due largely to an increased flow in Oklahoma. Electric power production in the week of June 6 continued to decline, but the precentage of decrease from 1931 was reduced to 2.9.

WOOLWORTH SALES UP

NEW YORK, June 10.—Sales of F. W. Woolworth Company for the first week of June showed an increase of $391,979 or 7.77 per cent over the like week in 1930.

LONDON, June 10.—Numerous messengers making a line two blocks long and several abreast awaited outside the office of N. M. Rothschild and Sons today seeking prospectus of the offering of stock in F. W. Woolworth & Co. Ltd. It is understood that the outside public stands little chance of getting stock allotments.

Chase Securities Planning Merger

NEW YORK, June 10.—The Chase Securities Corporation, investment affiliate of the Chase National Bank, and Harris Forbes & Co., an old-established banking house which passed into the control of the Chase organization last August, will be merged on or before July 1 into a company to be known as the Chase-Harris Forbes Corporation.

The combined Chas-Harris Forbes organization will rank among the largest security distributors in the country.

Pennsy Loadings Higher for Week

Total cars handled by Pennsylvania Railroad system for the week ended June 6 were 121,432, comparing with 113,594 in the week previous and 147,217 a year ago. Loadings from January 1 to date amounted to 2,671,617 cars, against 3,249,335 in the same 1930 period.

Weston Electrical Acquires New Unit

CHICAGO, June 10.—Weston Electrical Instrument Corporation has acquired the assets of Jewel Electrical Instrument Company for $500,000 in cash and 14,000 shares of common stock of Weston Electrical.

Central Loadings Gain During Week

New York Central Lines loaded 62,479 cars of revenue freight in the week ended June 6, as against 68,943 in the like 1930 week and 47,710 in the preceeding week this year.

Increase Noted in German Employment

BERLIN, June 10. The number of unemployed on May 31, 1931, was 4,067,000 workers against 4,389,000 on April 30, 1931, and 2,635,000 on May 31, 1930.

HEARST JUNIOR GOLF PERMIT ISSUED

Superintendent of City Parks James Moore yesterday issued a formal permit for the use of the Schenley Park municipal links for the fourth annual William Randolph Hearst trophy tournament to be held there on Tuesday, June 30. Last week City Council approved the request that the day be set aside for the big event and the issuing of the permit puts on the final touch.

Caddie-masters throughout the district are preparing their boys for the preliminary qualifying test. Eight caddies from each club, which is permitted to stage a round, will qualify for the tournament. Joe Connors, of Chartiers Heights, and Bill Stocker, of Stanton Heights, already have lined up their boys, and qualification dates will be announced soon.

EARLY ENTRY HEAVY

About 25 entries marked the first day's mail to the Golf Tournament Editor, and more are coming in each time the mailman stops off at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Although last year's aggregate field totaled about 1,000, it is expected that this year's play will draw even a larger entry.

Caddies 17 years of age and under are eligible to play, provided they fill in have signed and mail in an entry blank prior to the time they participate in the preliminary test. Amateurs who are not caddies are eligible 19 years of age and under, providing they are not attending an institution of learning above preparatory school grades.

Curley to Stage Londos Title Bout

NEW YORK, June 10.—(INS.)—Jack Curley today was officially named by the boxing commission to conduct the Milk Fund wrestling show which will feature Jim Londos, the Greek, in a defense of his title against Ray Steele, of California.

The date has been set for June 29, but no particular ball park has been selected.

Rarick Gives Luncheon on Top of Giant Building

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

CHAPTER XXIX.

An idea began slowly, surely, and roundly to form itself in Rarick's brain. With the characteristically slow metabolism of a mind that thinks its way cautiously to destination, even the consummation took place so gradually that up to a certain point it was scarcely perceptible to Rarick himself.

It was his way, nerve-racking, sometimes, to those dependent upon his decision, to wake up one morning with clear-cut plan of action seeming to spring full grown out of long periods of what appeared to be a languid series of procrastinations.

For instance, over a period of four and one-half years, Rarick had held up certain final building decisions that had delayed the breaking of ground for the Rarick Building almost beyond the endurance of those intimately connected with the gigantic project.

At the conclusion of the fifty-fourth month of procrastination, certain franchise developments and new subway constructions gave the delays a most [illegible] significance, although it had been impossible to get out of Rarick whether he had foreseen, maneuvered, or been just characteristically slow, careful and lucky.

SLOW-MOVING MANEUVER

There were those who maintained that both the franchise developments and the subway constructions had been the outgrowth of only the last six months of the four and one-half years, and that it must have been foresight, not insight Hellman, who possibly was closest of all to this particular situation, maintained a face carved out of cherry-stone, insinuating with his manner, that circumstances similar to this happened too frequently to leave doubt, if any except the most obtuse, of the enormous quality of generalship behind such slow-moving maneuver.

On the other hand there was Jenny, wife, to whom all things were still flowing from the accident of her initial twenty-five hundred dollars. This success of his, engendered by her, was merely going on succeeding and succeeding . . .

The ideas, which, it seemed to Rarick now, must have been slowly congealing in his subconscious mind for years and years before a chance dissertation from Gerkes had jelled them, so to speak, had reached, these months since the death of Avery, a sudden consistency.

It was when Avery had been dead a six-month that the slowly congealing major idea became determination.

Day after day, in the maelstrom of his affairs, in conference, in trips of coast-to-coast inspection, on tours through the raw scaffolding of the partially erected Rarick Building, night after night, sitting in his library in discussion with Gerkes, poring over his amulets or his orchids, the idea, gathering specks from all corners of his mind, was slowly swimming into pattern.

"The wealth which man draws from his fellow creatures as clouds draw moisture from poisonous and sweet waters alike must be made to descend again in productive rains, or what availeth it?"

Or what availeth it? Avery had answered that. His death had simultaneously seemed to promulgate and answer that question. Without progeny of son Rarick sat in his Gothic aisle, pondering his responsibilities of disposing of wealth that up to now had chiefly accrued interest and objects.

According to the charts of the companies that carried his enormous insurances, his span of life was two-thirds spent. Even with long-life expectancy, and somehow in Rarick that expectancy had never run high, the time had come when a man whose share in the wealth of the world if you figured it per capita was several millions of human heads must prepare to put his house in order.

VAST PHILANTHROPIES

"The wealth which man draws from his fellow creatures as clouds draw rain from poisonous and sweet water alike, must be made to descend again in productive rains, or what availeth it?"

The disposition of over one hundred million dollars according to a man's temperament, family, dependents, hobbies, preferences, philanthropies, altruisms, wisdoms, principles and conscientious convictions, was a highly personal and complex matter, to say nothing of the responsibilities, ethical and sentimental, for which there was no proviso in the erudite volumes of economics, sociology, philanthropy or wealth in relation to peoples, land, cities, industry and countries.

The time had come, it seemed to Rarick, to formulate into words of legal document, the groping conviction of years, which, aided and abetted by what he regarded as certain brilliant thinking of Gerkes, the death of his son had solidified his mind.

The time had come when Rarick contemplated with obsession the turning of his capital into wealth wisely minted, into the largest crusade of preventive science and sociological research ever launched as either group or individual enterprise.

The wealth which man draws from his fellow creatures was not to descend in a crushing, golden mantle upon such shoulders as Jenny's, to whom those fellow creatures by now had become so many millions of maggots eating away the impedimenta of life to her, that she might walk in glory.

It was thus out of the freighted solitudes of the long evenings of the long months following the death of Avery, that Rarick began writing the document that was to be his last will and testament.

The day the last steel beam was laid across the seventy-ninth story of the skeleton of the Rarick Building, Hellman arranged a ceremonial, a luncheon to take place under gay awnings on an improvised platform erected among the mortar and bricks of the parapet that surrounded the Gothic auditorium that topped the tallest building in the world.

UNUSUAL CEREMONIAL

It was a motion designed chiefly to catch the eye and headline of the press. Tables were set up exclusively for reporters and feature-writers at the most spectacular end of the platform, overlooking more span of bridge, rush of skyscraper, and bird's-eye panorama than had been achieved from rooftop.

There were about 70 guests. Mayor, Aldermen, Health Commissioner, Lieutenant Governor, Superintendent of Schools, Chief of Police. An ex-mayor of St. Louis and old personal friend of Rarick's. A half-dozen leading St. Louis citizens.

Wives had been invited. The publicity value of women present was incalculable. Editors would give photographs of a mixed assembly twice the space. Jenny had realized the indiscretion of asking Ramon; and yet the explanation of his presence had seemed so obvious, almost too trivial to require comment.

Public ceremonial occasions were such painful and excoriating anathema to Rarick that his consistent failure to accept civic and honorary roles could be traced to what amounted to an insurmountable disability to occupy a president's or chairman's position.

Hellman, who was always averring, averred that this inability to glean the best from his fellow men, coupled with a certain humorlessness, was what kept Rarick from his place among the truly great. Gerkes, in his totally different way, practically said the same thing, when, one day, apropos of Woodrow Wilson whom he had known personally, he deplored Rarick's policy of going it alone.

HEAVY WITH DREAD

It was rumored that Rarick paid Hellman—who was supposed to write his speeches, stage such necessary formalities as these, and appear as his proxy wherever opportunity presented—the sum of $20,000 a year.

As a matter of fact, he paid him 30.

This was one of the occasions when not even the machinations of Hellman could prevent the affair from falling mercilessly on the shoulders of Rarick, whose place of honor at the head of the T-shaped table, even before the guests were assembled, had become dreadful to him at the sight of the small ivory gavel there.

Greeting his guests as they stepped out of the makeshift elevator, the tongue of Rarick lay like chamois in his mouth. The great little magnate swallowed his tongue. The great little magnate was heavy with dread.

Marvelous. Breath-taking. Oh! Oh! Oh! Dramatic! Stupendous! Incredible. Finest—biggest—highest—tallest—most terrific—most expensive—gigantic—Oh! —Oh!—Look!—See!—What?—Where? Finest—tallest—highest—so—American!

One shook hands. One accompanied this one and that one to this ledge and that. That down there? Oh, of course, the Equitable Building. Over there? I say, Hellman, is that Metropolitan Tower? No-o—think that's the Municipal Building down there. Telephone Building. Oh no, 40 stories higher—wonderful panorama—finest—biggest—talent—highest—so American—

Luncheon itself, served by a bankers' club in Wall street, was a cold and tasteless affair by the time it was relayed up the 79 stories. The wind was a nagging one that became bothersome to the women, and forced Senator Grimes to dine with his high hat clamped tightly down against neuralgia.

There were souvenirs. Snowstorm paper-weights of the Rarick Building enclosed in crystal.

At the escarole-salad course, Miss Jennifer Rarick, slender in black tailored things and high white fox, apologetically late and becomingly breathless, arrived with a young man named Davies, for whom an extra chair had to be crammed beside Jennifer's.

'Five and Ten' Synopsis

John G. Rarick, multi-millionaire chain store operator, buys a magnificent mansion after being urged by his wife, Jenny, and finds himself hating her. This is accentuated by his own inability to get close to Jennifer and Avery, his children. Jenny begins to be intrigued by Ramon Lopez, a gigolo. Avery, a college student, tires of school. Jennifer likes the handsome and rich Berry Rhodes, and Jenny urges her to try to win him. Berry kisses Jennifer while taking her to one of Leslie Edgerton's parties. Jennifer learns that Berry and Leslie had been married secretly. Ramon, saying that he has been neglecting his work to see Jenny, gets money from her. Rarick rushes to Jenny's boudoir after receiving a disturbing letter. The letter says that Jennifer is still seeing Berry. Jennifer says that she does not want to see him again. Jenny plans to go to Canada with her. Gerkes surprises Rarick by saying that he is going to marry an Eskimo and live in Alaska. Returning from Canada, Jenny and Jennifer are shocked when they learn Avery is dead. He had given up the struggle to adjust himself to his complex world and killed himself. Jenny turns to Ramon for comfort. Jennifer starts to see Berry again and finds it is not as hard to give him up as she thought.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Wealthy Bachelor Leads Peculiar Life

Eccentric

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Mr. Horace Effinger sat in the living room of his hotel suite at one of the most exclusive of the Palm Beach hostelries.

Close beside him on a stand was a square aquarium in which a dozen gold fish disported with a quiet grace in every move.

Mr. Effinger was reading, but often he would pause, his finger keeping his place in the book, and study his pets.

Marks, Mr. Effinger's skilful and understanding valet, was hanging several paintings of gold fish on the walls. One could be quite sure that they were gold fish because they were formed like fish and of a golden orange in color.

Whether, in these paintings, the fish were swimming in lazy blueing or suning themselves on some wisteria blossoms it would have been difficult to decide had it not been a general knowledge that gold fish thrived better in water than on wisteria blossoms.

In other words, the paintings were atrocious.

Down below, Inez Baker was questioning the clerk then on duty.

Inez was down at Palm Beach getting a good laugh every time she thought of her brothers and sisters on the Morning Triald staff back in New York, where blizzards and snow and sleet were the order of practically every day.

Inez was having the time of her life covering society news for her paper. A friend had tipped her about Mr. Horace Effinger.

"I don't know who he is," the friend had said, "but he had his servant bring in a big black leather case that was ventilated and I distinctly heard the sound of liquid in it. I've got a hunch, Inez, that it was just plain booze and he brought it in like that."

"Thanks for the tip, Mrs. Patter."

"And—er—Miss Baker, be sure and have an item in your Sunday society column about me. I'll hear of a lot of things down here and tip you."

GRANTED INTERVIEW

Inez promised.

Here was a good news item. Even if she couldn't use the man's name she could write that a certain well-known man of society brought his private stock of liquor into a hotel in a leather-covered case that would hold 10 gallons or more.

So Inez chatted with the clerk. The clerk would have the telephone desk call up and see if Mr. Horace Effinger would receive Miss Baker of the New York Triald.

Word came back that Mr. Effinger would receive her.

Marks ushered her in when she arrived.

Mr. Effinger arose languidly, bowed, made a motion at Marks to seat the young lady and then subsided into his chair again, to stare for a moment at his goldfish.

Inez chatted with Mr. Effinger. She learned that he painted as a hobby, when he felt so inclined, that he made annual trips to Egypt, the Riviera, to Mexico in the good season, and otherwise jogged about a bit.

He said to his valet, "Marks—my secretary."

"Take this, please."

He dictated the society note the way he hoped that it would be printed. The comely woman retired and came back quickly with the thing in type. Inez thanked him and left him staring intently at his goldfish.

Here was a story far better than the mere smuggling of a few gallons of liquor into a hotel in a black walrus-skin case. Here was a life-sized, rugged young man toting goldfish all about the world with him and calling them "cyprinua carpo aurum." It was a corker of a story.

Inez had a follow-up story to the effect that the wealthy and eccentric Mr. Horace Effinger kept a valet and a secertary to aid in caring for his funny pets.

MEET EUROPE

Back in New York in his apartment he got more publicity.

It got so, after a period of some five seasons, that the arrival of Mr. Horace Effinger with his valet, secretary and aquarium of Cyprinua carpo aurum did not cause much of a ruffle in the newspapers. Usually it was just a small paragraph. Over here these paragraphs varied from the dignified mention of Mr. Horace Effinger returning with his pet gold fish to the wise-cracks from some of the tabloids to the effect that seven notable gold fish had returned from a tour abroad with Mr. Horace Effinger.

Inez Baker had forged ahead during these years. At this time she was making a trip abroad for her paper.

She ran across Mr. Effinger and his gold fish in many places, Ostend, Riviera, Baden-Baden, Antwerp, Cairo and elsewhere.

He wanted Inez to become his secretary.

"My secretary has married. She was most dependable, but of course when she fell in love with a really worth-while fellow, it was not for me to urge her to remain with me."

"Listen, Effie," Inez said, for she had become very chummy with this eccentric by this time, "I like you heaps, really, but when it comes to being secretary to a lot of silly gold fish, that's out."

Mr. Effinger sighed.

"Sorry, very sorry, Inez—terribly fond of you," he told her.

And then, right in the midst of all her confidence and peace of mind, she received cabled news that her paper had been absorbed by the Morning Spheroid.

More than that, Inez was out of a job and over in Europe.

"Give me your telephone number, Inez," he begged, "for the chances are you won't land another journalistic position right away and you might accept my offer to become my secretary."

"Not if I can get a job as official trash-basket emptier in some newspaper office," she told him, but she gave him her number.

HORACE TELEPHONES

Within a week Mr. Horace Effinger telephoned her. "It was noon, could she have luncheon with him?"

She could, and did. To her surprise, while they were eating in walked the handsome girl who had been his secretary. She had a man with her.

"Well Inez, this is a mere coincidence, but she is really my sister."

This was quite true and quite puzzling.

They all went up to Mr. Effinger's apartment.

Nor a painting of any gold fish.

"Inez," Mr. Effinger said, "I'm 30 and wealthy enough and I've been in love with you for five years, why not marry me? When I wanted you to be my secretary it was with this object in view."

"Now, Effie, you are a dear, and I'm strong for you—if it wasn't for those silly gold fish and your dotty idea that you can paint fiold fish I'd consider it."

"Good, we are now engaged. I have no more gold fish, I paint no more silly daubs. Now what do you say?"

"You might break out again."

"I hate the damn gold fish and always did—would you marry me if you knew that I was a violator of the law—as much of a violator as though I had violated the Eighteenth Amendment?"

"I think I would, Effie—I'm really crazy about you. Go ahead and confess."

"You could scarcely call me eccentric. I learned that by making up artificial pebbles and putting them in my aquarium, I could stick nice fat little diamonds inside of each phony pebble and bring it in—with the fish, in the aquarium. It worked swell, thanks to the start you gave me with your stories about how eccentric I was. Everyone thought I was plain nuts and politely called me eccentric. Well, I've made plenty. I'm through with gold fish forever, through smuggling stones in. Look here—"

He showed her a photograph of a handsome home and others of a great fruit ranch in California.

The Garbage Contract

By All Means Let Action Be Taken That Will Encourage Competitive Bidding.

For 30 years the American Reduction Company and the Allegheny Garbage Company have had the job of disposing of Pittsburgh's garbage and rubbish—a job that was worth $1,800,000 a year to them.

Last year the Modern Service Company, a new concern, offered to do the work for considerably less money. Its bid, though low, was rejected, because of doubt as to its ability to carry out the contract satisfactorily. The Modern Service Company, it is alleged, had been rather hastily organized shortly before the contract was to be awarded, and lacked the necessary equipment.

Dr. C. B. Maits, director of public health, now asks authority to award the 1932 contract in a more leisurely manner, so that ample time may be given companies desirous of competing for the job.

It is a commendable idea, and Dr. Maits deserves credit for thus striving to save money for the taxpayers.

By all means let every encouragement be given concerns that may desire to bid for the garbage contract.

Ambitious Bank Clerks

The American Institute of Banking Sets a Fine Example For Men in All Professions.

You may have been struck by the youth of the delegates to the convention of the American Institute of Banking.

The young men of the American Institute of Banking are jolly good fellows. They enjoy a pleasant, sociable time—and have it.

But primarily they are organized for education. The institute conducts classes in banking, economics and allied subjects. Its members are out to learn, as well as to have a good time.

Such ambition is inspiring.

Augmented Air Service

Steady Increase in Flying Facilities Offers Interesting Vacation Possibilities.

New airplane service has been established between Pittsburgh and Washington. Additional facilities have been provided for flying between Pittsburgh and Cleveland. Three planes leave here daily for each of the cities.

Extension of aerial transportation is not confined to Pennsylvania and adjacent territory. The same sort of thing is going on in all parts of the world.

Not a week goes by that the Department of Commerce does not report the opening of new air lines in Europe, Asia, Africa, the South Seas or South America.

The increase in flying facilities offers interesting vacation possibilities to Pittsburghers. It is now possible, in a vacation of two weeks, to visit places so remote that a month or more would be required if other means of transportation should be used.

The Intelligent Grouse

The ruffed grouse is swift, beautiful, courageous.

It was these qualities, no doubt, that led to its selection by the Legislature as the State Bird of Pennsylvania.

But the grouse possesses another, and even more admirable quality. It is intelligent, as an incident that occurred a few days ago in the Cook State Forest Park attests.

District Forester Zerby reports that men constructing a new road through the forest located it close to the nest of a mother grouse. The intelligent bird accordingly built a new nest and transferred the eggs to it. She spread her wings and pushed the eggs a distance of more than 20 feet, without injuring a single egg.

Pennsylvanians have reason to be proud of their State Bird.

Another Great Organ

Instrument Ordered by Sacred Heart Church Will Be a Credit to Pittsburgh.

Splendid and well-equipped churches, regardless of denomination, are a credit to the city. Hence Pittsburghers of all faiths will take satisfaction in the news that Sacred Heart Catholic Church has ordered a $60,000 pipe organ, with 5,000 pipes. It will be one of the largest in the country.

Such an instrument will add appreciably to the beauty of the service and will help to promote love of good music. The congregation is to be congratulated.

The original expenditure on the great pipe organ in Carnegie Institute was $17,000. Additional expenditures have brought the amount to $70,000. It has 7,700 pipes. The figures may help to promote appreciation of the grandeur of the organ ordered by Sacred Heart Church.

Audit Proves Its Value

Investigation of Supplies Department Has Shown How Economies Can Be Effected.

Whatever the outcome of the Supplies Department investigation may be, the audit made by the accountants has proved well worth while.

The firm employed by the city confirms the findings of the accountants employed by the Citizens' Committee.

There has been scandalous waste of the taxpayers' money.

Whether or not indictments result, or restitution is made, the audit has been valuable because it has revealed a system that is sorely in need of correction.

It is little short of shocking, for example, that a corporation like the city of Pittsburgh, doing millions of dollars of business annually, should let enormous quantities of perishable goods go to waste for lack of a warehouse.

Why Freeze in a Woodyard? -:- By Nelson Harding

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 10.—New York artists, from the attics of Greenwich Village to the duplex studios of effete West Sixty-seventh street, have, like many other professional workers, undergone skimpy days during the past year. Only recently did their world begin to brighten.

It is a guild notoriously improvident and in innumerable cases among smaller fry there was absolute hunger. But even a heavier blow fell upon the artist models. For weeks and in some instances months beauties with a perfect 36 were without a livelihood.

In such emergencies heretofore many found temporary havens in musical revues and cabaret floor shows. But these fugitive sanctuaries were also undergoing a slump and there were more than a hundred applications for almost every job in the agencies.

Conditions became so alarming for many models that they resorted to gentle racketeering. A pale, beautiful girl would be admitted to the studio for a job and while her name and address were taken she would suddenly sway and swoon—"a tranquil flower on a tortured stem."

Such appeals rarely went unheeded by gallant artists. In almost every instance they would escort her to a taxicab. And a few blocks away when she would step out of the cab with surprising agility, she would find a bill tucked surreptitiously away in her purse.

One story drifting about the studios is of a girl collecting more than $100 in this fashion. And who came upon sudden good fortune through marriage to a wealthy young man. One of her first acts was to confess deceptions and make restitution.

Mannikins in high class dressmaking establishments also had their lean period. About 75 out of every hundred lost their jobs. Some became waitresses to tide them over. But many have been restored to posts on full or part time.

Meeting with no success in my snooping I turned to "coloring photographs in spare time." For this I was promised from $20 to $60 a week. This didn't turn out so hot either. It was spring and I had just fallen desperately in love with Mrs. Leslie Carter. So I colored her photograph out of a newspaper, mailed it to her and received this reply from a secretary: "Mrs. Carter thanks you for your letter and the highly amusing caricature." And kadap went the paint box among my souvenirs.

HOW MOON WAS BORN

By Archibald Henderson

It has long been held that the moon was once a part of the earth. The mathematical theory on which this notion rested was developed by one of the greatest of modern mathematicians, Henri Poincare. This theory was applied by Sir George H. Darwin, son of Charles Darwin, in a classic piece of research which for long was believed to settle the question. The theory, briefly sketched, is as follows:

Originally the earth, very far back in time, was presumed to have a very high rotational velocity. The rotational speed imparted to the earth a spheroidal shape. Instead of slowing down, or even maintaining its speed, the earth was believed to have gradually accelerated its speed through many millions of years. In time it gradually changed its form, taking on a form something like an egg, and later a shape approximating that of a pear. Finally the smaller end of the pear took on a spheroidal shape, and the earth's mass resembled a dumbbell, composed of two balls stuck together, one being considerably larger than the other.

By the time this phase in the evolution of the earth's shape had been reached the speed of rotation was very high. The day was only three hours long, the rotational velocity being 16 times that of a rifle bullet. By this time, owing to the effect of the rotation, cooling and contraction, the earth was covered with a coating or crust some 35 miles thick. Finally the strain became too great, and the smaller ball, some 5,000 cubic miles in volume, broke loose from the parent mass. Thus, according to Sir George H. Darwin, the moon was born.

It appears now that this fascinating theory of cosmic evolution, as applied to earth and moon, must be abandoned. Nor can it be successfully maintained that the moon came out of the Pacific Ocean just at the time the earth was beginning to have a solid crust. The abandonment of the reasonance theory is regretted by many astronomers, because they liked to think that the origin of the moon, the earth's companion, was unique.

Recent investigations have been made in the effort to discover whether, very far back in time, the earth and the moon were ever united in one body, and the conditions for their separation.

The sun might possibly have caused this separation by direct action, raising tides in the original mass. Under this assumption, this original mass mus have been liquid. Sir James Jeans has demonstrated that, under no circumstances could a gaseous body produce a large satellite. The original mass, then, must have had much the same density as that of the earth today. In that case the sun, in order to exert sufficient power on a body of the earth's density to draw huge filaments from it, must have actually grazed the original mass. A rotational period, in that case, would have been required of four hours, which is excessively high. Yet even that would not have been high enough to compel the original mass to break into two parts.

It is conceivable that tides of great magnitude might have been raised in the original mass by solar influence. At present these tides are only a few inches in height. To cause rupture, tides at least as high as the earth's radius would have been required. Unfortunately, the inner structure of the earth renders this phenomenon impossible. There is a sharp boundary between the upper and the lower levels of the earth's mass. Calculation shows that were the earth originally liquid, the greatest height to which the tides could rise would be only one-twentieth enough to cause breakage.

The Bears and the Boy

BEAR AND BABY BEAR RIDE—"PICK-A-BACK"

This little picture, valuable because it promotes thinking, might be offered by teachers in schools of journalism to their students with this question, "What do you THINK about when you see this picture?"

It shows young Master Burnet, whose father has succeeded in preserving, breeding and perpetuating the Koala, tiny native Australian bear that was rapidly becoming extinct.

These gentle little creatures are interesting specimens of the strange evolution through which nature has passed in building up the forms of life.

In Australia, as you know, there were originally no savage animals, no destructive creatures like lions, leopards, wolves, foxes; and harmless, defenseless animals, like this little bear (the ornithorinchus), that has a bill like a duck, the kangaroo and others could thrive.

Man arrived, killing everything, bringing his dogs and guns with him, and this little bear, with his soft fur, would have ceased to exist soon had not Mr. Burnet succeeded in persuading his Koalas to multiply in captivity.

Here, a mother Koala bear clings to the back and shoulders of the boy, while her baby bear clings to her as she does to the boy, and together they take a nice walk, which means exactly NOTHING to them.

No matter where the boy might go with these bears—the top of the highest mountain, the depths of the sea, by submarine, above the clouds by flying machine, to the North Pole or the burning Equator—the little bears might go along, BUT THEY WOULDN'T LEARN ANYTHING.

They might travel around the world, look through telescopes at distant stars, go to the opera and hear the most magnificent music. Still they would be LITTLE KOALA BEARS AND NOTHING ELSE.

A wise man said that to bring information BACK from your travels you must take information WITH you.

Another wise man said, "A dwarf on the shoulders of a giant can see farther than the giant."

The dwarf might SEE farther, but it wouldn't necessarily learn anything.

These little Koala bears on the boy's back will live and die, knowing as little as they would have known if they had remained, climbing around, in their Australian forest.

But we need not despise these little bears or consider ourselves too far superior to them.

On this boy's back they would look at the wonders of civilization, not interested, understanding nothing, learning nothing.

Man on the average is not much better than a Koala bear when he looks out from this little earth at the universe around. In the sky is the sun, a million times as big as this earth. He rarely looks at it or thinks about it.

He sees the moon, that accompanies us through space, raising our tides, without which human life on this planet would be impossible. He doesn't think of that.

The important things are outside of this little Earth, but we think about them as little as the Koala bears think about important things outside of their Australian forest.

It is true of men as of Koala bears that having eyes they see not and having ears they hear not.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I am about to write what I know about love. It may not be popular, but it will be a great relief to me to write it—after all the blithering bunk one reads on this subject. And, perhaps, it may be a relief to you to read it. For it is possible that you have come to the same conclusion.

I think that our fantastic eulogies of romance are tommyrot. I don't believe one of them. I have never seen them work. Personally, I must confess I have never had any of these ecstatic results from love. I can easily become fond of people, and I can usually make them fond of me—but I'm not a steady, reliable performer. Remain friendly—yes. But I simply can't go on crooning. Twenty-four hours of romance is just about all I can endure. I don't want to look at the moonlight any more. I don't want to press any more violets. I want to go off and do something else . . . something serious and difficult and mature . . . something that I can do with a cool brain and an entirely indifferent heart.

This attitude alone would disqualify me as one of the World's Great Lovers—but there is worse to follow.

Love is supposed to make a Grand Guy out of you. It doesn't make a Grand Guy out of me. As soon as I love someone I want to boss them. Of course, I pretend that it's for their good. But who am I to know what's good for anyone? The truth is, I love to run other people's lives, and love gives me a perfect alibi. Why, I have done more ornery, contemptible, unfair and actually cruel things in the name of love than I would ever have dreamed of doing as a regular citizen. If I treated a stranger as I frequently treat those I love he'd have me arrested as a common nuisance.

In short, love fails me and I fail love. And yet——

In spite of all this, I believe in love, and I'm glad I've loved. And I shall keep on loving until the end of my days. I'll never succeed at it, but I will always keep hoping. And that hope is the greatest, cleanest, finest thing in life.

Love, after all, is only a dream. It never comes quite true for anyone. But it is the best dream there is. It holds all we know of honor and tenderness and fairness and generosity. To be sure, we never achieve these fine qualities when we try to put our dream into practice. But, at least, it's something to dream about them.

And our very failure to realize love is, perhaps, the best thing about it. For that failure keeps us always hungry . . . always wondering and regreting and wishing and reaching out.

The great stars blazing there above you, so white, so serene—far and high above you and your small bewildered life.

And suddenly you forget your weakness and your bewilderment . . . and your hands go out and up . . . up and up toward the stars . . . as though you had a right to them, in spite of everything.

And there are tears on your face.

Love is like that.

I'm glad I've loved!
